BARONETS

Created by

KING CHARLES II.

133. SCOTT, of Kew-Green, Surry.

Created BARONET, August 9, 1653.

PATRICK SCOTT, of Monny, Esq; '(descended from Sir John Scott, Knight, of whom honourable mention is made by the Scotch historians, particularly for having delivered the city of Perth from the dominion of the English, in 1297) married Catherine Drummond, daughter of the Lord Balboch, in Perthshire. He had issue, first, Peter Scott, of Monny, Esq; who married with the house of Graham, in Scotland, but his issue failed.

John Scott, Esq; second son, left Scotland, and settled in the Low-Countries, 1519. By his wife, Cornelia Adresson, he had issue, James Scott, Esq; residing at Delft, in Holland, 1572, who, by Magdalen de Hoefft, was father of James Scott, Esq; residing at Middleburgh, in Zealand, 1600. He married Hester Bacquier, by whom he had three sons; 1. Everard Scott, Esq; of Amsterdam; 2. James; 3. William Scott, Esq; late president of the council, governor and admiral to the states-general. Afterwards (drawn by the encouragement then given to naval commerce) he settled at Rouen, in France, in 1641. By his interest, he got two regiments in Scotland, for the King's service, of 1500 men each. And in 1652, when King Charles II. retired into France, from the fight at Worcester, he found refuge at his house; (and when the rest of the English avoided him) he received his Majesty as became him, and presented him with 1000*l.* to enable him to proceed to Paris, where he also assisted him with money. These seasonable services were not forgot by his Majesty, at his restoration, for he sent him his picture, now remaining in the family, and gave him withal a present, that exceeded the sum received by him. Also in consideration of these, and many other considerable services, he was advanced to the dignity of a baronet, the fifth of his reign.

At length he became naturalized, and was admitted into the order of the nobility, by the King of France, by letters patent, expressed in very honourable terms; who also permitted him to buy the post of Secrétaire du roi, which exempts those who enjoy it from several taxes and inconveniences that other subjects are liable to, and which costs 80,000 livres. He purchased the lordships of Mezangere, Boscheville, and Gaillon, in Normandy; and, according to the custom of the country, assumed the name of his principal seat, writing himself Scott de la Mezangere, commonly called Monsieur de la Mezangere. He married Catherine, second daughter of Samuel Fortrey, Esq; lord of the manor of Kew, in Surry, (descended of the ancient family of the Fortreys, of Lisle, who, for the sake of religion, refuged themselves in England, temp. Eliz.) He died a protestant, 1681. His lady survived him three years, and died 1684. His issue were, Sir William, his successor; Catherine, married to Charles Poyer, Esq; lord of Drummare; Esther, married to Thomas le Gardre de Colande, Lord of Romiby, &c. and Mary, married to Sir Francis Masham, Bart. father of the late Lord Masham.

Sir William Scott, Bart. successor to his father, was Lord of Mezangere, and counsellor of the parliament in Normandy, 1683. He married Margaret de Rambouillet de la Sablieve, and had two sons, Sir William, and Sir Anthony, who married Elizabeth de Bourrer, and had issue.

Sir William Scott succeeded his father. He was marquis de la Mezangere, Lord of Boscheville, Gaillon, &c. of the King's council, and president of accounts, aids, and finances, in Normandy. He married Mary Leveze de Pais de Bois L'Abbe, maid of honour, and died 1723, leaving issue, Sir William, John-Anthony, Edward-Francis-Peter, and Anthony; also Margaret-Eugene Scott.

He was succeeded by his eldest son, Sir William Scott, Bart. We can say nothing further, with any tolerable degree of certainty, concerning this family, who have constantly resided in France. Their not having answered our letters, may be, perhaps, owing to our want of a proper direction to them, or to some accident in their passage.

ARMS. Or, a Stag couchant, proper, collared, Azure, with a Mullet on the Collar, Argent, between two Crescents of the First, and in the Chief of the Escutcheon, a Rose, Gules, for distinction.

CREST. On a Wreath, Or and Azure, a Stag's Head coupé, collared, &c. as in the Field.

134. WHICHCOTE, of the Inner-Temple, London.

Created BARONET, April 2, 1660.

THIS family was originally of Whichcote, in Salop, from thence denominated De Whichcote, for several generations, as appears by two inquisitions taken 2 Edward II. and 44 Edward III.

Harpwell, in Lincolnshire, has been a seat of the family above 300 years, now possessed by Thomas Whichcote, Esq; son and heir to George Whichcote, Esq; some time one of the Knights in parliament for the said county, by his third wife, a daughter of Sir Thomas Mears, Knight, which Thomas Whichcote, Esq; married the only daughter of John Tregagle, Esq; and has represented the county of Lincoln in six successive parliaments.

The first of the family in Lincolnshire, was, John Whichcote, Esq; who married Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of John Tirwhit, of Harpwell, Esq; the said John Whichcote, Esq; was a justice of the peace, and high sheriff of Lincolnshire, 6 Edw. IV. and father of John, who, by Catherine, daughter of Sir John Bussy, of Hougham in Lincolnshire, Knight, had issue, Thomas Whichcote, Esq; who married Catherine, daughter of ——— Norton, of Kent, Esq; and had several sons; from Hamond, the eldest by Alice, daughter of John Redish, of Redish in Lancashire, Esq; descends Thomas Whichcote, Esq; before-mentioned.

Christopher Whichcote, Esq; a younger son, married Lucy, daughter of Thomas Bosville, of New-hall in Yorkshire, Esq; and died March 5, 1609, by whom he had issue, Christopher Whichcote, of Stoke in Salop, Esq; who, by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter of Edward Fox, of Greet, in the said county, Esq; had seven sons; 1. Edward Whichcote, of Stoke, Esq; 2. Charles; 3. Christopher; 4. Thomas; 5. Samuel; 6. Benjamin, ' who was of Emanuel college, Cambridge, and about ' the age of four or five-and-thirty, was made provost of King's ' college, where he was a most vigilant and prudent governor, ' a great encourager of learning and good order, and by his ' careful and wise management of the estate of the college, ' brought it into a very flourishing condition, and left it so. ' After he left Cambridge, he came to London, and was cho- ' sen minister of Black-friars, where he continued till the ' dreadful fire, and then retired himself to a donative he had at ' Milton, near Cambridge, where he preached constantly, and

' relieved the poor, and had their children taught to read at his ' own charge, and made up differences among the neighbours.
 ' Here he staid, till he was preferred to be vicar of St. Laurance ' Jury, where he preached twice a week, and had the general
 ' love and respect of his parish. It pleased God to bless him, as
 ' with a plentiful estate, so with a charitable mind; and in the ' disposal of his charity, he very much affected secrecy; he fre' quently bestowed alms on poor house-keepers, disabled by age
 ' or sickness to support themselves, thinking those the most ' proper objects; he was rather frugal upon himself, that so he ' might relieve the necessities of others. And he was not only
 ' charitable in his life, but in a very bountiful manner at his ' death, bequeathing, in pious and charitable legacies, to the ' value of 1000*l*. He was a man of a most exemplary life, and ' profound learning, and he particularly excelled in the virtues
 ' of conversation, humanity, gentleness, and humility; of a ' prudent and peaceful reconciling temper.' He died at Cambridge, aged seventy-four, May, 1683. The seventh son of Christopher Whichcote, Esq; was, Sir Jeremy; but of these sons, three only left issue male, viz. Edward Whichcote, of Stoke, aforesaid, Esq; colonel Christopher Whichcote, some time governor of Windsor castle; and Sir Jeremy Whichcote.

Sir Jeremy Whichcote, of the Inner-Temple, London, was a barrister at law, and solicitor-general to the prince Elector Palatine. At the request of King Charles II. during his exile, he purchased the wardenship of the fleet; and, by officiating sometimes himself, sheltered the King's agents, and prevented a treacherous design against his person, for which he was honoured with the title of Baronet, by letters patent, dated at Brussels, April 2, 12 Car. II. he died 1677, aged 63, and lies buried in Hendon church in Middlesex.

Having married Anne, eldest daughter of Joseph Grave, Esq;
 (by Anne, his wife, daughter of John Brereton, of Namptwich in Cheshire, Esq; and Amy, his wife, sister to Sir Paul Pindar, Knt.) he had seven sons, and two daughters; 1. Sir Paul, his successor; 2. Francis; 3. Benjamin, who died unmarried; 4.
 Christopher Whichcote, of Hackney, Esq; who died there, Oct.
 13, 1738, aged upwards of eighty; having been remarkable for his great charity: he gave in his life-time 7500*l*. to different public hospitals, besides about 1300*l*. in charities, by his last will; 5. Henry, who married Gertrude, daughter of Sir John Laurence, Knight, Lord-Mayor of London, reliēt of Richard Peacock, of Finchley, Esq; by whom he had issue; 6. Samuel, who died unmarried; and 7. Matthew, deceased. The daughters were, Anne, married to Sir Francis Pemberton, Knight, Lord chief-justice of the Common-pleas and King's-bench;

and Elizabeth, married to Richard Osborne, of the Inner-Temple, Esq; barrister at law.

Sir Paul Whichcote, of Quy-hall in Cambridgeshire, Knt. and Bart. eldest son and successor of Sir Jeremy, married Jane, daughter and coheir to Sir Nicholas Gould, of London, Bart. (by Elizabeth his wife, daughter of Sir John Garrard, of Lamer in Hertfordshire, Bart. and relict of Thomas Neale, Esq;) by whom he had issue, four sons and five daughters, of which, only one son, Sir Francis, his successor, and two daughters, survived him; Jane, his eldest daughter, married John Tregagle, of Trevorder, in the county of Cornwall, Esq; and Anna-Maria, married to Cæsar Adamson, of Rougham, in the county of Suffolk, Esq; Sir Paul died December, 1721, being succeeded by Sir Francis Whichcote, the present Baronet, his only son and heir, who; in the first parliament of King George I. was one of the Knights of the Shire for the county of Cambridge, and who had married two wives, first, Mary, only daughter of Joseph Banks, of Reyesby-abby, in the county of Lincoln, Esq; who dying without issue in 1726, he married Frances Lady Hickman, relict of Sir Nevile Hickman, and mother of Sir Nevile George Hickman, the present Baronet, by whom he has two sons, viz. Christopher Whichcote, Esq; who married Jane, the daughter of the above-mentioned Thomas Whichcote, Esq; and has by her one son and two daughters; and Francis Whichcote, Esq; as yet unmarried.

ARMS. Ermine, two Boars, passant, Gules, langued, Azure, the Tusks and Bristles, Or.

CREST. On a Wreath, a Boar's Head, erased and erected, Gules, langued, Azure, armed, Or.

135. BRIDGEMAN, of Great-Lever, Lancashire.

Created BARONET, June 7, 1660.

THIS family are descended from John Bridgeman, of Dean Magna in Gloucestershire, Esq; who married Johanna, daughter of William Clarke, of Dean Magna, by whom he had issue, William Bridgeman, of Dean Magna, Esq; who, by Mary, daughter of Richard Bryan, of Dean Parva, had a numerous issue.

Whereof Edward, a younger son, was seated at Devonshire.

‘ John, his son, was born, says Prince, in his Worthies of Devon, in the city of Exeter, not far from the palace-gate there. His father was Edward Bridgeman, some time high-sheriff of that city and county for the year 1578.

‘ Having very good natural parts, and being observed to be well disposed towards books and learning, he was carefully kept at school, until he was thought fit to be transplanted thence to the university, which was done accordingly; and he became a member of Magdalen-college in Cambridge; after that, a fellow, and lastly, the master thereof.

‘ Having commenced master of arts at Cambridge, he was admitted, ad eundem, at Oxford, July 4, 1600. After this, he proceeded doctor of divinity, which is the highest degree a scholar can receive, or the university bestow.

‘ Being now of noted learning, a pious life, and courteous deportment, he was admitted by King James I. into the number of his domestic chaplains, and became rector of Wigan in Lancashire, in 1615.

‘ Afterwards he was, by the same King, preferred to the bishoprick of Chester, raised by King Henry VIII. out of the ruins of the abbies and monasteries here in England. He was consecrated at the same time at Lambeth, with doctor Howson, bishop of Oxford, and doctor Searchfield, bishop of Bristol, viz. on the 9th of May, 1619. Which see being of no great yearly value, he was made, anno 1621, rector of Bangor also, which he held in commendam.

‘ For many years did this learned and pious divine continue the faithful and watchful bishop of this church. In that memorable year, 1641, when the unchristian rabble were encouraged, by no mean pretenders to Christianity, to bawl down protestant bishops, as they came in their barges to the parliament-house at Westminster, this reverend prelate was then living; however, whether detained at home by age, or hindered by some other occasion, he was not present in the house, to join in the protestation made by his right reverend brethren, against the proceedings of that parliament. Hence he happily escaped that long and tedious imprisonment, unto which most of them, notwithstanding their great years, and their greater piety and learning, who subscribed it, were confined for eighteen weeks together.

‘ Such was this prelate’s merit, that there is this honourable character of him transmitted to posterity, That he was as ingenious as brave; and a great patron of those gifts in others, he was the happy owner of in himself. He was thirty years bishop of Chester, and every year maintained, more or less, hopeful young men in the university, and preferred good pro-

 ‘ turned him out of his livings, whom he had raised into theirs.
 ‘ He was a good benefactor unto Chester, but a better, under ‘ God, to England, in his son, the late honourable

‘ Sir Orlando Bridgeman, some time lord chief-justice of the ‘ Common-pleas; after that, master of the rolls; then lord-‘ keeper of the great seal of England, under King Charles II.
 ‘ who was a sufferer in his Majesty’s cause, and a great honour
 ‘ to it. His moderation and equity being such, in dispensing
 ‘ the King’s laws, that he seemed to carry a chancery in his ‘ breast in the Common-pleas; endearing, as well as opening
 ‘ the law to the people.

‘ This learned and holy prelate, bishop Bridgeman, lived to ‘ enjoy the blessings of a good old age; for after the continu‘ ance of about thirty years (as was said before) bishop of the ‘ church of Chester, he fell asleep in the Lord, at his palace at ‘ Chester aforesaid, near the year 1649. He lieth interred in ‘ his own church there.

‘ This holy prelate was famous in himself, but more famous
 ‘ in his son, Sir Orlando Bridgeman before-mentioned; a gen‘ tleman of great piety, as well as honour and integrity; and ‘ was the first Englishman King Charles II. advanced to the ‘ degree of a Baronet after his happy restoration.’

During the time of the usurpation, the bishop fled to his son’s seat at Moreton in Shropshire, his estate being sequestered some years before his death. Mr. Brown Willis, in his survey of cathedrals, gives this account of him:

John Bridgeman, S. T. P. rector of Wigan and Bangor in the diocese of Chester, prebendary of Litchfield and Peterborough, became elected bishop of Chester, March 15, 1618. In Prince’s Worthies of Devonshire, is some account of his life, (which is before related) he being born at Exeter: though that author, and other writers, are all mistaken as to his death, anno 1648 or 1649, and buried at Chester; whereas he did not die till 1652, as A. Wood tells us; or rather, as I have lately been informed, till 1657 or 1658, when, departing this life at his son’s house at Moreton, near Oswestry in Shropshire, he was buried at Kinnerley church, near Moreton aforesaid.

The bishop married Elizabeth, daughter of Dr. Helyar, canon of Exeter, and archdeacon of Barnstable, (of the ancient family of the Helyars of Somersetshire) and had issue five sons;
 1. Sir Orlando, hereafter mentioned; 2. Dove, a prebendary of the cathedral church of Chester, who married the daughter of ——— Bennet, of Cheshire, (she surviving him, afterwards married Dr. John Hacket, bishop of Litchfield) and had issue only one son, Charles Bridgeman, archdeacon of Richmond in Yorkshire, who died unmarried, 1678; 3. Henry Bridgeman, dean of Chester, being so made, 1660: he was also parson of Bangor in Flintshire, and of Barrow in Cheshire, and made bishop of the Isle of Man, 1671. He married two wives, first, Catherine, daughter of Robert Lever, of Lancashire, Gent. by whom he had a daughter, Elizabeth, married to Thomas Greenhalgh, of Brundlesham in Lancashire, Esq; his second wife, I do not find: he died May, 1682. 4. Sir James Bridgeman, Knt. who married Anne, daughter of — Allen, of Cheshire, Gent. by whom he had James, who died unmarried; Frances, wife of William, Lord Howard, of Escrick; Magdalen, wife of William Wynde, Esq; and Anne, unmarried, 1682; 5. Richard Bridgeman, a merchant, in Amsterdam in Holland, who married Catherine, daughter of Mr. Watson, an English merchant there, by whom he had issue a daughter, Elizabeth, married to John Dove, Esq; surveyor of the customs; and one son, William Bridgeman, of Westminster, Esq; some time secretary of the admiralty, and one of the clerks of the privy-council, who married Diana, daughter of Mr. Vernatti, an Italian gentleman, and had issue, Orlando Bridgeman, Esq; and Catherine, wife of Orlando Bridgeman, Esq; fourth son of Sir John, hereafter mentioned.

Sir Orlando Bridgeman, Knt. eldest son of the bishop, was, for his great proficiency in the law, made attorney of the court of wards, temp. Car. I. also attorney to the prince of Wales; (afterwards King Charles II.) and a person, of whom my Lord Clarendon, in his history, makes honourable mention upon several occasions: and being greatly confided in by the royal martyr, was one of the commissioners deputed by him to treat with those of the parliament at Uxbridge; and as long as the city of Chester held out for the King, he encouraged and supported the loyalists with several sums of money; and gave several sums to purchase tithes where churches were not, as he thought, sufficiently endowed; and large sums to other charitable uses, and redeeming poor captives from slavery. Upon the restoration of King Charles II. as a farther reward for his merit, he was made Lord chief-baron of the Exchequer; then Lord chief-justice of the Common-pleas; and lastly, Lord-keeper of the great seal of England, and created a Baronet. He married, first, Judith, daughter and heir of John Kynaston, of Morton in Shropshire, Esq; (she died at Oxford, in the usurpation, and was buried in the university church.) By her he left issue only one son, Sir John, his successor. He married to his second wife, Dorothy, daughter of Dr. Saunders, provost of Oriel college in Oxford, (relict of George Cradock, of Carlwell castle in Staffordshire, Esq;) by whom he had issue, two sons sons and one daughter; 1. Sir Orlando Bridgeman, who being possessed of Ridley in Cheshire, by purchase from the Egertons of that place, (a knightly branch of the Egertons, of Egerton) was created a Baronet 25 Car. II. 2. Sir Francis Bridgeman, knighted by King Charles II. Nov. 15, 1673, who married Sufanna, daughter and heir of Sir Richard Barker, of London, Knt. M. D. and died issueless; and 3. Charlotte, married to Sir Thomas Myddleton, of Chirk castle in Denbighshire, Bart. by whom he left issue, only one daughter and heir, Charlotte, married to Edward, late earl of Warwick and Holland. Sir Orlando died, June 25, 1674, aged sixty-six, at Teddington in Middlesex, and there lies buried.

Sir John Bridgeman, Bart. the only son by the first venter, succeeded his father. He married Mary, daughter and coheir of George Cradock, of Carlswell castle in Staffordshire, Esq; above-mentioned, by whom he had issue, five sons and seven daughters; Orlando, the eldest, and Thomas, the youngest, both died very young; and the second son was Sir John, his successor; 3. George, who died unmarried; and 4. Orlando, who married Catherine, daughter of William Bridgeman, of Comb in Suffolk, Esq; and died without issue: the daughters were, 1. Mary, married to Robert Lloyd, of Aston in Shropshire, Esq; 2. Judith, married to Richard Corbet, of Morton-Corbet in Shropshire, Esq; 3. Elizabeth, married to Sowdly Eyton, of Eyton, on the Wildmores in Shropshire, Esq; 4. Dorothy, married to Lisle Hacket, of Moxhull in Warwickshire, Esq; 5. Charlotte; 6. Bridget; and 7. Penelope. He died at Castle-Bromwich, Aug. 24, 1710, æt. eighty, and was buried at Aston in Warwickshire.

Sir John Bridgeman, his second, but eldest surviving son, married Ursula, daughter and sole heir of Roger Matthews, of Blodwell in Shropshire, Esq; by whom he has had issue, five sons and two daughters. 1. Sir Orlando, his successor; 2. John, who died in his infancy; 3. Roger; 4. John; 5. George, who died young. The daughters were Ursula, married to Hugh Williams, Esq; and Judith. Sir John died July 23, 1747.

Sir Orlando Bridgeman, Bart. his eldest son and heir, succeeded him, and married Anne, daughter of Richard earl of Bradford. By this lady, who is since dead, he had issue John, who died young; Sir Henry, his successor; George, who died at Lisbon in Dec. 1767, unmarried; Mary, who died in her infancy, and Diana. He was chosen representative for the town of Shrewsbury, and dying July 25, 1764, was succeeded by his eldest surviving son, Sir Henry Bridgeman, who is the present Baronet. He married July 18, 1755, Miss Simpson, by whom he had issue three sons.

136. PALMER, of Carlton, Northamptonshire.

Created BARONET, June 7, 1660.

THIS family was originally seated at Holt, and Stonistanton in Leicestershire.

In 9 Hen. IV. William Palmer, Esq; a person very eminent in the knowledge of the law, became possessed of one moiety of Carlton in Northamptonshire; and, by marriage with Amy, the daughter and heir of Nicholas Ward, Esq; owner of the other moiety, called East-hall, obtained the whole. He was succeeded by John Palmer, Esq; his son and heir, who married ——— Kinsman, and had issue, William, who married ——— Frances: he had issue, John, who died unmarried, 1 Hen. VIII. and was succeeded by his brother Thomas Palmer, of Carlton, Esq; who married Catherine, daughter of ——— Conyers, of the North, Esq; by whom he had issue,

William Palmer, Esq; who married Anne, daughter of Thomas Lovet, of Ashwell in Northamptonshire, Esq; and had issue by her, Geoffrey Palmer, Esq; son and heir, also a son called Thomas, slain at Bulloign in France; which Geoffrey married Bridget, daughter of Sir Thomas Foulhurst, of Crew in Cheshire, Knight; and by her had Thomas Palmer, Esq; who married Catherine, the daughter of Sir Edward Watson, of Rockingham, Knt. sister to the first Lord Rockingham, and by her had issue, Mary, married to Alexander Noel, Esq; a younger son of Sir Andrew Noel, of Dalby, Knt. and brother to Edward, viscount Campden, and

Sir Geoffrey Palmer, Knight, advanced to the dignity of a Baronet, soon after the restoration. He, at first, was a manager against the Earl of Strafford, but lost all his credit and interest with that party, and never recovered it, for using a decency and modesty in his carriage and language towards him; though the weight of his arguments pressed more upon the Earl, than the noise of all the rest. He was, says my Lord Clarendon, ‘A ‘ man of great reputation, and much esteemed in the House of ‘ Commons; and in the debate about the remonstrance, his ‘ speech not being agreeable to the prevailing party in the House,

 ‘ he was committed to the Tower, they having borne him a ‘ long grudge, for the civility he shewed in the prosecution of
 ‘ the Earl of Strafford; but he was in a few days enlarged, and ‘ returned again to the House,’ and did his Majesty great service, and was one of the commissioners appointed by his Majesty, at the treaty of Uxbridge. He was afterwards attorney-general to King Charles II. Ant. Wood says of him: ‘He ‘ was chosen a burgess for Stamford in Lincolnshire, to sit in ‘ that parliament, which began Nov. 3, 1640, wherein he was ‘ a manager of the evidence against Thomas, Earl of Strafford,
 ‘ and seemed to be an enemy to the prerogative. But afterwards, perceiving full well what mad courses the members of ‘ the said parliament took, he boldly delivered his mind against ‘ printing of that declaration, called, the Grand Remonstrance;
 ‘ for which he was committed to custody in Nov. 1642; afterwards being freed thence, he retired to Oxon, sat in the parliament there, and was esteemed a loyal and able person in ‘ his profession. Upon the declining of the king’s cause, he ‘ suffered, as other royalists did, lived obscurely in England,
 ‘ and upon pretence of plotting with the cavaliers against Oliver the Protector, he was imprisoned in the Tower of London, ‘ in the month of May, 1655. On the 31st of May, 1660, his ‘ Majesty being then restored, he was made attorney-general,
 ‘ and about that time chief-justice of Chester, and a Knight;
 ‘ and on the 7th of June following, he was created a Baronet.’ He died at Hampstead in Middlesex, May 5, anno 1670, aged seventy-two; and having lain in state in the hall of the Middle-Temple, attended by the heralds at arms, was from thence conveyed in a hearse, followed by a great train of coaches of the nobility, the judges, and others, through the town unto Carlton, aforesaid, and there interred amongst his ancestors, in the family vault within the parish church.

He married Margaret, daughter of Sir Francis Moore, of Fawley in Berks, Knt. serjeant at law, (who died May 16, 1655, aged forty-seven) and left issue by her, four sons and two daughters; Thomas, the eldest son, died young; 2. Sir Lewis, his successor; 3. Geoffrey, who died unmarried; 4. Edward, who married Alice, daughter and heir of Edmond Pitt, of Harrow on the Hill in Middlesex, Esq; by whom he had no issue; she surviving him, was re-married to Sir James Rushout, Bart. ambassador to the Grand Signor. Elizabeth, eldest daughter, married Edward Palmer, of Stoke-Doyley in Northamptonshire, Esq; (and left issue, sons and daughters) Frances, the youngest daughter, married John de la Fountaine, Esq; son and heir apparent of Sir Erasmus de la Fountaine, of Kirby-Bellers in Leicestershire, Knt. relict of Henry Harpur, Esq; son and heir of Sir John Harpur, of Swarkston in Derbyshire, Knight.

Sir Lewis Palmer, Bart. eldest surviving son and successor to his father, married Jane, daughter and coheir of Robert Palmer, of Carlton-Scroop in Lincolnshire, Esq; and left issue by her, two sons and four daughters; Sir Geoffrey, his successor; Robert, who married Hester, daughter of Sir Francis Lawley, of Canwal in Staffordshire, Bart. and died 1724, leaving Sir Thomas Palmer, Bart. hereafter mentioned, successor to his uncle. Margaret married to Talmash Duke, Esq; of Bently in Suffolk; Elianor, Elizabeth, and Jane.

Sir Geoffrey Palmer, Bart. son and heir of Sir Lewis, was one of the Knights for the county of Leicester, for four successive parliaments, three in the reign of Queen Anne, and in the first parliament of King George I. and married Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of Thomas Grantham, of Goltho in Lincolnshire, Esq; (by Frances, daughter and coheir of Sir George Wentworth, of Wolley in Yorkshire, Knt.) but dying, Dec. 29, 1732, without issue, was succeeded in honour and estate by his nephew,

Sir Thomas Palmer, Bart. (eldest son of Robert before mentioned) who was elected Knight of the Shire for the county of Leicester in 1754 and 1761. He married Jemima, eldest daughter of Sir John Harpur, Bart. by whom he had two sons and two daughters. 1. Thomas, who died in his father's life-time, unmarried. 2. Sir John, his successor. Catherine, now living and unmarried; and Elizabeth-Jemima, who married in June, 1757, to George Medley, of Buxted-place in the county of Suffex, Esq; but died soon afterwards. Sir Thomas died June 14, 1765, and his lady some time before him.

138. A D A M S, of London.

Created BARONET, June 13, 1660.

THE first Baronet of this family was, Sir Thomas Adams, Knight, son of Thomas Adams, of Wem in Salop. He was sheriff of the city of London, 1639, and lord-mayor, 1646, and a great sufferer for the royal cause, having his house searched, and himself pulled out of bed by the heels by the rebels, looking for King Charles I. and sent to the Tower of London; and though, after the death of King Charles I. the city of London was forced to comply with the government that was then set up by a mighty hand, yet, for the lasting memory of

of the city's steadfastness to the ancient kingly government, and to the maintenance of the English freedom, the mayor, and several of the aldermen, utterly refused to publish an act made by the commons, soon after the said King's death, intitled, 'An act for the exheredation of the royal line, the abolishment of monarchy in the kingdom, and the setting up of a common wealth.' These that so refused, were, Sir Abraham Reinardson, mayor; Thomas Adams, (the person we are now to treat of) John Langham, (ancestor to the late Sir John Langham, Bart.) and James Bunce, alderman. For which, the mayor was put out of his mayoralty, and he, with those aldermen, committed to the Tower. In April following, the three aldermen were to be brought to the bar of the then governing Lords: which they hearing of, bravely and stoutly, as good citizens and true Englishmen, refused their authority; and signified to the lieutenant of the Tower, that they would not obey his order to bring them before the bar of that house, declaring their firm resolution to stand for the defence of the established laws of the land, and their protestation against the Lords jurisdiction over them, or any other commoners in criminal cases: with an appeal from the said Lords, to their proper and competent judges, i. e. a jury of their equals, and judges sworn to proceed according to the known laws of England.

Sir Thomas, having been a person of unspotted loyalty and affection to his exiled prince, to whom he had, in those perilous times, remitted 10,000*l.* and being also (though seventy-two years of age) deputed by the city to go to Breda in Holland, with general Monk, to attend his sovereign home to his realms; he was, in consideration thereof, by that King, (having first been knighted) a few days after his restoration, advanced to the dignity of a Baronet. A person that knew him well, for more than twenty years, has given this account of him. 'He was eminent for religion and devotion; that orthodox religion, which is professed by the church of England, he faithfully adhered to, cordially owning her doctrine and discipline, hierarchy and liturgy; and though he lived in an inconstant age, (wherein it was the mode to change religion, as women do fashions) he proved not a reed or a willow, but an oak, steadfast and immoveable. Great was his respect to the orthodox clergy; those who were sufferers, he charitably relieved; those who were labourers, he bountifully encouraged. Schismatical conventicles he abhorred, but duly frequented the church assemblies. He was a strenuous assertor of monarchical government, and was among the number of the mourners for all the abominations which were committed, and especially for that execrable treason, in murdering the father, and banishing the son. Upon account of his loyalty to Charles I. when lord-mayor, his house was searched by the rebels then in power, supposing there to have found the King. The year after he was cast into the Tower, and there kept a prisoner, and for several years put by all public offices and employments. Upon the account of his loyalty to Charles II. during his exile, he hazarded his estate and life, by sending him considerable sums of money beyond sea; and when the time came of his joyful return to his throne, though he was in the seventy-third year of his age, he crossed the sea to attend his Sovereign home. He was of so public a spirit, that when his son-in-law brought him the news of his being chosen the sheriff of London, he immediately dismissed the business he was about, and never after personally followed his trade, but gave himself up to the city concerns. It was his study to know the customs and usages, the liberties and privileges of the city, and accordingly, his endeavour in his several capacities, to preserve and maintain them. Whatsoever honour in the city he was capable of he was chosen to; master of his company, alderman of a ward, president of St. Thomas's hospital, several times burgesses in parliament, (though the iniquity of the times would not permit him to sit) sheriff, and lord-mayor; after which, he at length became, and so continued many years, the father of the city; nor had he only all this honour from the city, but his King also gave him the greatest honour he was capable of in his station, making him not only a Knight, but a Baronet. He was not only in word, but in deed, an assistant, a guardian, yea, a pillar of the company of Drapers. He was a vigilant president of St. Thomas's hospital, which probably had been ruined, but that his sagacity and industry discovered the fraud of an unjust steward. In the court of aldermen he was as an oracle, very subservient by his grave and prudent counsels to the city's government. He was so far from self-seeking, that when he was lord-mayor, he did not make those advantages (which usually are) by selling vacant places. Whilst a private tradesman, he was exact in commutative justice, in his bargains and contracts of buying and selling; and when a public magistrate, he was no less conscientious of distributive justice between man and man. He built and endowed a free school with a considerable maintenance, for the education of children at Wem in Shropshire, where he received his first breath. He erected an Arabick lecture at Cambridge, and settled upon the lecturer 40*l.* per ann. for his pains in reading it, to be paid by the Drapers company, for ever. He was at the charge of printing the Persian gospels, and transmitting them into those parts, to promote the Chris* tian religion, and (to use his own language) throwing a * stone at the forehead of Mahomet, that grand impostor. Thus

 * he was serviceable in his generation, to the will of God, ho* nour of Christ, welfare of the city, benefit of country and * university; nor was he wanting to serve the poor, neither by * his charity; his hands were frequently opened whilst he lived,
 * upon all occasions; and notwithstanding many late great da* mages to his estate, he hath given considerable legacies to the * poor of several parishes, to hospitals, to ministers widows, and * such like, at his death. The latter years of his life have been
 * years of pain to him, by reason of that disease of the stone in
 * the bladder, whereof he at last died.' He married Anne, daughter of Humphry Mapsted, of Trenton in Essex, (she died Jan. 11, 1641) and had five sons, who all died, S. P. except Sir William, his successor; he had also four daughters, Margaret, married to Edward Clagget, of London, Esq; one who died young, Anne, married to Edward Pulton, of London, merchant, and Elizabeth, the wife of William Christmas, of London, merchant. Sir Thomas died father of the city, and president of St. Thomas's hospital, Feb. 24, 1667, aged eighty-one, occasioned by a fall, stepping out of his coach, which forced the stone down, and stopped the urinal passages, and killed him; which, when taken out of his bladder, weighed twenty-five ounces, having been growing forty years, and is now in the laboratory at Cambridge: he lies buried at Sprowston in Norfolk, which estate he purchased. He was succeeded in dignity and estate by his eldest surviving son,

Sir William Adams, Bart. who married Anne, daughter of John Rushout, Esq; sister to Sir James Rushout, of Northwick in Worcester-shire, Bart. by whom he had nine sons and one daughter; 1. William, who died in the life-time of his father, leaving issue by Mary, daughter of Sir John Maynard, of Iselham in Cambridgeshire, Knt. relict of Francis Buller, of Chillingham in Cornwall, Esq; (who afterwards married to her fourth husband Sir Rushout Cullen, of Upton in Warwickshire, Bart.) one daughter and heir, Jane, married to Sir Erasmus Norwich, of Brampton in Northamptonshire, Bart. 2.
 Sir Thomas, successor to his father; 3. John, who died unmarried; 4. Francis, who was in the army, and died unmarried; the fifth son died young; 6. Sir Charles, successor to his brother; the seventh son died young; 8. Sir Robert, successor to his brother Sir Charles; 9. Thomas, who died young. Sir William married to his second lady, Jane, daughter of — Burnet, relict of alderman Allington, of London, by whom he had no issue, and dying 1687, was succeeded by his eldest surviving son,

Sir Thomas Adams, Bart. who died unmarried, Aug. 1690, whereupon his brother,

Sir Charles Adams, Bart. late of Sprowston-hall in Norfolk, (sixth son of Sir William) became his successor: he married Frances, one of the six daughters of Sir Francis Rolle, Knt. (by Priscilla, daughter of Sir Thomas Foote, Knt. alderman of London) son of the Lord chief-justice Rolle; but dying without issue, Aug. 12, 1726, was buried at Ealing in Middlesex, being succeeded by his only surviving brother,

Sir Robert Adams, Bart. who, before the title came to him, was, for nine years, solicitor for the city of London: he married, first, Dorothea, grand-daughter of Colonel Claggett, and daughter of one of the coheirs of Peircy Wiseman, Esq; (a branch of the ancient family of the Wisemans, of Essex) who died Feb. 1725-6, leaving no issue; secondly, a Northamptonshire gentlewoman, by whom he had two sons, Thomas and William.

Sir Thomas Adams, his eldest son, succeeded him, who is the present Baronet; and, being brought up to the sea, was, on the 17th of August, 1760, appointed a Captain of his Majesty's navy, and commanded several different ships in the last war with bravery and conduct.

140. STAPYLTON, of Myton, Yorkshire.

Created BARONET, June 22, 1660.

THIS family is of great note and antiquity, several of its ancestors having been in the earliest times summoned among the barons to parliament, and been honoured with that most noble order of knighthood, the garter, at and soon after the institution thereof. They take their name from Stapilton, upon the river Teys; and they are very frequently mentioned in old deeds, as witnesses, and considerable benefactors to several priories in the county of York, and other places.

A. D. 1159, i. e. about the sixth of Henry II. I find Robert de Stapleton, among the witnesses to a charter of Henry de Lascy, Baron of Pontefract, wherein the said Henry confirms to that church, and the monks of Pontefract, with other matters, the church of Dardington, with the chapel of Stapilton.

And the same Robert, 33 Hen. II. was a benefactor to the priory of Monks-Bretton in Yorkshire, and gave them terram de Chudecerda, as recited in a confirmation-charter to that priory, made by pope Urban III. 1186.

In the seventeenth, John-Nicholas de Stapilton, was governor of Middleham-Castle, the same, doubtless, who is called the son of Gaffry de Stapilton, in a charter of the King's, dated 12 Henry III. unto the abbey of Jorvaulx, confirming their possessions.

The next is, of Roger, and Robert de Stapilton, witnesses to a deed of Clementia de Lungvillers, widow, granting and confirming to the monks of Pontefract, the advowson of the church of Silkston, dated at York, 22 Hen. III. This Roger was justice of assize in 25 Hen. III.

Robert, aforesaid, was afterwards a Knight, and is mentioned amongst the witnesses to a deed of John Giffard's, Lord of Brimsfield, granting lands to Gloucester-hall, in the city of Oxon.

After him, was another Nicholas de Stapilton, one of the justices of the Common-pleas, 1 Ed. I. and one of the justices itinerant in the third year of that King's reign, for the county of Worcester, and in the sixteenth, for the county of Dorset.

About this time likewise, was William de Stapilton, noted in a charter of Richard, the son of Ulf, of Doddewrda, whereby Richard granted to the monastery of Pontefract all his tenants, or men, in Doddewrda.

By their pedigree, they descend from Herman, Lord of Stapilton upon Teys, who was father of Allan, Lord of Stapleton, or Stapylton; which Allan, by the daughter of John, of Tanfield, had issue, Sir John Stapilton, Knight, Lord of Stapleton, who was comptroller of the household to King Stephen; and by Joan, daughter of Sir — Mallory, Knt. became father of Sir Miles, who, in his return from the Holy Land, married Penrodas, daughter to the king of Cyprus: he had issue by her, Allan, who, by Anne, daughter of Robert Nevile, was father of Sir Bryan, who married a daughter of Sir Henry Fitz-Henry: John Stapilton, his son, by Catherine, daughter of Sir Miles Hansford, Knt. had issue, Sir Miles Stapilton, Knt. who was in the wars of Gascoigne, and had summons to parliament, among the Barons, 6 and 7 Edw. II. his wife was, Barbara, daughter of Sir John Darrel, Knt. by whom he had, Sir Miles de Stapilton, Knt. who married the daughter and coheir of John de Bella Aqua, or Bellew, by Loderina his wife, fourth sister and coheir of Peter Bruce, the fifth Baron of Skelton-Castle in Cleveland.

To him succeeded his son and heir, another Sir Miles, who was summoned as a Baron of parliament, 1312, and died 8 Ed. II. having had issue, by Elizabeth his wife, daughter and sole heir of John de Richmond, (who brought the manor of Kirkby-Fleatham into this family) three sons, viz. Nicholas, Sir Miles, and Gilbert, of whom hereafter.

Nicholas was a Baron of parliament, 16 Edw. III. and died 17 Edw. III. leaving issue, Sir Miles, who was high-sheriff of Yorkshire, from the 29th to the 33d of Edw. III. but he, by his wife, the daughter of Vavasor, left only a son, Thomas, who dying issueless, Metham became his heir, in right of his wife, the sister of the said Thomas.

Sir Miles, the second son, married Cicely, daughter of Sir Robert Ufford, and of him proceeded Sir Miles, one of the Knights of the order of the garter at its first institution; of whom Mr. Ashmole has given the following account:

This Sir Miles had first employment in the wars, when King Edward III. made his expedition into Britany, and attended that King in his voyage royal. 20 Edw. III. he was at the siege of Calais. 29 Edw. III. in the King's service beyond sea, 30 Edw. III. with Philip, brother to the King of Navarre, (which Philip, craving assistance from the English for recovery of his lands) the King joined this Sir Miles in his aid; a man of great integrity, and skilful in military affairs, saith Froissard; and these two, with 2000 men, passed through Normandy, burning and taking several towns and fortresses, till within nine leagues of Paris, and forced the French (Philip's enemy) to a truce.

For this heroic act he had 100*l. per Annum* out of the Exchequer, till the King should settle upon him an equivalent value, in lands and rents.

Upon the infringement of the truce, he was constituted one of the commissioners to enquire about the same, and punish the violaters according to their demerits: and having married Joane, daughter and heir of Sir Oliver Ingham, he died 38 Edw. III. and was buried at Ingham, a religious house founded by his wife's ancestors; where also lies buried, his son and heir, Sir Miles, (under age at his father's death) the custody of whose lands was granted to the following Sir Bryan Stapilton, Knt. and unto John and Roger de Boys, until his maturity, which he not long after attained, being a Knight 10 Hen. IV. Several of his descendants lie also buried at Ingham.

But to return: Gilbert, the third son of Sir Miles, by the heir of Richmond, married Agnes, the eldest daughter and co-heir to Bryan Fitz-Alan, Baron of Bedal, the heir-general of Hagget, and had issue,

Sir Bryan Stapilton, of Carleton, Knt. living 49 Edw. III. and one of the knights of the garter, temp. Rich. II. the seventy-seventh in numerical order, who bore an annulet of gold on the shoulder of his lion, as an armorial difference. This Sir Bryan is said to have killed a Saracen in open battle, in the presence of the Kings of England, France, and Scotland.—He inherited a great estate, in his mother's right; and having to wife Alice, daughter of Sir John St. Philibert, Knt. had issue, Sir Bryan, who, by Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Sir William Aldborow, Knt. had two sons, viz. 1. Sir Bryan, commonly called junior, in respect of his father, ancestor to the Stapiltons, of Carleton, and 2. Sir Miles.

Sir Miles, last named, married Joan, widow and relict of William Brechnells, and daughter and coheir of Sir Gerard Ufflet, of Wighill, in the Aynsty of York city; and in her right, was seized of Wighill, Esedike, Swanland, lands upon Hull banks, and in other places.

To him succeeded Sir John, his son and heir, who died 33 Henry VI. but, by Margaret, daughter of — Norton, of Norton-Conyers, Esq; was father of Sir William, who, by Margaret, daughter of Sir James Pickering, Knt. was father to Sir Bryan, all Lords of Wighill, their patrimonial inheritance.

Sir Bryan Stapilton, of Wighill, Knt. son and heir, married Jane, daughter of Sir Lancelot Thirkeld, Knt. and had issue by her, seven sons and four daughters, viz. Christopher, Bryan, Lancelot, Miles, William, Richard, and Robert; Elizabeth, wife to Robert Saltmarsh, Esq; Jane, to Robert Conyers, of Hooton Paynel, Esq; Eleanor, to Thomas Wharton, of Healaugh, Esq; afterwards created Baron Wharton, from whom descended the late duke; and Margaret, to John Copley, of Hotham, Esq.

Christopher Stapilton, of Wighill, Esq; son and heir to Sir Bryan, married two wives; first, Alice, daughter to William Ask, of Ask, Esq; by whom he had issue two sons, Bryan and Sir Robert, and three daughters, Anne, wife to John Irton, of Irton; Isabel, to John Lamplugh; and -----, to Henry Hamilton, Esqrs; his second wife was, Margaret, daughter to Sir John Nevile, of Liversedge in Yorkshire, Knt. but by her he had no issue.

Bryan Stapilton, Esq; succeeded his father, Christopher, and married Margery, daughter to Sir John Constable, of Hailsham, Knt. but dying without issue, his brother, Sir Robert, was his heir.

This Sir Robert, Lord of Wighill, by Elizabeth his wife, daughter to Sir William Mallory, of Studley in Yorkshire, Knt. had issue two daughters; Elizabeth, wife of Bryan Hammond,

of Scarthingwell; and Bridget, of John Norton, Esqrs; and a son, Robert; this lady, Elizabeth, surviving her husband, Sir Robert, was espoused afterwards to Marmaduke Slyngesby, Esq;

Sir Robert Stapilton, Knt. succeeded in his father's patrimony, and having received the honour of knighthood, was high sheriff of Yorkshire, 23 Eliz. and met the judges, with seven score men, in suitable liveries. He lived in great hospitality and esteem. An author, who seems not over favourable to his memory, speaks of him, as a man well spoken, properly seen in languages, a comely and goodly personage, had scarce an equal, and next Sir Philip Sydney, no superior in England.

This Sir Robert married twice; his first lady was, Catherine, daughter to Sir Marmaduke Constable, of Everingham, Knt. by whom he had issue, four children, viz. Henry, Philip, Jane, wife to Christopher Wyvill, Esq; and Dorothy; whereof, Henry succeeded his father, at Wighill, where his line yet continues; a younger branch of which was, Sir Philip Stapilton, who purchased Warter in the Woulds, in the East-riding, and was one of the five members of parliament King Charles I. went to the House of Commons to demand, and was very eminent for his personal valour in former rebellious wars; his extraordinary valour, and boldness of spirit, may be conjectured by his attempt to cope singly with prince Rupert; but afterwards, discerning Cromwell's influence upon the army, he so resolutely opposed their designs, that he was one of eleven members, against whom charges were exhibited; and my Lord Clarendon mentions them, as men of parts, interest, and signal courage, and heartily abhorred the intentions which they discerned the army to have: he afterwards went beyond sea, and dying at Calais, in August, 1647, was denied burial, upon imagination that he was infected with the plague.

To return: The famous Sir Robert Stapilton, of Wighill, Knt. had to his second wife, Olive, daughter and coheir to Sir Henry Sherrington, of Lacock in Wiltshire, Knt. relict of John Talbot, of Salwarp in Worcestershire, Esq; by whom he had issue, five children, Bryan, and Edward, Olive, wife to Sir Robert Dynely, of Bramhope in Yorkshire, Knt. Ursula, to Sir Robert Baynard, of — in Wiltshire, Knt. and Grace.

Bryan Stapilton, Esq; eldest son of Sir Robert, by this venter, was receiver to King Charles I. and settled himself at Myton, near Borrough-bridge in Yorkshire; and marrying Frances, daughter to Sir Henry Slingesby, of Scriven, Knt. and sister to the first Baronet of that family, the noted Sir Henry, who lost his head for the royal cause; he had issue, three sons and three daughters, Henry, Robert, and Miles, who, by Elizabeth, daughdaughter of Mr. Hynde, of London, left issue; the daughters were, Oliva, married, first, to Sir William Vavasor, of Copmanthorp in Yorkshire, Bart. major-general to the King of Sweden, and killed at the siege of Copenhagen, 1658; and secondly, to Richard Topham, Esq; Frances, married to John Hutton, of Marske in Yorkshire, Esq; and Ursula, wife of Thomas Pepys, of Hatcham-barnes in Surry, Esq;

Sir Henry Stapilton, of Myton, his son and heir, was advanced to the dignity of a Baronet, 12 Car. II. 1660; and by his lady, Elizabeth, daughter of Conyers, Lord Darcy, and Conyers, afterwards created Earl of Holderness, he had only one son and heir,

Sir Bryan Stapilton, Bart. his successor in dignity and estate, who, by his wife Anne, daughter of Sir John Kaye, of Woodsome in Yorkshire, Bart. had issue, Henry, Bryan, Miles, and Brian, who all died young; Sir John, his successor, and one daughter, Anne. Sir Bryan, died Nov. 1727, (and his lady, March 1, 1729-30) and was succeeded in dignity and estate by his only surviving son,

Sir John Stapilton, Bart. who married Mary, daughter and heir of Francis Sandys, of Scroby in Nottingham, Esq; by whom he had seven sons; Sir Miles, his successor; Bryan, the successor of Sir Miles; John, Martin, Christopher, Francis, and Henry; besides daughters. This Sir John was nominated as a candidate to represent the county of York, but died before the election came on, Oct. 24, 1733, and was succeeded in dignity and estate by his eldest son,

Sir Miles Stapilton, Bart. who was heir-general of Bellew Bruce, baron of Skelton, Richmond, (of the house of the earl of Britanny) Fitz-Alan, baron of Bedal, Hagget, Ufflet, and Sherrington, who, on his father's decease, was nominated as a candidate for the county of York, and elected their representative in parliament: he married, 1738, a daughter of Edmond Waller, of High-barn, near Beconsfield in Buckinghamshire, Esq; he died May 14, 1752, without male issue, and was succeeded by his brother,

143. HILDYARD, of Pattrington, Yorkſhire,

Created BARONET, June 25, 1660.

THIS family is of great antiquity, and ſaid to be of Saxon extraction. (The name in the old German language ſignifies a perſon of a noble or generous diſpoſition) and that it ſprung from one Hildegardis.

The firſt we find mentioned in their pedigree is, Robert Hildyard, of Normanby, Eſq; who was living 10 Hen. I. 1109. He married the daughter of Sir John Kyrton, Knt. and had iſſue, Edmond Hildyard, ſteward to William Dabiguenaye, firſt earl of Arundel, and took part with Maud, the empreſs, againſt King Stephen. By his wife Agnes, daughter of John Langvell, Eſq; was father of Robert, living 4 Hen. II. who had two wives, firſt, Anne, daughter of John Iſney, alias Diſney, of Norton-Diſney, by whom he had iſſue, Robert, John, Richard, and Anne. His ſecond wife was Elianor, daughter of Thomas Sainton, of Sainton, Eſq; by whom he had no iſſue.

Sir Robert Hildyard, Knt. his ſon and heir, living temp. Rich. I. married the daughter of Sir Thomas Halley, of Wyam, Knt. by whom he had iſſue, Robert, living temp. Ed. I. who, by the daughter of the Lord Delawar, had two ſons, 1. Peter, of Arnall; 2. Robert, of Riſton, whoſe male iſſue failed.

Peter, the eldeſt ſon and heir, married the daughter of Sir John de Meſſa, Knt. by whom he was father of Robert, who had two wives; firſt, Adaline, the daughter of ----- Lovell, by whom he had no iſſue: his ſecond wife was Iſabella, daughter and coheir of Sir Robert Hilton, Knt. Lord of Swine and Wineſtead, by whom he had large poſſeſſions, and a ſon, Sir Robert, Knt. who was killed at the battle of Towton, 1 Edw. IV. being a commander in that battle, for the houſe of Lancaſter. He likewiſe had two wives; firſt, Agnes, daughter of ----- Francis, relict of Sir Richard Middleton, Knt. by whom he had no iſſue: his ſecond wife was, Catherine, ſecond daughter of Sir Thomas de la Haye, of Spaldington, by whom he had,

Sir Robert Hildyard, Knt. who was a perſon of great note, in the reigns of Henry VI. Edward IV. and Richard III. and was commonly called Robin, of Riddefdale. About the ninth year of Edw. IV. he, together with Sir John Conyers, and others, headed an insurrection in the north, made in favour of the Lancastrians, to the number of twenty thousand men, who, meeting the earl of Pembroke at the head of eighteen thousand Welchmen, at a place called Danes-More, near Edgecote, (three miles from Banbury) in Northamptonshire, entirely defeated them, with the slaughter of five thousand men, taking the said earl and his brother, Richard, prisoners, who, being carried to Northampton, were there, (together with Richard Woodville, earl of Rivers, father of King Edward's Queen, and John, his son) beheaded, by the command of George, duke of Clarence, and Neville, earl of Warwick, who, both of them, not long before, had revolted from King Edward to the Lancastrians.

But after the establishment of the house of York, it seems that he adhered firmly to that family; since we find him employed to conduct five thousand men out of the north, to support the coronation of Richard III. at which coronation he received the honour of knighthood. His wife was, Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Sir John Hastings, Knt. (and Anne, his wife, daughter of William, Lord Morley) by whom he had a numerous progeny; whereof Anthony, the youngest son, was a Knight of Rhodes.

Peter Hildyard, Esq; his eldest son, living temp. Hen. VII. married Joan, second daughter and coheir of Sir Martin del See, of Barneston, Knt. by whom, he was father of Sir Christopher Hildyard, Knt. Lord of Winestead, temp. Hen. VIII. who took to his first wife, Margaret, daughter of Sir Humphry Coningsby, of Aldenham in Hertfordshire, Knt. one of the justices of the King's Bench, and left Martyn Hildyard, Esq; his son and heir.

Sir Christopher Hildyard had to his second wife, Joan, daughter of Ralph Constable, of Halsham in Yorkshire, Esq; ancestor to the viscounts Dunbar; from which match he had Christopher Hildyard, A. M. chaplain to the Earl De Loraine, and rector of Rowley in Yorkshire, who left two sons, Christopher and Robert.

This Sir Christopher died 29 Hen. VIII. and lies buried under a fine monument in Winestead church.

Martin Hildyard, of Winestead, Esq; son and heir of Sir Christopher, married Emma, daughter of Sir John Rudston, of London, Knt. by whom he had four sons; 1. Christopher; 2. Richard, (who married Jane, daughter and sole heir of Marmaduke Twenge, Esq; and had issue, Sir Christopher, his son and heir, of whom hereafter) 3. John, (father of Richard, who who married the daughter of Robert Constable, of Catfess, and had issue a daughter, Mary, married to Hugh Bethell, of Rise, Esq; grandfather to Hugh Bethell, Esq; and a son, John, who was a major of a regiment of horse in the service of King Charles I. and father of Francis Hildyard, of York, who died August, 1731, leaving John, and other children) William, the fourth son of Martin, died without issue.

Sir Christopher Hildyard, of Winestead, Knt. (son and heir of Martin) was living 1578. He married Frances, daughter of Sir John Constable, of Burton in Yorkshire, Knt. and had issue, William, his only son, who was drowned when young, in a mote that went round the mansion-house; and Elizabeth, married to William, eldest son of Charles, Lord Willoughby, of Parham. This Sir Christopher died July 23, 1602, and lies buried under a noble monument in Winestead church.

The elder branch of this family becoming extinct, on the death of the last Sir Christopher, without issue-male, the line was continued by,

Sir Christopher Hildyard, Knt. (son of Richard, second son of Martin, before-mentioned, and heir-male to the last Sir Christopher) who married Elizabeth, daughter and sole heir of Henry Welby, of Goxhill in Lincolnshire, Esq; and had issue, Christopher, Henry, Sir Robert, Christopher; and six daughters.

Henry Hildyard, Esq; of Winestead, and of East-Horsley in Surry, eldest surviving son and heir, suffered very much for his loyalty to King Charles I. He married Anne, eldest daughter of Francis, earl of Scarfdale; by whom he had issue, Henry, Charles, Edward, Philip, and several daughters. Henry, the eldest son, seated himself at Kelsterne, in the county of Lincoln, having sold the ancient mansion-house and manor of Winestead, to his uncle, Sir Robert Hildyard, Bart. He went over with the duke of Monmouth, who was sent with auxiliaries from King Charles II. to Lewis XIV. of France, and served under him in the command of a company of foot, at the famous siege of Maestricht; and afterwards raised and commanded a troop of horse for King James II. having embraced the Roman catholic religion, through the persuasions of Obediah Walker, who had been tutor to him in his travels: he married two wives, 1. Dorothy, daughter of Vincent Grantham, of Goltho, in the county of Lincoln, Esq; by whom he had one son, Christopher, and a daughter, Anne, who died unmarried; which Christopher married Jane, daughter of George Pitt, of Stratfield-sea, in the county of Hampshire, Esq; and by her left four daughters only. Henry married to his second wife, Elizabeth, daughter of John Hilder, Esq; whom he also survived, and left issue by her,

Francis, Thomas, and Michael; 2. Charles; and 3. Edward, who was a barrister at law, of the Inner-Temple, died without issue; 4. Philip, who was of East-Horsley in Surry, and one of the chamberlains of the Exchequer: he married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Francis Vincent, of Stoke-Dabernon in Surry, Bart. and died 1692, and was buried in the Temple church, leaving issue, Henry and Philip, who died unmarried, and several daughters. Henry, his eldest son, was seated at Goxhill, in the county of Lincoln, and married the daughter of William Long, of Barton, in the said county, Esq; by whom he left two sons, Henry and William.

Sir Robert Hildyard, Knt. third son of Sir Christopher, and younger brother to Henry, was gentleman of the privy-chamber to King Charles I. colonel of foot, and commander of Sir Marmaduke Langdale's brigade of horse, when he was major-general of all the horse in England and Wales; and in the time of the civil wars, when the Scotch army came into England, and the King's army, under the duke of Newcastle, lay encamped near them, a gentleman came out of the camp of the Scots, as their champion, and sent a challenge to any gentleman in the King's army, that would accept it; which Sir Robert courageously did, and bravely slew his adversary; for which service he was made in the field, a Knight-banneret. He was also with King Charles I. at Oxford, when that garrison surrendered; and soon after the restoration was, for his faithful services, (particularly at the battle of Marston-Moor near York) and sufferings for the royal cause, created a Baronet; and had the manor of Pattrington granted him for three lives, viz. himself, and two sons, all dead, (since given to Lord Portland.) He married, first, Anne, daughter of alderman HERRIS, alias Harris, of Hull, relict of Sir John Montford, Knt. by whom he had two sons, Christopher and Robert, who died June 7, 1685. (Having married Anne, daughter of Mr. Hammerton, of Auckborough, in the county of Lincoln, and relict of Edmund Monckton, Esq; had issue, one son, who died unmarried; and a daughter, Jane, married to John Legard, of Anlaby, Esq; only son of Sir Robert Legard, Knt. master in Chancery, who had issue, three sons and one daughter) Anne, the only daughter of Sir Robert, died unmarried. His second wife was Jane, daughter and sole he'r of Christopher Constable, of Hatfield in Yorkshire, Esq; relict of John Lister, of Linton, Esq; by whom he had no issue.—Sir Robert died in March, 1684-5.

Christopher Hildyard, Esq; eldest son of Sir Robert, died Jan. 1, 1684-5, in his father's life-time, leaving issue, by Esther, daughter of Mr. alderman William Dobson, of Hull, four sons and two daughters; 1. Sir Robert; 2. Christopher, who who died without issue; 3. William, M. A. late rector of Rowley in the East-riding, who married a daughter of Mr. Crofts, of Stillington, by whom he had issue, one son, Sir Robert Hildyard, successor to his uncle, of whom hereafter; also two daughters, who died unmarried; 4. Henry, who died Sept. 22, 1723, having married the daughter of Mr. Davison, of Blake-fon, in the bishoprick of Durham, who died August, 1722, by whom he had two sons, who died young. The daughters of Christopher were two, who died unmarried.

The said Christopher lies buried, under a monument of white marble, in Winestead church.

Sir Robert Hildyard, Bart. successor to his grandfather in the title and estate, (eldest son and heir of Christopher, aforesaid) served as burges in parliament for Heydon in Yorkshire, the latter end of King William, and the beginning of Queen Anne's reign, and dying unmarried, in Nov. 1729, was succeeded in dignity and estate by his nephew, Sir Robert, only son of his brother William, before-mentioned.

Which Sir Robert Hildyard, of Winestead, the present Baronet, served in parliament for the borough of Great Bedwin in Wiltshire, in the last of George II. He married in May, 1738, Maria-Catherina, only child of Henry D'Arcy, of Sedbury in Yorkshire, Esq; by whom he had issue, Robert D'Arcy, Anne and Catherine, now living; Maria-Catherina, and Henry, who died young. Sir Robert's lady died in 1747.

144. ASTLEY, of Hill-Morton, Warwickshire.

Created BARONET, June 25, 1660.

THIS family descends from Thomas, Lord Astley, who was killed in the Barons wars at Evesham, 49 Hen. III. being by his first wife, (Joan, daughter of Ernold du Bois) father of Andrew; and by his second wife, (Editha, daughter of Peter Constable, of Melton-Constable in Norfolk, Esq; sister and coheir of Sir Robert Constable, Knt.) of Thomas, Ralph, Stephen.

From Andrew, the son by the first venter, descends the Astleys, of Pateshull in Staffordshire; who, being the chief line, we shall, when we come to speak of that family, give a more particular account of his extraction and posterity.

Thomas, second son of Thomas, Lord Astley, had Hill-morton in Warwickshire, and the advowson of the church, by gift of his father, who entailed it upon any brother or sister of the whole blood, in case Thomas should die without issue, which grant bears date in May, 47 Hen. III.

For this Thomas, who died before 13 Edw. I. is yet standing, at Hill-morton, a very fair monument, betwixt two pillars in the church, opposite to that of his mother, Editha, whereon his statue of free-stone lies cross-legged, in armour of male, whose brother and heir, Raphe, in 13 Edw. I. claimed a court leet, and other privileges, in the manor of Hill-morton, by prescription. To whom succeeded, Thomas, his son and heir, certified to be Lord of Hill-morton, in 9 Edw. II.

This Thomas, in 9 Edw. III. had a special patent, exempting him from knighthood; and in 17 Edw. III. gave the perpetual patronage of the church of Hill-morton, to the dean and canons of the college of Astley, (then newly founded by Thomas, Lord Astley, the chief of that family) and died before 20 Edw. III. leaving issue, by the said Margery, daughter of Sir George —, of Charnels, Knt. (who survived him) Sir Ralph, his son and heir, who married Agnes, daughter of Ralph Gerbrug; Sir Thomas Astley, Knt. his son, living 7 Ric. II. by Catherine, daughter of Sir Roger Bacon, of Baconsthorp in Norfolk, Knt. (who survived him) had issue, Thomas Astley, of Hill-morton, and Melton-Constable, Esq; who married Isabell, daughter of Geoffrey Oak, and was father of John, whose wife was, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Edward Witchingham, of Norfolk, Knt.

Thomas Astley, Esq; his son and heir, married the daughter of ——— Lomner, of Mannington in Norfolk, Esq; and had issue, Thomas, who had three wives; 1. Anne, daughter of ——— Boughton, of Lawford in Warwickshire, Esq; by whom he had one son, John, his son and heir, of whom hereafter; 2. Anne, daughter of ——— Wood, (sister to the wife of Sir James Bulleyn, Knt.) by whom he had, John, Richard, and Thomas: John Astley, Esq; eldest son by the second marriage, was master of the jewel-office to Queen Elizabeth, and married two wives; 1. Catherine, daughter of Sir Philip Chambernawn, of Devonshire, Knt. by whom he had no issue: his second wife was, Margaret, daughter of Thomas, Lord Grey, brother of Henry, Lord Grey, by whom he had Sir John, and three daughters, Margaret, married to Anthony Nevile, of Mottersey in Nottinghamshire, Esq; Bridget, to Sir Norton Knatchbull, of Mersham in Kent, Knt. and Elianor, wife to Thomas Knatchbull, Esq; brother of Sir Norton. Sir John Astley, of Maidstone in Kent, Knt. only son of Sir John, married Catherine, daughter of Anthony Bridges, Esq; brother to Edward, Lord Chandos, by whom he had two sons, John and Francis, who both died S. P. whereupon, the three sisters of Sir John, were his coheirs. The third wife to Thomas, before-mentioned, was Anne, daughter of Cruse of Warwickshire, by whom, I do not find any issue.

John Astley, of Hill-Morton, and Melton-Constable, Esq; only son of Thomas, by his first wife, before-mentioned, married Frances, daughter and heir of John Cheyney, of Sittingborne in Kent, Esq; by whom he had, Isaac, his son and heir, and two other sons, that died S. P. and four daughters; 1. Bridget, married to Walter Harlackenden, of Woodchurch in Kent, Esq; 2. Anne, married, first, to Richard L'Estrange, Esq; brother to Sir Nicholas L'Estrange, of Hunstanton in Norfolk, Knt. and, secondly, to ——— Voell, of Erisshampark, Esq; and two others, that died unmarried.

Isaac Astley, Esq; son and heir, married Mary, daughter of Edward Waldegrave, of Borley in Essex, Esq; and had three sons; 1. Thomas, of whom hereafter; 2. Sir Jacob Astley, Knt. who having had several military commands, in the service of foreign princes, and acquired no little reputation for his bravery and conduct abroad, raised it to a much higher degree, by the eminent and faithful services done to his sovereign, King Charles I. to whom he resorted in the beginning of the grand rebellion, and being serjeant-major-general of that King's army-royal, and governor of Oxford and Reading, greatly distinguished himself, particularly at the battles of Kinton, Brentford, Newbury, &c. in consideration whereof, he was deservedly advanced to the degree of a Baron, by the title of Lord Astley, of Reading: he died Feb. 1651, and was buried at Maidstone in Kent. Lord Clarendon gives this character of him: 'He was an honest, brave, plain man, and as fit for the office he exercised, of major-general of the foot, as Christendom yielded, and was so generally esteemed; very discerning and prompt in giving orders, as the occasions required, and most chearful and present in any action. In council, he used few, but very pertinent words, and was not at all pleased with the long speeches usually made there, and which rather confused, than informed his understanding; so that he rather collected the ends of the debates, and what he was himself to do, than enlarged them by his own discourses, though he forbore not to deliver his own mind.' This Lord left issue, by Agnes Imple, a German lady of a good family, five sons, Isaac, Lord Astley, Thomas, Henry, Bernard, and Edward, which four last died S. P. and one daughter, Elizabeth, married to Sir Edward Astley, Knt. hereafter mentioned.

Isaac, Lord Astley, his son and heir, married Anne, daughter of Sir Francis Stiddolph, of Norbury in Surry, Bart. and dying 1662, was buried in Maidstone church; having two sons, Jacob and Francis, who died S. P. Jacob, Lord Astley, son and heir, married Frances, daughter and coheir of Sir Richard Stiddolph, of Norbury, Bart. (son of Sir Francis) by whom he left no issue; and dying 1688, was buried in Maidstone church, and the Barony became extinct. The third son of Isaac, before-mentioned, was Richard, and the daughters were, Anne, wife of Rowland Fowler, of Bromehill in Norfolk; Frances, married to Geoffry Cobbe, of Norfolk; Mary, to ——— Berry; and Jane, to Edmund Thoresby, Esqrs.

Thomas Astley, Esq; eldest son and heir of Isaac, (and elder brother of Jacob, created Lord Astley) married Frances, daughter and coheir to George Deane, of Tilney in Norfolk, Esq; and had issue three sons: 1. Sir Francis Astley, of Hill-morton, and Malton, Knt. who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir James Altham, of Oxhey in Hertfordshire, Knt. and died without issue, and was buried in the Savoy church; his widow, afterwards, was re-married, first, to the Lord Digby, and, secondly, to Sir John Bernard, Knt. and Bart. serjeant at law. 2. Sir Jacob Astley, his son and heir, received the honour of knighthood, and that of Baronet, 12 Car. II. and upon the death of his uncle, Sir Isaac Astley, Bart. Dec. 7, 1659, became his heir, and possessed Hill-Morton, Melton-Constable, &c. and heir to all the entailed lands of Jacob, Lord Astley, they being settled by act of parliament. Sir Jacob was high sheriff of Norfolk, 1664, and married Blanch, eldest daughter of Sir Philip Wodehouse, of Kimberley in Norfolk, Bart. by whom he had four sons and one daughter; 1. Jacob, who died at Oxford, June 9, 1681, and lies buried in Melton-Constable church.

146. STANLEY, of Alderley, Cheshire.

Created BARONET, June 25, 1660.

THIS is a younger branch of the Stanleys, Earls of Derby, descended from Sir John Stanley, Knt. a person of great eminence, temp. Ric. II. and Hen. IV. younger son of Sir William Stanley, of Hooton, in Wirral-hundred in Cheshire, Knight.

Which Sir John Stanley, Knt. was much enriched by his marriage with Isabel, daughter and heir to Sir Thomas Latham, of Latham, and Knowsley in Lancashire, Knt. whose ancestor was founder of the monastery of Burfough, near to it. The said Sir John Stanley, in 13 Ric. II. was made Lord-justice of Ireland, and in 19 Ric. II. constable of the castle of Rokesburgh in Scotland. After which, being with King Richard in Conway-castle, and making his submission to the duke of Hereford, (afterwards King Hen. IV.) before such time as King Richard was in his custody, he had such favour from him, that on his accession to the throne, by the name of King Henry IV. he was constituted Lord-lieutenant of Ireland.

On June 3, 1405, 6 Hen. IV. he, in conjunction with Roger Leke, had a commission to seize on the city of York, and its liberties; and also on the Isle of Man, on the forfeiture of Henry Piercy, Earl of Northumberland. And in 7 Hen. IV. being then steward of the household to that King, obtained licence to fortify an house at Liverpool in Lancashire, (which he had newly built) with embattled walls. And the same year, having taken possession of the Isle of Man, he obtained a grant in fee, for life, of the said isle, castle, and pile, anciently called Holm-town, and all the isles adjacent.

They

They were also sole patrons of the bishoprick, and all parsonages and vicarages, except three, which are in the patronage of the bishop; and by the advice of his deemsters, (a sort of judges chosen every year to decide all controversies, two for each division of the isle) and twenty four keys, (that with his approbation are representatives for the same) he can make and repeal laws: and hath likewise power of holding courts in his own name, and to hang, draw, or pardon malefactors; as also, all wrecks, royal fishing, &c.

In 9 Hen. IV. Sir John Stanley was appointed general attorney to Thomas de Lancaster, the King's son, lieutenant of Ireland, on his going to that kingdom; and in the tenth of Hen. IV. being steward of the King's household, he was made constable of Windsor castle; also about that time, installed knight of the most noble order of the garter. He was likewise in such favour with King Henry V. that in the first year of his reign, he constituted him lieutenant of Ireland for six years. Whereupon, he landed at Clontarf near Dublin, on the 7th of October, 1413; and on the 6th of January after, died at Ardee in that kingdom. He left issue by the before-mentioned Isabel, his wife, two sons, John and Thomas; the issue of which Thomas, by Maud, the daughter and heir to Sir John Arderne, of Elford in Staffordshire, Knt. possessing a large estate in those parts, made Elford their chief seat, whilst the males continued.

Which John, the elder son, by the name of John Stanley, Esq; was made constable of Carnarvon-castle in 5 Hen. VI. and in 17 Hen. VI. was groom of the bed-chamber to the King, and constituted sheriff of Anglesey, with the fee of 20*l. per Ann.* and knighted. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Harrington, Knt. by whom he had issue four sons; 1. Sir Thomas; 2. Sir William, who married the countess of Worcester; 3. Sir John, ancestor to the present Sir John-Thomas Stanley, Bart. and, 4. James, archdeacon of Chester; also a daughter, Isabella, married to Sir John Warren, of Poynton in Cheshire, Knt.

This Sir Thomas, the eldest son and heir, was knighted, before the 9 of King Hen. VI. when he was constituted Lord-lieutenant of Ireland for six years, as his grandfather had been. He called a parliament in that kingdom, 1432, and returned to England the same year, leaving Sir Christopher Plunket, his deputy. He returned again to Ireland, 1435, and gave a check to the Irish, who were insolent beyond measure, incroaching every where on the pale, and making the best advantage of the King's minority, and the absence of the military men in France; but the Lord-lieutenant, with the power of Meath and Uriel, took Moyle O Donel prisoner, and slew a great many of the Irish.

Irish. And afterwards, about Michaelmas, he went again to England, and left Richard Talbot, archbishop of Dublin, (brother to the Earl of Shrewsbury) Lord-deputy.

In 27 Hen. VI. he (with John, Viscount Beaumont, and others) was commissioned to treat with the Scots for a truce betwixt both realms: as he was the year after, when a truce being concluded, he was appointed one of the conservators of the same, for the King of England. Also in that year, 28 Hen. VI. he was in commission, (with James, earl of Wiltshire, and others) for the custody and defence of the town and castle of Calais; as also of the marches adjacent, and tower of Risebank, for the term of five years. In 29 Hen. VI. he was again made one of the conservators of that truce with Scotland, which was to hold good from 15 Aug. 1451, for three years; and on the continuance of the same to 21 May, 1457, he was also one of the conservators. He was likewise chamberlain to that King; and in 34 Hen. VI. was summoned by writ to parliament, and in 35 Hen. VI. was appointed one of the council to Edward, prince of Wales, and the same year was again made one of the conservators of the new truce with Scotland, which was to hold till 16 July, 1459. Also, 1461, appointed one of the ambassadors to treat with those of Scotland, about certain affairs; and, dying in the thirty-seventh of this King's reign, left issue by Joan, his wife, daughter and heir of Sir Robert Goushill, Knt. two sons; 1. 147. SHUCKBURGH, of Shuckburgh, Warwickshire,

Created BARONET, June 26, 1660.

THIS family is of great antiquity in the county of Warwick; for we find Robert de Succebergh, made a grant, 12 Hen. II. to the church of St. Leonard, and the nuns of Wroc-Wroccleshale, of the church of Succheberg, and four yard land, and twenty acres of inclosure, called Hungerhill, with a croft, which lay between the King's highway, and the orchard of the said Robert; which grant was confirmed by Robert de Alvers, who held three knights fees of William, earl of Warwick; which said grant was also confirmed by earl Roger, who died in King Stephen's time.

But whether this Robert was the direct ancestor to the family we are now treating of, is, at this time, not easy to be determined.

In 6 Edw. II. we find Simon de Shuckborow, and Ralph Chatare, possessed of those lands in Shuckborough, that belonged to John de Hastings, and that they held no less than a knight's fee there; from which Simon, descended John de Shuckborow, who, in 20 Edw. III. held of Hastings's heir, the third part of a knight's fee in Shuckborough, and from him descended John Shuckborough, Esq; who, in 10 Hen. VI. was certified to hold a manor in Shuckborough, by the fourth part of a knight's fee.

Sir William Dugdale, in his antiquities of Warwickshire, says, That these Shuckboroughs, were very anciently possessed of lands at Shuckborough, there is no doubt; for he finds one William de Suckeberge in 3 Joh. which might be the first assumer of this denomination, (there being many good and great families, whose ancestors fixt not their surnames till afterwards) but little, says he, have I seen memorable of them in those elder times, other than the bare mention of their names: neither am I able, of a long time after, by the advantage of records, to deduce their descent in a lineal succession: I shall therefore, says he, briefly mention what I have met with, as remarkable, touching any of them.

In 1 Edw. III. I find, that John de Shuckburgh, having been one of the coroners in this county, (an office in those days of great account) had his Quictus est, the sberiff being commanded to cause another to be chosen in his room; but it seems, the King's command was not thereupon pursued, because, the next year after, he directed another precept, dated from Pontefract, 19 Aug. to the same purpose; and Mr. Philpot mentions Christopher Shuckborough, of the county of Warwick, Esq; who, in the eighth of Rich. II. 1385, married the daughter of John de Northwood, of Horton upon Stoure, near Canterbury in Kent, Esq; and had that manor in frank marriage.

In 6 Hen. IV. John Shukkeburg, and Thomas Shukkeburgh, were, with the sberiff, and other commissioners, assigned to collect a subsidy in this county, then granted to the King in parliament; and in 7 Hen. V. William Shuckburgh, of Shuckburgh, being ranked amongst those knights, and other esquires of this county, who bore ancient arms from their ancestors, had warning, by the sheriff, to appear before the council, there to receive order for serving the King, in his proper person, for the defence of the realm. In 6 Hen. VI. he was one of the commissioners appointed for the collecting a subsidy of 6*s.* 8*d.* from certain inhabitants residing within the cities and boroughs of this county; and departed this life in 11 Hen. VI. being at that time one of the coroners for Warwickshire.

From whom descended, Thomas, who was in commission for conservation of the peace, from 18 Hen. VII. to the end of that King's reign, and for many years in Hen. VIIIth's time. The church of Shuckborough being given to the nuns at Wroxhall, temp. Hen. II. as is before-mentioned, was anciently appropriated to their use; which rectory, after the dissolution of the monasteries, was granted to Sir John Williams, Knt. in 32 Hen. VIII. who had licence, the year following, to alien it unto this Thomas Shuckborough, Esq; and in this family it hath continued ever since. He departed this life, 1 Oct. 1561, and lies buried at Shuckborough.

By the pedigree now in the family, the descent is thus: Shuckburge, of Shuckburge, in the county of Warwick, whose son, John, by Joan, the daughter of Adam Napton, of Napton in Warwickshire, Esq; (son and heir of Sir Robert Napton, Knt. by the lady Lucia, his wife, daughter of Guy Beauchamp, earl of Warwick) had issue, William, who married Johanna, daughter of John Fulwood, of Tamworth, by whom he had issue, Thomas Shuckburgh, who married Johanna, daughter and coheir of Thomas Sydenhall, (by Catherine, daughter and coheir of Philip Lunell) and had issue, Thomas, who, by Philippa, the daughter of Vaus, or Vase, had issue several sons; Thomas, the eldest, married the daughter of Edward Medley, Esq; he lies buried at Shuckborough Superior, under a noble monument, with the effigies of himself, and wife, lying at full length.

Thomas Shuckburgh, Esq; his son and heir, married the daughter of George Smyth, and had issue, 1. Anthony; 2. John, who married the daughter of Comes; 3. Thomas, who married the daughter of Anthony Andrews; 4. Benet; and 5. William, who married the daughter of auditor Rigge, of Straglesthrop in Lincolnshire.

Anthony Shuckburgh, Esq; eldest son and heir, living 1563, married two wives; 1. Anne, daughter of Thomas Foxley, of Foxley, Esq; and had issue, Thomas, who died S. P. and John, his son and heir; secondly, Anne, daughter of the Skeffingtons, of Leicestershire. He died April 1, 1594, and lies buried with his ancestors at Shuckborough-Superior.

John,

John, his son and heir, married Margaret, the eldest daughter of Richard Midlemore, of Edgbaston in Warwickshire, Esq; and had by her ten children; she died 22d March, 1629; and he, 20th March, 1631, aged sixty-eight, and lies buried at Shuckborough.

Sir Richard Shuckburgh, Knt. eldest son and heir, was no way inferior to his ancestors. As King Charles I. marched to Edgcot near Banbury, on 22d Oct. 1642, he saw him hunting in the fields, not far from Shuckborough, with a very good pack of hounds, upon which it is reported, that he fetched a deep sigh, and asked who that gentleman was, that hunted so merrily that morning, when he was going to fight for his crown and dignity; and being told that it was this Richard Shuckburgh, he was ordered to be called to him, and was by him very graciously received: upon which, he went immediately home, armed all his tenants, and the next day attended on him in the field, where he was knighted, and was present at the battle of Edghill. After the taking of Banbury-castle, and his Majesty's retreat from those parts, he went to his own seat, and fortified himself on the top of Shuckborough-hill, where being attacked by some of the parliament forces, he defended himself till he fell, with most of his tenants about him; but being taken up, and life perceived in him, he was carried away prisoner to Kenilworth-castle, where he lay a considerable time, and was forced to purchase his liberty at a dear rate. He married three wives; first, ———; secondly, Elizabeth, third daughter of Sir Robert Lee, of Billeslee in Warwickshire, Knt. by neither of which he left any issue. His third wife was, Grace, daughter of Sir Thomas Holte, of Aston in Warwickshire, Bart. by whom he had issue, six sons and three daughters; two of which, Grace, wife to Sir John Barnard, of Brampton in Huntingdonshire, Bart. and Elizabeth, wife to Sir Edward Waldo, Knt. were both born to him, whilst he lay confined in Kenilworth-castle: he died 13th June, 1656, aged sixty; his relict, in 1659, married John Keating, of Norraghmore, in the county of Kildare in Ireland, Esq; afterwards lord chief-justice of the Common-pleas, in Ireland. Sir Richard lies buried at Shuckborough.

His relict departed this life at Dublin, April 12, 1677, and was buried at the chapel of Palmerston, three miles from Dublin, in a new vault made by her second husband.

Of Sir Richard's sons, only four survived him, viz. 1. Sir John, his heir; 2. Richard, who died without issue; 3. George, father of the late reverend Mr. Shuckburgh; and 4. Charles, father of the late Mr. Richard Shuckburgh, of Covent-garden, who had sons and daughters.

Sir John, the eldest son, in consideration of his father's sufferings, both in his person and estate, and his own zeal in defence of the royal cause, was, soon after the restoration, advanced to the dignity of a Baronet: he married Catherine, daughter of Sir Hatton Farmer, of Easton in Northamptonshire, Knight, (who surviving him, married Sir Roger Norwich, of Brampton in Northamptonshire, Bart. by whom he had issue, one son,

Sir Charles Shuckburgh, Bart. who was one of the representatives in parliament for the county of Warwick, in four triennial parliaments, in the reign of King William and Queen Anne, and master of the buck and stag hounds to her majesty Queen Anne: he married, first, Catherine, daughter of Sir Hugh Stukeley, of Hinton in Hampshire, Bart. by Catherine, his wife, daughter and heir of Sir John Trott, of Laverstock in Hampshire, Bart. by whom he had issue, one son, Sir John, his successor, and two daughters, Catherine, married to Sir William Boughton, of Lawford in Warwickshire, Bart. (whom she survived, and died in 1725) and Saliza, (who died 1725-6) married to Charles Bentley, of Kineton in Warwickshire, Esq; Sir Charles married to his second lady, Diana, daughter to the right honourable Richard, lord Willoughby, of Broke, by whom he had issue, three sons; 1. Sir Charles Shuckburgh, of Longborrow in Gloucestershire, Esq; who married a daughter of colonel Hunt, and had issue, three sons and a daughter; of these only two sons are living, Sir Charles, the present Baronet, and Richard, a lieutenant in the first regiment of guards, who has three sons living, George, Richard, and Stewkley. 2. Richard, a captain in the army, who died unmarried, 1724; 3. Sir Charles died suddenly at Winchester, Sept. 2, 1705; and his lady at Highwood-hill in Middlesex, 1725.

Sir John Shuckburgh, Bart. only son by the first marriage, succeeded his father in dignity and estate: he married Abigail, daughter of John Goodwin, of Oxford, Esq; by whom he had one son, Sir Stukely, his successor, and ten daughters, viz. 1. THIS family is descended from Odard, or Udard, sometimes also written, Hodard, and Hudard, who came into England with William the conqueror, and seated himself at Dutton; a good part whereof, Hugh Lupus, earl of Chester, gave unto him, as appears by Doomsday-book.

The ancient roll of the Barons of Halton, saith, that with Hugh, earl of Chester, came one Nigell, a nobleman; and with Nigell, came five brethren, to wit, Hudard, Edard, Wolmere, Horfwyne, and Wolsaith, a priest, to whom Nigell gave the church of Runcorne; and unto Hudard, the same Nigell gave Weston and Great-Aston, (now divided into two townships, Aston-Grange and Aston-juxta-Sutton) and from this Hudard came all the Duttons.

153. BOOTHBY, of Broadlow-Ash, Derbyshire.

Created BARONET, July 13, 1660.

THE name and family of Boothby is of much greater antiquity in this nation, than the Norman conquest, as appears by what follows.

Our great antiquary, Sir William Dugdale, in his Origines Juridiciales, c. ix. p. 22. says, ‘ That King Egbert, first sole monarch of Great-Britain, in the year 800, divided this nation into counties, then hundreds, or wapentakes, as they now stand.’

Camden, in his Britannia, speaking of Lincolnshire, says, ‘ The hundred, or wapentake of Boothby, Boothby-Paynel, a market-town, and a gentleman’s old seat, called Boothby, (at this time all in being under that name) were so denominated from one Boothby, who there inhabited,’ and which may more largely appear, by Mr. E. Wilson, in his publication of the said Britannia, p. 477, in his additions to Lincolnshire, as also received their name from (as Leland observes, p. 17.) one Boothby, of very ancient time, there inhabiting; the heir-general of which, married Paynell, lord of Bampton in Devonshire.

The same coat of arms, as now borne by the Boothbys, is now, or lately were painted on glass, in the church windows, and house there. The length of time, and the almost unavoidable accidents attending, makes it impossible to give an exact account of the descent or successions of any family of so long standing, who have any name in being at this time, it being near nine hundred years since King Egbert.

Theobaldus de Boothby, was governor of Pontefract castle in Yorkshire, which he held a long time against the Lancastrians, in the civil wars between the house of York and them.

Adam de Boothby (as Simon Gunton, in his history of Peterborough, says) was abbot of Peterborough, 1321, 13 Ed. II.

Henry Boothby, Esq; the third son, was created Baronet by King Charles I. by letters patents, dated Nov. 5, 1644, signed by his Majesty's sign manual; but the civil wars prevented its passing the seals.

Judith, surviving the said William Boothby, married to her second husband, William Basset, of Blore in Staffordshire, Esq; and had issue, one daughter, first married the honourable Henry Howard, Esq; son to the earl of Suffolk, and by him had a daughter, married to Sir John Harpur, of Swarkston, Knt. She married her only daughter; Elizabeth; which she had by her first husband, William Boothby, to Andrew, eldest son of Roger Corbet, Esq; who was brother to Sir Richard, her husband.

Sir Henry, successor to his father, by Mary, daughter of Sir Thomas Hayes, lord-mayor of London, 1615, had issue one son, William, and lies buried at Boddington in Northamptonshire.

Sir William, the only son, was knighted by King Charles II. in the field; and at the restoration, the King was pleased to renew his patent gratis, by the name of Sir William Boothby, of Broadlow-Ash, the former patent being of Clater-Clote.

Sir William married Frances, daughter of colonel Milward, of Snitterton in Derbyshire, by whom he had one son, Francis, who married Anne, daughter and coheir of Thomas Child, of Dogsthorp in Northamptonshire, Gent. but died during his father's father's life-time, leaving one son, Sir Henry, hereafter mentioned.

She afterwards married to her third husband, Edward Russell, Esq; brother to the earl of Bedford, and by him had several children; and amongst the rest, Edward, earl of Orford, lord high-admiral of England; temp. Will. III.

Sir Henry Boothby, Bart. only son of Francis, succeeded his grandfather in the title of Baronet, but died unmarried.

154. DIXIE, of Bosworth, Leicestershire.

Created BARONET, July 14, 1660.

THERE is a tradition, that this ancient family is descended from Wolfstan, earl of Ellenden, (now called Wilton) who married the sister to King Egbert, the first English monarch. Another asserts, (upon a relation of Sir Walter Littleton, chancellor of Litchfield) that the Dixies married the daughter and heir of — Wolfstan, of Wolfstan in Warwickshire, about six hundred years since; and in confirmation of the same, a piece of alabaster was, not many years ago, found under a pillar in Wolvey church, near Wolfstan, with this inscription in old characters, viz. Wolfstan Dixie, in the year of our Lord, 1100. But Dugdale, in his Warwickshire, intimates, that Wolfstan was so called, from some Saxon possessor, named Wulf-ric, among whom, Wolfstan was a proper christian name.

The first we find in the visitations of the heralds, is Wolfstan Dixie, living about the reign of Edw. III. who was seated at Catworth in Huntingdonshire. William, his son, married a daughter of — Bassingham, and had issue, Francis, who greatly augmented his estate, by marrying with the daughter and heir of — Beridge; whose son, Thomas Dixie, married Anne, daughter of — Jephson, of Hampshire, by whom he had four sons; 1. Richard, of whom hereafter; 2. John Dixie, of Royston, father to Wolfstan, rector of Brampton in Northamptonshire; 3. Walter, who died issueless; and 4. Sir Wolfstan Dixie, Knt. sheriff of London, 17 Eliz. and mayor of the said city, 1585, who was a man of extraordinary charity, and left several considerable legacies to pious uses. He had two wives, first, Agnes, daughter of — Walkedon; secondly, Anne, daughter and coheir of Sir Christopher Draper, Knt. (remarried to Sir William Hickman, of Gainsborough) and having lived to the age of sixty-nine, was buried at St. Michael Bassingshaw, but without any other monument erected to him, than his good works.

Richard Dixie, Esq; eldest son and heir of Thomas, afore-said, married Jane, daughter and coheir of John Crethorne, of Salaby in Lincolnshire, Esq; and had two sons, Thomas, who married Bridget, daughter of — Rolt, in Huntingdonshire, but left only a daughter, Dorothy, married to — Barker, of Rutlandshire; John Dixie, Esq; second son, married Charity, daughter to Thomas Henson, by whom he had issue, Sir Wolfstan, Richard, who married Bridget, daughter to William Bedell, of Huntingdonshire, and had posterity, Thomas and John.

Sir Wolstan Dixie, Knt. seated himself at Bosworth in Leicestershire, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth; which estate he received by donation, from his great uncle, Sir Wolstan, lord-mayor of London: he married Frances, daughter to Sir Thomas Beaumont, of Stoughton, Knt. by whom he had four daughters; 1. Frances, wife of Walter Rolt, of Clifton in Bedfordshire, Esq; 2. Elizabeth, married to Sir Verney Noel, of Kirkby in Leicestershire, Bart. 3. Sir Wolstan Dixie, Knt, eldest son and heir, at the breaking out of the fatal rebellion, 1641, appeared early in the defence of his Majesty, and was a great sufferer for the royal cause. When the gentry of the county of Leicester contributed 25642 l. for the King, Sir Wolstan gave himself towards that sum, 1835 l. for which signal service, he had a warrant from that King for a Baronet's patent; but through the confusion of those times, and the martyrdom of that prince, it was never taken out, till after the restoration; in which year he was high-sheriff for the county of Leicester, his Majesty looking on him as a person in whom he could confide to settle affairs in that county, which, for the generality, had been notorious for their disaffection to his father. Sir Wolstan was twice married; first, to Barbara, daughter and sole heir of Sir Henry Beaumont, of Gracedieu in Leicestershire, Bart. (widow of John, eldest son of Sir Richard Harpur, of Swarkston in Derbyshire, Knt.) by whom he had six sons and eight daughters; 1. Sir Beaumont, of whom hereafter; 2. Frances, married, first, to Giles Astley, of Wolvey in Warwickshire; secondly, to Charles Conquest, of Haughton-Conquest in Bedfordshire, Esqrs; 3. Barbara, married, first, to Richard Pyot, of Strethay in Staffordshire; secondly, to Thomas Pochin, of Barkby in Leicestershire, Esqrs; 4. Rosamond, wife of John Ventris, of Campton in Bedfordshire, Esq; 5. Carola, married to Nicholas Denton, of Barton in Bedfordshire, Esq; 6. Lucy, married to Mr. Finch, of Southill in Bedfordshire; 7. Catherine; and 8.

Isabel, who both died young. Sir Wolstan married to his second lady, Frances, daughter to Edward Hefilrigg, of Thedingworth in Leicestershire, Esq; sister and sole heir to her brother, Bertine, (relict of Walter Chetwynd, of Grindon in Warwickshire, Esq;) by her he had no issue, and died Feb. 13. 1682, aged eighty, being succeeded by his eldest son, Sir Beaumont Dixie, Bart. who married Mary, sister and sole heir of Sir William Willoughby, of Willoughby in Nottinghamshire, Bart. by whom he had seven sons; 1. Sir Wolstan; 2. Beaumont, who married Jane, daughter of ---- Eyre, of Rampton in Nottinghamshire, Esq; 3. John, (rector of Bosworth, who died unmarried; as did also his sister, Margaret) 4. William; 5. Richard; 6. Wolstan; and 7. William, who died young; and five daughters; Elizabeth, married to Francis Godolphin, of Sparger in Cornwall, Esq; Mary, unto Charles, lord Willoughby, of Parham; Barbara, who died young; Frances, and Margaret, who died unmarried, as before-mentioned.

Sir Wolstan Dixie, Bart. eldest son and successor to his father, married Rebecca, daughter to Sir Richard Atkins, of Clapham in Surry, Bart. by whom he had Sir Wolstan, his successor; Beaumont, rector of Bosworth, who married a daughter of Andrew Corbet, of Shrewsbury, Esq; and died at Bath, Feb. 22, 1739-40, and other sons; and several daughters, of which, Rebecca-Maria married Sir Henry Atkins, of Clapham in Surry, Bart. and another daughter, wife of the reverend Mr. Goodwin, vicar of Clapham in Surry.

Sir Wolstan Dixie, Bart. eldest son and successor to his father, married, first, on May 1, 1735, the daughter of governor Freer, who died in July, 1730, leaving issue, Sir Wolstan, the present Baronet, born March 9, 1737; and two daughters, Rebecca and Ann, both dead. He married, secondly, Theodosia, only daughter of Henry Wright, of Mobberley in Cheshire, Esq; (by Purefoy, his wife, daughter of Sir Willoughby Aston, of Aston in Cheshire, Bart.) by whom he had six children; Willoughby, born in 1742; Purefoy, born in 1743, and died in 1757; Theodosia, born in 1744, and died in 1757; Eleanor-Frances, born in 1746; Rosamond, born in 1747; and Juliana, born in 1749, and died in 1763. Sir Wolstan married to his third lady, Margaret, daughter of William Cross, of Scarborough, Gent. by whom he had no issue. 157. GRESHAM, of Lympsfield, Surry.

Created BARONET, July 31, 1660.

OF this antient family, the first we find mentioned is Edward Gresham, father of John Gresham, of Gresham in Norfolk, living temp. Edw. III. and Rich. II. who left issue, James Gresham, of Holt, in the same county, Esq; who had two wives; 1. Mary, daughter of William Rockwood, by whom he had issue, three sons and a daughter, who all died young; his second wife was Margaret, daughter of William Billingsford, of Blackford in Norfolk, Esq; by whom he had John Gresham, of Holt in Norfolk, Esq; who married Alice, daughter of Alexander, sister and heir to her brothers, John, William, and Ralph Blyth, Esqrs. by whom he had three sons, 1. William; 2. Sir Richard, of whom we shall now treat, as considerable persons have descended from him; and 3. Sir John, of Titsley in Surry, the ancestor to the present Baronet, of whom hereafter.

Sir Richard Gresham, Knt. the second son, was sheriff of London, 1531, and lord-mayor of the said city, 1537. He had two wives, but we do not find any issue, only by the first, Audrey, daughter of William Lynne, of London, by whom he had three sons and a daughter; 1. Sir John Gresham, Knt. who married Frances, daughter and heir of Sir Henry Thwaites, of Lound on the Woldes, in Yorkshire, Knt. and left only a daughter and heir, married to Sir Henry Nevil, of Billingbere in Berkshire, Knt. younger brother to Edward, lord Abergavenny; 2. Sir Thomas Gresham, Knt. 3. William; and Margaret, (in some pedigrees made Christian) married to Sir John Thynne, Knt. ancestor to the lord viscount Weymouth. Sir Richard died Feb. 20, 1548, and lies buried in St. Laurence Jewry.

Sir Thomas Gresham, Knt. second son of Sir Richard Gresham, Knt. before-mentioned, was agent abroad for King Edward VI. Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth, and in great favour with the latter, by whom he was employed to procure money at Antwerp, Hamburgh, and other places, for her Majesty's use; but what gained him great honour, was, that he persuaded her Majesty to take up what money she wanted of her own merchants here, and allow them the same consideration as she had done before to strangers. This Sir Thomas, by trade and other means, having acquired a very large fortune, was desirous others might be the better for his gains; and as a merchant, considering the want of a convenient place for merchants to meet in, he therefore built that famous burse in Cornhill, called to this day the Royal-Exchange, where formerly stood divers houses, having three allies for passage through them, which, with the houses, were purchased by the city, and the ground given to Sir Thomas to build thereon; who, on the 7th of June, 1566, laid the first stone of the foundation, accompanied with some aldermen, every one of which laid a piece of gold, which the workmen took up, and forthwith followed the same with such diligence, that in November, the next year, it was finished. This burse Queen Elizabeth caused by a herald, and a trumpet, to be proclaimed THE ROYAL EXCHANGE, being a place very necessary for the confluence, and commerce of merchants, whose trafficks were great, and in those times of peace, extended their navigations into the farthest, and, till then, unsearched parts of the world. Besides his public endowments, he built a most magnificent structure, called Osterley-house, in the county of Middlesex, wherein he sumptuously entertained Queen Elizabeth; it happened her Majesty found fault with the court of this house, as too great, affirming that it would appear more handsome, if divided with a wall in the middle; upon which words, Sir Thomas, in the night time, sent for workmen to London, (money commanding all things) who so speedily and silently applied to their business, that before the next morning it became a double court, which the night before was but single. It is questioned, whether the Queen, next day, was more contented with the conformity to her fancy, or more pleased with the surprize and sudden performance thereof, whilst her courtiers disported themselves with their several expressions; some avowing, it was no wonder he should so change a building, who could build a Change. He married Anne, daughter of William Fernley, of Creting in Suffolk, Esq; relict of — Read, Esq; by whom he had a son, Richard, who died before him, 1564, and lies buried at St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street: but by —, he left a natural daughter, Anne, married to Sir Nathaniel Bacon, of Stiveky in Norfolk, Knight of the Bath. This Sir Thomas departed this life on the 21st of November, 1579, and lies buried under a large stately monument, in the parish church of Great St. Helen's in London, but we do not find any inscription for so noble a benefactor.

By his last will he left 200*l.* per Annum, to be given to four persons, properly qualified, to read lectures on divinity, astronomy, music, and geometry. He likewise left considerable sums for the support of eight alms-houses, and for the relief of prisoners confined in the several gaols of this metropolis.

Lady Anne Gresham had, by the gift of Sir Thomas, in the several counties of Norfolk, Suffolk, Kent, York, Durham, Derby, Cambridge, Somerset, in Wales, London, Middlesex, of clear yearly value, in fee simple, 1330*l.* 12*s.* 2*d.* $\frac{1}{2}$, besides divers lands, tenements, &c. in London, and Suffex, for the term of her natural life, 1057*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.* in all 2669*l.* 5*s.* 6*d.* $\frac{1}{2}$, besides all which, Sir Thomas gave, and assured in marriage with Anne, his natural daughter, to Nathaniel Bacon, Esq; in fee tail, the manors of Hemelby, with the parsonage there, in the county of Norfolk, and the manors of Morston and Langham, with the two sheep pastures there, in the same county, and also the manor of Combes, with the appurtenances in Suffolk, the whole of the yearly value of 280*l.* 15*s.*

But to return to Sir John Gresham, of Titsey, Knt. third son of John, of Holt in Norfolk, younger brother of Sir Richard, the lord-mayor, and uncle to Sir Thomas Gresham, Knt. who built the Royal-Exchange. He was sheriff of London, 1537, and lord-mayor, 1547. He founded a free school at Holt in Norfolk; and gave to every ward in London ten pounds, to be distributed to the poor; and to one hundred and twenty poor men and women, every one of them three yards of broad-cloth, of eight or nine shillings the yard, to be made in gowns, ready to their backs. He gave also to maids marriages, and to the hospitals in London, above two hundred pounds in ready money. He died in 1556, and Stow gives us this account of his pompous funeral: 'Sir John Gresham, Knt. mercer, 'merchant of the staple, and merchant-adventurer, late 'mayor, and alderman of this city, was buried with a standard, 'and a penon of arms, and a coat-armour of damask, and four 'penons of arms, besides an helmet, a target, and a sword, 'mantles, and the crest, a goodly hearse of wax, and ten dozen of pensils, and twelve dozen of escutcheons. He gave an 'hundred black gowns of fine cloth unto poor men and women; 'he had four dozen of great staff-torches, and a dozen of great 'long torches: he gave, moreover, an hundred of fine black 'gowns, two unto the present mayor, and the old mayor; likewise, another to Sir Rowland Hill, and to Sir Andrew Judd, 'and to the chamberlain, to Mr. Blackwell, to Mr. Common-hunt, and his man, to the porter that belonged to the staple,

‘ and to all his farmers, and his tenants. The church, and ‘ the streets, were all hung with black, and arms in great store ;
 ‘ and on the morrow, three goodly masses were sung, one of ‘ the trinity, another of our lady, and the third, of requiem.
 ‘ Then a sermon was preached by Mr. Harpsfeld, archdeacon ‘ of Canterbury ; and after, all the company came home to as ‘ great a dinner as had been seen, for a fifth day, for all that ‘ came, for nothing was lacking. He was buried in St. Mi‘ chael Bassishaw church, London, where an ancient marble ‘ tomb is, in the south isle of the quire.’

This Sir John had two wives ; 1. Mary, daughter and co-heir of Thomas Ipswell, of London, by whom he had five sons and six daughters ; 1. William ; 2. John, of Fulham in Middlesex, who married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Edward Dormer, Esq; and was ancestor to those of Fulham, Al-bury, and Haslemere in Surry ; of the rest, I find no mention.
 His second wife was, Catherine, daughter of ——— Sampson, relict of Edward Dormer, Esq; by whom he had no issue.

158. MOSTYN, of Mostyn, Flintshire.

Created BARONET, Aug. 3, 1660.

THIS family of Moston in Flintshire, (which is the true name, though, in compliance with the pronunciation of the country, it is usually written Mostyn) is descended from Tudor

Tudor Trevor, lord of Bromfield, Chirk, Maelor, Whittington, and Oswaldstree. He was also earl of Hereford, in right of his mother, Rheingar, grand-daughter and heir of Caradoc Vraichfras, earl of Hereford, who was slain by the Saxons, 788, (or, according to some accounts, 796) to revenge the death of Offa, their king, killed in the battle of Ruddlan, two years before. This Caradoc is stiled, in the history of Cambria, published by Dr. Powell, 1584, King of North-Wales, on account of his great possessions in that country. For being driven out of his own estate by Ethelbald, king of Mercia, after the battle of Hereford, Conan Tindaethwy, then king of Wales, received him, and gave him the lands between Chester and Conway, to inhabit.

Tudor Trevor (who, in the British genealogies, is reckoned to be lineally descended from Vortigern, that unfortunate king of the Britons, who first invited the Saxons over into his country) married Gwladdis, (some call her Angharad) daughter of Howell Dda, king of all Wales; by whom he had issue three sons; from the eldest of whom, Llwydocca, this family of Mostyn is descended in a direct male line. Tudor Trevor lived about 924, and his usual residence was at Llys-Pengwern, in Chirkland in Denbighshire, which scite, and lands about it, (though the house has long been destroyed) is in the possession of the family to this day.

Llwydocca, his eldest son, married Angharad, the daughter of Jago ap Idwal, prince of North-Wales, whose grandson,

Ednyvett ap Llowarch, married Joned, or Shoned, daughter and coheir of Rhywallon ap Cynvin, (who, together with his brother Blethyn, were, by the favour of Edward the Confessor, joint princes of North-Wales, being, by their mother, descended from Roderick the Great) and had issue, Rees Sais, whose great grandson, Owen ap Blethyn ap Tudor, married Eva, the daughter and coheir of Madoc Gwenwinwyn, lord of Powis Gwenwinwyn, the fifth in descent from Blethyn, the other of the aforesaid brothers.

Jorwerth Vaughan, grandson of the said Owen, married Catherine, the daughter of Griffin ap Llewellyn, and sister to Llewellyn ap Griffith, prince of Wales, whose son,

Jerwerth Voel, married Gwladdis, daughter and coheir of Jerwerth ap Griffith, lineally descended from Brockwell Yscyddroc, prince of Powys, and earl of Chester, that great favourer and supporter of the monks of Bangor, whose son, Ednyved Gam, married Gwladdis, daughter and coheir of Llewellyn ap Madoc ap Enion, lineally descended from Edwin, lord of Englefield, &c. one of the fifteen tribes of North-Wales.

Jevan

Jevan ap Addaf, of Pengwern, great grandfon to Ednyved Gam, married Angharad, daughter and heir of Ednyved, fecond fon of Sir Tudor ap Grono, by Margaret, daughter and coheir of Thomas ap Llewelin, lord of Dynivor; (whose grandmother was, Eleanor, eldeft daughter of King Edward I. by his beloved Queen Eleanor) by which marriage of Angharad, Jevan ap Addaf became entitled to the feat and eftate of Tre-castle, and other lands in Anglefey, which this family ftill enjoys. His eldeft fon, Jevan Vychan, in the reign of Richard II. married Angharad, daughter and heir of Howell ap Tudor ap Ithel Vychan, of Mofton; by whom, Mofton came into the poffeffion of the family, and has ever fince been their chief feat. This Ithel Vychan, of Mofton, lineally defcended from Edwin, lord of Englefield, did homage for his lands to Edward, of Carnarvon, at Chefter, 29 Edw. I. whose eldeft fon, Howell ap Jervan Vychan, married Margaret, the daughter and heir of Griffith, fon of Rees ap Griffith ap Madoc, of Gloddaith in Carnarvonfhire, by whom that feat and eftate came to the family, and is ftill enjoyed by it.

Which Madoc ap Gloddaith, was the fon and heir of Madoc Vychan, the fole heir of Jerwerth ap Madoc, who poffeffed that feat and eftate before the time of King Edw. I. as appears by the furvey or extent of North-Wales, begun to be taken, as is fupposed, in that King's reign, and finifhed in his grandfon's. Which firft mentioned Madoc, married Morvydd, daughter and coheir of Sir Griffith Lloyd, of Tregarnedd in Anglefey, who was knighted by King Edward I. upon his bringing him notice of the birth of his fon Edward, of Carnarvon; in whose right, Madoc inherited the eftate of Tregarnedd, and other lands in Anglefey, which the family of Moftyn enjoy to this day. This Sir Griffith Lloyd did homage to Prince Edward for thefe lands, the twenty-ninth year of his father's reign.

Richard, the fon of Howell ap Jevan Vychan, married Catherine, the daughter of Sir Thomas Salifbury, heir of Llewenny, and had iffue two fons, Thomas and Pierce, and five daughters. Pierce, his fecond fon, married Ellen, daughter of Thomas Griffith, of Pant y Llongdy, Efq; and purchafed Talacre, from whom the Moftyns, of Talacre, (who now alfo enjoy the title of Baronet) are defcended. This Richard ap Howell received Henry, earl of Richmond, and concealed him in his houfe at Mofton, notwithstanding all the fearches of his enemies; who, after his victory at Bosworth, in return for that his fervice, fent him his fword and belt that he had worn in that battle, together with a letter of invitation to court. His eldeft fon, Thomas ap Richard ap Howell married Jane, the daughter of Sir William Griffith, of Penrhyn, Knt. and had issue eight sons, William, Richard, Pierce, Robert, Foulk, Roger, Rowland, and Edward, and five daughters. The four eldest sons left issue, the others none. Richard, the second son, had Bodscallan. This Thomas ap Richard ap Howell ap, &c. together with his brother Pierce, took the name of Moston, from the chief seat of their family, by the advice and direction of Rowland Lee, bishop of Litchfield, then lord president of Wales, in the reign of Hen. VIII. His eldest son, William Moston, Esq; (or, as now writ, Mostyn) was, in the ninth year of Queen Elizabeth, together with others of the chief gentlemen of North-Wales, directed by her Majesty's commission to hold an Eisteddfa, or session of the poets, musicians, and bards, at Caerwis, (which was the last held by royal authority) in which commission it is said, that the said William's ancestors had the right to bestow the silver harp on the person judged the most worthy by the commissioners; which harp is still at Mostyn. He married Margaret, daughter of Robert Powell, of Park, Esq; and had three sons, Thomas, John, and Henry; and two daughters: of whom, only the eldest son, Sir Thomas Mostyn, Knt. left issue, by Ursula, daughter and heir of William Goodman, Esq; (and Margaret, his wife, daughter of Sir William Brereton, of Brereton, Knt.) three sons, William, Roger, and Thomas; and two daughters, Margaret, (who married Pierce Griffith, of Penrhyn in Carnarvonshire, Esq; and had issue) and Catherine, (married to Sir Thomas Hanmer, of Hanmer, Knt.) William, his eldest son, died in the Temple, unmarried. Thomas, the youngest son, married Anne, daughter and heir of William Hughes, bishop of St. Asaph; from whom the Mostyns, of Rhyd in Flintshire, are descended. This Sir Thomas, Knt. was, in the beginning of King James I. appointed one of his Majesty's council, established for the principality of Wales, and the marches.

Sir Roger Mostyn, Knt. succeeded his father in the estate: he married Mary, eldest daughter of Sir John Wynne, of Gwyder, Knt. and Bart. and had issue eight sons, Thomas, John, William, Richard, Robert, Edward, Pierce, and Roger; and two daughters, Sydney, (married to Sir Richard Grosvenor, of Eaton in Cheshire, Bart.) and Catherine, (married to colonel Richard Bulkeley, eldest son and heir apparent to Thomas, lord viscount Bulkeley, of Baron-hill in Anglesey, who was murdered by ----- Cheadle, leaving no issue.) Of the sons, Edward and Pierce, died young; John, the second son, was member of parliament for the county of Anglesey, 21 Jac. I. and also chosen into other parliaments for the borough of Flint, who who leaving his estate to the heir of his elder brother, died at his seat at Maesmynnan, unmarried; as did Richard, the fourth son, at Rochell in France, of the wounds he received at his landing in the Isle of Rhe, being a captain of a company of foot in the forces sent for the relief of Rochell. William, the third son, was archdeacon of Bangor: he was twice married, and had issue. Robert, the fifth son, married Margaret, daughter and heir to Henry Conway, of Nant in Flintshire, Esq; (from whom the lady Owen, relict of Sir Robert Owen, of Porkington in Shropshire, and the first wife of Peter Pennant, of Peighton in Flintshire, Esq; descended.) Roger, the youngest son, married Elizabeth, daughter and heir to Hugh Pugh, of Dole y Corllwyn in Montgomeryshire, Esq;

Sir Roger Mostyn, the eldest son, took arms early for the defence of his sovereign, King Charles I. against the rebellion of his subjects; and having his Majesty's commission, raised, in a very little time, 1500 men for his service, at his own expence, whom he also maintained: and after he had taken the castle of Hawarden, he entered with his regiment into the city of Chester, then besieged by the forces of the rebels. He also repaired the castle of Flint at his own charge, of which he was appointed governor, and kept it for the crown, enduring a long siege, and the greatest hardships; and though he was reduced to the last necessity, yet he did not deliver it up till he had the King's special order. He spent above sixty thousand pounds in the service of the crown; and had his house at Mostyn so plundered and stripped, that he was forced for several years to live at a farm-house in his neighbourhood, after he had obtained his liberty from his imprisonment in the castle of Conway. He was, on the restoration of the royal family, created a Baronet, Aug. 3, 1660. He married three times; first, Prudence, daughter of Sir Martin Lumley, of Bardfield in Essex, Bart. by whom he had issue two sons, Thomas and Roger, who both died young; and two daughters, Jane, (married, first, to Roger Puleston, of Emral in Flintshire, Esq; and afterwards, to Sir John Trevor, Knt. master of the rolls) and Mary, (married to William Salisbury, of Rug in Merionethshire, Esq; who had also issue.) Sir Roger married to his second wife, Mary, the eldest daughter of Thomas, lord viscount Bulkeley, aforesaid, and had five sons and three daughters, most of whom died very young: Roger, the second son, lived to man's estate, and died unmarried, at the Inner-Temple: Richard, the third son, was master of arts, and student of Christ-church in Oxford; and afterwards married Charlotta-Theophila, daughter and coheir of John Digby, of Gothurst in Buckinghamshire, Esq; (son and heir to Sir Kenelm Digby, by Venetia, his lady, daughter and coheir of Sir Edward Stanley, Knight of the Bath) by whom he had issue two daughters; Bridget, married to Lytton Lytton, of Knebworth in Hertfordshire, Esq; since dead without issue; and Charlotte, married to Richard Williams, Esq; youngest son of Sir William Williams, Bart. Sir Roger married to his third wife, Lumley, the daughter of ----- Coetmor, of Coetmor in Carnarvonshire, Esq; by whom he had no issue.

Sir Thomas Mostyn, Bart. the eldest son of Sir Roger, by Mary, his second wife, married Bridget, the only daughter and heir of D'Arcie Savage, of Leighton, in the county of Chester, Esq; (which D'Arcie was eldest son of Thomas, who was second son of Sir Thomas, the first earl Rivers, of the name of Savage, by Elizabeth, eldest daughter and coheir of Thomas, lord D'Arcie, of Chich; which first mentioned Thomas Savage married Bridget, daughter and coheir to William Whitmore, Esq; of Leighton, aforesaid, by Margaret, the daughter of Sir Hugh, and sister and heir to Sir George Beeston, of Beeston, in the same county, and had issue, the aforesaid D'Arcie, the father of Bridget, who was married to the aforesaid Sir Thomas Mostyn) he had by her, seven sons and four daughters, who all died young, except Sir Roger, Thomas, and John. John, being educated on the foundation at Westminster, was elected student of Christ-church, Oxford, and was master of arts: he died unmarried, Dec. 24, 1720. Thomas, the second son, married Margaret, the eldest daughter and heir of William Mostyn, of Rhud in Flintshire, Esq; but had no issue, and died Dec. 21, 1737. He served in parliament for the borough of Flint, as his father had done for Carnarvon.

Sir Roger Mostyn, Bart. eldest son and successor to his father, in title and estate, constantly served in parliament since the year 1701 to the year 1734. He was, by her late Majesty Queen Anne, appointed pay-master of her marine forces, and by his Majesty King George I. one of the tellers of his exchequer. He married Effex, eldest daughter of the right honourable, Daniel, earl of Nottingham, (by Anne, his second lady, the only daughter of the right honourable, Christopher, viscount Hatton, by his first lady, Christian, daughter of the right hon. John, earl of Thanet) by whom he has had issue, six sons and six daughters; of whom, Heneage, and the first Effex, died young; and Daniel died at Cambridge, 1733; Sir Thomas, his successor; John, Savage, and Roger: Effex married to the marquis of Bezaumont, earl of Ker, &c. eldest son of John, duke duke of Roxburgh; Anne, Mary-Bridget, Charlotte, and Elizabeth. Sir Roger died May 5, 1739, and was succeeded in dignity and estate, by his eldest son,

Sir Thomas Mostyn, Bart. who married Sarah, daughter and coheir of Robert Westerne, of London, Esq; (by Anne, his wife, eldest daughter and coheir of Sir Richard Shirley, of Preston, in the county of Suffex, Bart.) and had issue four sons and five daughters, of whom, three of the daughters and two of the sons, died young: the surviving children are, Sir Roger, his successor; and Thomas, Anne, and Frances. Sir Thomas represented the county of Flint in three parliaments; and dying March 24, 1758, was succeeded in title and estate by his eldest son,

Sir Roger Mostyn, the present Baronet, who is the eighteenth in descent from Eleanor, daughter of Edward I. and the tenth from Anne, dutchess of Exeter; as also, according to Dugdale, the thirteenth from John of Gaunt, duke of Lancaster. Sir Roger married, May 19, 1766, Margaret, daughter of the Rev. Dr. Hugh Wynne, (by Catherine, sister to William Vaughan, Esq; of Corfygedol in Merionethshire, and heiress of Robert Wynne, Esq; of Bodygallen in Caernarvonshire) by whom he has issue two daughters, Essex and Charlotte-Margaret. Sir Roger is member in the present, as he was in the two last parliaments, for the county of Flint.

159. LEICESTER, of Tabley, Cheshire.

Created BARONET, Aug. 10, 1660.

THIS family is supposed to come, originally, from a younger son of the old earls of Leicester, or from Brittany in France, where the name still is.

They are descended from, 1. Sir Nicholas Leycester, Knt. who was some time seneschal to Henry Lacy, earl of Lincoln, and constable of Cheshire. He married Margaret, the widow of Robert de Denbigh, and daughter of Geoffrey Dutton, ancestor to Warburton, of Arley, about the year of Christ, 1276, 5 Edw. I. by whom he had issue, Roger Leycester, son and heir, and John Leycester, vicar of Walleysey in Wirrall, 1312, 6 Edw. II.

He had, by this Margaret, his wife, the township of Nether-Tabley, and the manors of Wethale and Hield, in Aston, nigh Great-Budworth.

Anno 1292, 20 Edw. I. I find him stiled Knight; and he had lands in Adwick, near Doncaster in Yorkshire, and also in Wath, near Adwick, 22 Edw. I. Sir Nicholas Leycester died 23 Edw. I. 1295.

2. Roger Leycester, son and heir of Sir Nicholas, lived constantly at his manor of Wethale in Aston, nigh Picmere; to whom, Peter Dutton, son of Geffrey, released all his right and claim in Nether-Tabley, Wethale, and Heild, 24 Ed. I. 1296. I find this Peter Dutton stiled Knight, 25 Edw. I. He bought out all the freeholders, or charterers, in Nether-Tabley, the principal whereof was that of William Heart, of Nether-Tabley, and so made that township intirely his own.

Anno Christi, 1296, he had the third part of Over-Tabley, cum Sudlow, by the grant of Sir John Grey, son of Sir Reginald Grey, justice of Chester; and which Sir John Grey had of the grant of William de Tabley, lord of Over-Tabley and Knotsford. This Roger married Isabel, daughter of ———, and had issue, Nicholas Leycester, son and heir; Roger Leycester, and Margaret, married to Adam de Moldesworth, 17 Ed. II. 1323, which Adam was slieriff of Flint, 5 Ed. III.

Roger Leycester died about 1349, and survived his father fifty-three years.

3. Nicholas Leycester, son and heir, had to wife, Mary, daughter of William Mobberley, of Mobberley, and coheiress to her mother, Maud Downes's lands, in Chorley, and half-sister to Sir Raufe Mobberley, of Mobberley, married about 1 Edw. III. 1327, and had issue, John Leycester, son and heir; Raufe Leycester, from whom the Leycesters, of Tost in Cheshire, descend; and Elizabeth, the second wife of William Manwaring, of Over-Pever, the elder, from whom are descended the Manwarings, of Over-Pever; she was widow, 38 Edw. III. 1364, and was living 6 Hen. IV. 1404.

Nicholas Leycester died 1349, 23 Edw. III. for he survived his father very little, if he died not before him.

4. John Leycester, of Nether-Tabley, son and heir, served in the wars of France under John of Gaunt, duke of Lancaster, 1373, 47 Edw. III. of whose puissant army our histories make mention, Walsingham tells us, that when he entered France, at Calais, Triginta & amplius millia equorum in comitatu habuerat: but of these thirty thousand horse, very few were brought alive to Bourdeaux, being starved for want of victuals; so that this voyage proved unsuccessful. It appears, by the account of this John Leycester, before John Tilly, clerk, and other auditors of Sir Thomas Felton, (who was at that time judge of Chester) dated at Southampton, on the eve of St. John, 49 Edw. III. 1375, where he accounted for 266*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* allowed unto him for the payment of Jenkyn Mobberley, Esq; and other soldiers who served under the said John Leycester, and also for his own pay, that he had allowed for himself, for 210 days pay, beginning on St. Michael's day, 47 Edw. III. to the first of May, then next following, at 3*s.* per diem, 31*l.* 10*s.* and there was also pardoned unto him, remaining of his account, the sum of 38*l.* 10*s.* which I conceive was for a reward, or gratuity; whereupon he gave to lady Felton, a white ambling palfrey.

Sir Raufe Mobberley, his uncle, settled on him, by feoffment of chaplains entrusted, (as was the manner of those times) all his lands in Mobberley, with the advowson of the church of Mobberley, and other lands, dated at Mobberley, 1359, 33 Edw. III.

Yet did John Leycester, after, release all his right in these lands unto John Dumbill, of Mobberley, and Cicely, his wife, and also to the advowson of the church of Mobberley, dated at Chester, 1 Rich. II. 1378; which Cicely, was one of the sisters of Sir Raufe Mobberley, aforesaid; but so conditioned and agreed between them, that Dumbill and Cicely should settle fifteen messuages, 316 acres of land, 16 acres of wood, 8 acres of mossing, the third part of a water-mill, and the third part of all the wastes not measured, (to be understood of that moiety of Mobberley belonging to Sir Raufe Mobberley) to descend, after the death of John Dumbill, and Cicely, his wife, unto Raufe Leycester, younger brother of the said John Leycester, and to his heirs, for ever: which was so settled accordingly, 2 Rich. II. 1379, and are at this day (1666) enjoyed by Leycester, of Toft, as heirs of the said Raufe, about a third part of Mobberley's moiety, of Mobberley.

This John Leycester also sold away his manor of Heild in Aston, to William del Heild, and Goditha, his wife, in fee farm, 1355, 29 Ed. III. which manor reverted back again to Leycester, of Tabley; to wit, one moiety purchased 1500, and the other moiety purchased again, 1601.

This John married Joan, daughter of Robert Touchet, of Nether-Whitley, 5 Rich. II. and had issue, William Leycester, son and heir; Raufe Leycester, another son, living 14 Rich. II. He died 1398, 22 Rich. II. about the age of fifty-eight years, and survived his father forty-nine years,

5. William Leycester, of Nether-Tabley, Esq; son and heir of John, is the first that I find stiled, De Tabley; but this may be by reason of the statute of additions, 1 Hen. V. cap. 5. for till after this statute few were written, either of the place, or with the title of esquire. Certain it is, this William lived at his manor-house of Nether-Tabley, which his father, John, had newly erected, and where his heirs had ever since fixed their residence. He was one of the justices of the peace of Bucklow-hundred, in the reign of Henry V. an office in those days of great esteem.

He had two wives; the first was, Agnes Dutton, sister to Sir Piers Dutton, of Dutton, and daughter of Edmund Dutton, whom he married, 1398, 22 Rich. II. by her he had issue, John, Lawrence, and Geoffrey Leycester, living 5 Hen. VI. and Joan, a daughter, married to Thomas, son of Thomas Starky de Wrenbury, 1422, 1 Hen. VI. also Cicely, married Thomas Masterfon, of Masterfon, nigh Nantwich.

His second wife was, Pillaryne, widow to Robert Maffy, of Hale, and sister to Sir Richard Cradock, Knt. whom he married, 3 Hen. VI. 1425, but he had no issue by her.

William Leycester died 1428, 6 Hen. VI. about the age of fifty years, and survived his father thirty years.

6. John Leycester, of Nether-Tabley, Esq. the elder son and heir, married Elizabeth, daughter of Hamon Maffy, of Rixton in Lancashire, Esq; 10 Hen. V. 1422, and had issue, John, Hamon Leycester, made parson of Mobberley, 1460; Randle, admitted into the hospital of Holy Trinity; and St. Thomas, the martyr, in Rome, with all privileges thereof, 1449; Nicholas, Henry, and William: Maud, a daughter, married to Thomas, son and heir of Thomas Daniell, of Over-Tabley, Esq; 1440, 18 Hen. VI. Alice, another daughter, married to Richard, son and heir of John Legh, of High-Legh, de West-hall, Esq; 20 Hen. VI. 1442.

John Leycester, the elder, died 2 Edw. IV. 1462, about the age of sixty-two years, and survived his father thirty-four years; Elizabeth, his widow, was living 19 Edw. IV.

7. John Leycester, of Nether-Tabley, Esq; son and heir, married Margery, daughter of John Legh, of High-Legh, de West-hall, Esq; 20 Hen. VI. 1442, (in his father's lifetime) and had nine sons, Thomas Leycester, Hamon, Bryan, Martin, John, Sir Lawrence, a chaplain, Piers, Roger, and Godfrey: Isabel, a daughter, married John Glegge, of Gayton in Wirrall, Esq;

This John Leycester died 1496, 12 Hen. VII. about the age of seventy-three years, and survived his father thirty-four years.

8. Tho-

Margaret, sixth daughter and coheir of Robert Grosvenor, of Houlme, near Nether-Pever, Esq; whom he married, 1464, 4 Edw. IV. and had issue by her, John Leycester, son and heir; and Margery-Grosvenor, fourth daughter and coheir, dying without issue, 1474. The second wife of Thomas Leycester, was Margery, the widow of Edmund Legh, of Baggilegh, Esq; and daughter of Sir John Savage, of Clifton, near Halton in Cheshire; she was married to Thomas Leycester, 17 Edw. IV. 1477, and by him had issue, Arthur Leycester, and Geoffry, living 1508.

The third wife of Thomas Leycester, was Elizabeth, the widow of Peter Dutton, of Hatton, Esq; and daughter of Sir Robert Fowlehurst, of Crew in Cheshire, whom he married, 22 Hen. VII. 1506.

The fourth wife was, Blanch, the rich widow of Oliver Berdesley, of Warrington, whom he married, 1522, 14 Hen. VIII. but he had no issue by her.

Thomas Leycester, of Tabley, Esq; died about 1526, 18 Hen. VIII. about the age of eighty-two years, and survived his father thirty years.

9. John Leycester, of Nether-Tabley, Esq; son and heir, married Lucy, daughter of John Ratcliffe, of Ratcliffe in Lancashire, Esq; 19 Edw. IV. 1479; by whom he had issue, William Leycester, who married Anne, daughter of Richard Sneyd, of Bradwell in Staffordshire, Esq; 23 Hen. VII. 1508; but William dying without issue, in the life-time of John, his father, Anne, his widow, married Roger Hurleston, of Chester, Esq; 25 Hen. VIII. 1533.

VIII. Joan, another base daughter; she was called Joan Birchenhead, 1543, and Margaret.

This John Leycester, of Tabley, died 35 Hen. VIII. 1543, and was buried at Great-Budworth, in our lady Mary's chapel there, in the appropriate burial-place of his family, in the twentyventy-seventh year of his age, and survived his father seventeen years.

10. Piers Leycester, of Nether-Tabley, Esq; son and heir of John, by Alice, his second wife, married Alice, daughter of Sir John Holford, of Holford, juxta Nether-Tabley, 21 Hen. VIII. 1529, by whom he had issue, Peter, Adam, William, third son, from whom the Leycesters, of Legh in Staffordshire, descended; Alice, a daughter, married Geoffrey Brereton, son and heir of Sir Richard Brereton, of Tatton, nigh Knotsford, 1551, 5 Edw. 163. HALES, of Coventry, Warwickshire.

Created BARONET, August 28, 1660.

THIS family descends from Thomas Hales, of Hales-place in Kent, a younger branch of the family of Hales, of Woodchurch, (for whose descent see No. 152,) which Thomas was father of James, whose son John had issue, Thomas, who was an alderman of the city of Canterbury, and by the daughter of Trefrie, of Cornwall, had four sons, from whom several considerable persons descended, and therefore we shall distinctly treat of them. 1. Christopher, who married a daughter of Thomas Lucy, of Cherlecote in Warwickshire, Esq; and had John, his son and heir, and heir to his uncle, as hereafter mentioned. 2. John Hales, clerk of the Hannaper, temp. Hen. VIII. of whom Anthony Wood says, ‘ He was commonly ‘ called club-foot Hales, because in his younger days he had ‘ got that deformity by a wound from his own dagger at the ‘ bottom of his foot. This person being very much addicted to ‘ letters from his childhood, was sent to the university, and having a happy memory, accompanied with incredible industry, ‘ became admirably well skilled in the Latin, Greek, and Hebrew tongues, and at length in the municipal laws, and in ‘ antiquities, which made him admired by all ingenious men ‘ of his time. In the reign of Hen. VIII. he was clerk of the ‘ Hamper (Hannaper) for several years, and obtained a fair ‘ estate in Warwickshire, and elsewhere, upon the dissolution ‘ of monasteries and chauntries; founded a free-school at Coventry, and for the use of the youth to be taught there, did write,

‘ Introductiones ad Grammaticam, partly in English, and partly ‘ in Latin. He wrote also, Highway to Nobility; and translated ‘ into English, Precepts for the Preservation of Health. When ‘ Queen Mary came to the crown, he fled beyond sea as a vo‘ luntary exile; and settling at Frankfort in Germany, we find ‘ him a zealous man for the uniting the exiles there in peace.
 ‘ When Queen Elizabeth succeeded, he returned, and the first ‘ thing that made him then to be noted was, an oration to ‘ Queen Elizabeth, at her first entrance to her reign; it was ‘ not spoken, but delivered in writing to her by a nobleman.
 ‘ He also wrote a little book in favour of the house of Suffolk, ‘ especially of the children of Edward Seymour, earl of Hert‘ ford, eldest son of Edward, duke of Somerset, who was mar‘ ried to the lady Katherine Grey, daughter of Henry, duke of ‘ Suffolk, (of near alliance in blood to the Queen) the effect
 ‘ of which was, to derive the title of the crown of England,
 ‘ in case Queen Elizabeth should die without issue, to the house
 ‘ of Suffolk. This marriage, notwithstanding the archbishop ‘ of Canterbury, did by his sentence pronounce unlawful, yet
 ‘ our author Hales, who was esteemed a man very opinionative, ‘ though otherwise very learned, did maintain in the said book,
 ‘ that their sole consent did legitimate their conjunction. Which ‘ pamphlet flying abroad, came straightway to the court: where‘ upon the Queen and the nobles being highly offended, the au‘ thor was quickly discovered, and forthwith imprisoned in the ‘ Tower of London. Soon after (says Wood) Nicholas Bacon, ‘ then lord-keeper, was presumed to have had a finger in it, for ‘ which he had like to have lost his office, if Sir Anthony ‘ Browne, who had been lord chief-justice of the Common-pleas
 ‘ in Queen Mary’s time, would have accepted of it, which her ‘ Majesty offered to him, and the earl of Leicesters earnestly ex‘ horted him to take it, but he refused it, for that he was of a ‘ different religion from the state; and so Sir Nicholas Bacon ‘ remained in his place, at the great instance of Sir William ‘ Cecil, (afterwards lord treasurer) who, though he was to ‘ be privy to the said book, yet was the matter so wisely laid ‘ upon Hales and Bacon, that Sir William was kept free, and ‘ thereby had more authority and grace to procure the other’s ‘ pardon, as he did. Soon after, John Lesley, bishop of Ross, ‘ a great creature of Mary, Queen of Scots, did answer that ‘ book, for which he got the good-will of many, of others not.
 ‘ As for our author Hales, he gave way to fate on the 5th of
 ‘ the calends of January, in fifteen hundred seventy and two.
 ‘ He died without issue, so that his estate, which chiefly lay in ‘ Warwickshire, of which his principal house in Coventry, ‘ called Hales-place, otherwise the White-friers, was part,
 ‘ went

‘ went to John, son of his brother Christopher Hales, (some‘ time also an exile at Frankfort) whose posterity doth remain
 ‘ there.’ Sir William Dugdale, in his Antiquities of Warwick‘ shire, mentions that ‘ St. John’s hospital in Coventry, was ‘ by letters patents, dated July 23, 37 Hen. VIII. with all the ‘ lands and possessions thereunto belonging, granted unto John ‘ Hales, Gent. and his heirs; which John, being an active ‘ man in those days, and clerk of the Hamper (an office then of ‘ no small benefit) and having accumulated a great estate in mo‘ nastery and chantry lands, resolved to erect a lasting monument ‘ to his memory, (for he had neither child nor wife) and there‘ upon designing the foundation of a free-school here, and that
 ‘ the King should have the honour thereof, (for which respect
 ‘ he had no little favour in his purchases, as I have credibly heard) ‘ obtained license for the amortizing of lands thereto, of CC.
 ‘ marks per Ann. value; converting the buildings to that use.
 ‘ Howbeit, till 15 Eliz. which was the year wherein he died,
 ‘ this school, so by him begun to be founded, was not certainly ‘ endowed: but then his executors, Thomas Docwra, of Offely
 ‘ in Hertfordshire, Esq; and Bartholomew Hales, of Snytter-‘ field in Warwickshire, Gent. in accomplishment of the trust ‘ reposed in them by the said John, did by deed convey and assure ‘ unto the mayor, bailiffs, and commonalty of Coventry, the ‘ site of the said hospital, and lands thereto appertaining, with ‘ divers messuages, &c. to maintain masters, and ushers, &c.

‘ This John Hales bought also the White-fryers in Coventry,
 ‘ of Sir Ralph Sadler, Knt. It was he whom the learned Le‘ land called Hales with the club-foot; which lameness and de-‘ formity was occasioned (as I have heard) by a wound with ‘ a dagger, that casually, in running, fell forth of the sheath
 ‘ into the dirt, so that as he stepped forward, the sole of his foot ‘ did hit upon the point thereof. He died 5 cal. Jan. anno 1572;
 ‘ and by will appointed Hales-place, alias White-fryers, in ‘ Coventry, to be sold: he was buried in the church of St.
 ‘ Peters the Poor in Broad-street, London. But notwithstanding
 ‘ the before specified appointment, it was not accordingly ‘ sold; for John Hales, Esq; descended from Christopher, his ‘ eldest brother, enjoyed it, and left it to his son Christopher ‘ Hales, Esq; whose son, Sir John Hales, Knt. and Bart. left ‘ issue, Sir Christopher Hales, Bart. who died a batchelor, ‘ about 1717; whose brother, Sir Edward, upon his death, ‘ procured an act of parliament for the sale of it, in order to ‘ discharge Sir Christopher’s debts, and was purchased by John,
 ‘ duke of Montagu; who, in 1722, conveyed it to Samuel Hill,
 ‘ of Shenston-park in Staffordshire, Esq; who enjoys the lands,

‘ but the mansion-house was sold to two tradesmen in Coventry, and it is now filled with weavers and Jersey combers.’

The third son of Thomas, alderman of Canterbury, before-mentioned, was Bartholomew Hales, of Snitterfield in Warwickshire, Esq; who married Mary, daughter and heir of George Harpur, Esq; and was father of Sir Bartholomew Hales, of Snitterfield, Knt. who married Catherine, daughter of Sir Thomas Griesley, of Drakelow in Derbyshire, Knt. relict of Francis Dethick, of Newhall, Esq; (she afterwards married, to her third husband, Henry Gibbs, Esq;) and had only one daughter, Elizabeth, who died before her father, Sir Bartholomew, who died 1619. The fourth son of Thomas, was Stephen Hales, of Newland in Warwickshire, Esq; who married Anne, daughter of Richard Morrifon, of Buckinghamshire, and was father of Sir Charles Hales, of Newland, Knt. one of the King’s council at York, who died Feb. 2, 1618, leaving issue by Elizabeth, daughter of Walter Fish, of London, Stephen Hales, of Newland, Esq; heir to his cousin, Sir Bartholomew; he married Abigail, daughter of William Walter, of Wimbledon in Surry, Esq; was father of Sir Stephen Hales, Knight of the Bath, who died S. P. 1668, and lies buried at Snitterfield in Warwickshire.

But to return to the elder branch, John Hales, Esq; of White-friers in Coventry, son and heir of Christopher, and heir to his uncle John, clerk of the Hannaper; was father of Christopher Hales, Esq; who had three sons; 1. John; 2. — Hales, a Turkey-merchant in London; and 3. — Hales, of Lincoln.

John Hales, Esq; of the White-friers in Coventry, was advanced to the dignity of a Baronet, 12 Car. II. He married a daughter of alderman Johnson, of London, by whom he had Sir Christopher, his successor; Sir Edward, successor to his brother; and Dorothy, married to Michael Rutter, of Burton on the hill in Gloucestershire, Esq; and another daughter, married to Mr. Eyre, of Lincoln.

Sir Christopher Hales, Bart. eldest son and successor, represented the city of Coventry in parliament, most part of the reign of King William, and great part of Queen Anne’s, but dying unmarried, Jan. 7, 1716-17, was succeeded in dignity and estate by his brother,

Sir Edward Hales, Bart. who married the daughter of — Thorpe, of Middlesex, Esq; and died Sept. 1720, leaving issue three sons; 1. Sir Christopher, his successor; 2. Edward, who married Jan. 1735-6, Susannah, daughter of Charles Bertie, of Uffington, in the county of Lincoln, Esq; and 3. John; also also three daughters, Anne, Catherine, and Elizabeth; one of which married Mr. Taylor, of London.

Sir Christopher Hales, eldest son and successor to his father, is the present Baronet, and married, Sept. 1736, Mrs. Harrison, daughter of lady Wray, (relict of Sir Cecil Wray, Bart.) by her first husband, Edward Harrison, of Morely, in the county of Antrim in Ireland, Esq; by whom he hath one son, Christopher, and a daughter, Elizabeth.

164. SWINBURNE, of Capheaton, Northumberland.

Created BARONET, September 26, 1660.

THIS family takes its name from their ancient patrimony, or habitation, Swinburne-Castle, in the county of Northumberland; a lordship heretofore appertaining to the Umfraviles, Barons of Prudhou, of whom they held it, and bore allusive arms, as now used; some have esteemed them Barons by tenure, but Sir William Dugdale has not noted them as such; though it is evident they had ample possessions, and were of equestrian dignity.

The first I meet with is in a deed without date, from John, the prior, and the convent of Angulstald, (Hexham) giving and granting to John, son of Richard, de East-Swinburne, all the lands which Sampson de Swinburne sometime held of them in that town, and in Stelden, with pasture in the moor of Gunwarton, &c. witnessed by Hugh de Bolebet, &c. Knts. John de East-Swinburne, &c. and others. Which John de East-Swinburne, I take to be the eldest son of John, and that he was afterwards a Knight; the same so expressed in a charter of John de Cambow, sans date; and in another, sans date, of Sir William de Haulton, Knt. thus named, His testibus Dom. Roberto de Ballio, tunc Vic. Com. Northumb. (he was sheriff 26 & 27 Edw. I.) Johanne de Swinburne, Militibus, Johanne de Insula de Woodburne, Roberto de Prudhow, (i. e. Umfravile, his father Gilbert, earl of Angos, then living) & al. And that the son of Sir John Swinburne, was Robert, to whom King Edward I. in the eighth year of his reign, for his good services done in Scotland, and to be done hereafter, granted the manour of Knarfedale, with the appurtenances, within the liberty of Tindale, which had been John Pratt's, one of the King's enemies, and forfeited by his rebellion; to hold in fee of the crown, by the same services as Pratt performed. This was given by the King and council, and sealed with a great green wax seal. Next was Sir Adam de Swinborne, Knt. living 8 Edw. II. who had issue, Adam, written Baron Swinborne, of Swinborne, 20 Ed. II. whose sisters and coheirs were, Christiana, married to John de Widderington; Barbara, to John de Strivelyn, of Built-Castle in Cumberland, summoned a Baron from 16 to 44 Ed. III. and Elizabeth, to Walter Heron, of Haddiston. By which match, Swinburne-Castle, the ancient seat of this family, devolved to the Widderingtons, who sold it to the Riddels.

The elder house being expired, the younger had commencement in Sir William, brother or son, I presume, to Sir John; which Sir William was living 42 Hen. III. for then, or before, Reginald Prath had enfeoffed him, by deed dated at Chollerton, in the eighth year of the reign of King Alexander, son of Alexander, king of Scots, in presence of Sir William Heron, then sheriff of Northumberland, (he was sheriff from 11 to 42 Hen. III. inclusive) Richard de Middleton, Roger de Sayhington, then bailiff of Hexteldefham, Nicholas de Swinburne, Nicholas de Veteriponte, then bailiff of Tyndale, John de Swinburne, &c.

Neither was he in less favour with the Scots; for, at the instance of Queen Margaret, he was appointed treasurer, as appears by account taken, 1263, from the year 1259; which he also enjoyed, 1269, a mandamus being then sent from her to them of Cumberland, to be answerable to him her treasurer, for dispatching her business there, or to his substitute. About this time, also, Bartholomew Pratt, released to him Williamston, being therein stiled dominus, or knight, attested, among others, by John Cumyn, John de Swinburne, Knts. &c. at Wark in Tindale, 31 of King Alexander, of Scotland.

Sir William de Swinburne held the manor of Bavington, of Roger Bertram, Baron of Milford, for which he paid him forty marks; William de Dyvelliston, Knt. John de Swinborne, Walter de Swethope, Nicholas de Swinburne, &c. being bound for the same, 46 Hen. III. 1261.

As for Chollerton, he exchanged it with Alan, de West-Swinburne, for Great Heaton, now called Capheaton, 1264; and residing at Haluton in Tyndale, 1278, John de Lisse, whose family were afterwards high-sheriffs of the county, swore their fealty and service in Clientela, to him and his posterity, for twenty twenty shillings rent, to be annually received at the manour of Haluton.

Brothers of Sir William, were Alan, aforesaid, rector of the church of Wylefield, living 55 Hen. III. and 3 Ed. I. I presume also, Nicholas, occurring in dateless charters relating to this house, and who made a donation to Sir Walter Chaplain, for himself and successors to celebrate divine service in the chapel of the Blessed Virgin in West-Swinburne, which Thomas de Fisseburne, 1273, ratified by deed, dated at Swinburne; William de Swinburne, Robert de Lisse, lord of Chipchase, Knts. Alan de Swinburne, &c. witnesses.

Sir William was a benefactor to Chollerton church, for the special memorial of himself, wife, and children, every Sunday. And cotemporary with him was another William, stiled of Houghton-strother, perhaps his son, (or more probably the same) to whom Alexander, King of Scots, at the like instance of Queen Margaret, in the twenty-fourth year of his reign, grants a verdorship; and to one of these William's, Alexander was son and heir, who, by deed without date, entailed his manour of Heaton, which Alan de Swinburne held for term of his life, by demise of William de Swinburne, (Alexander's father) and which, after Alan's death, ought to descend as heir to Alexander, settling it upon his son and heir William.

Sir Alexander Swinburne, for he was a Knight, married Agnes de Thornhill, by whom was issue, Beatrix, married to William de Kergill, and endowed of lands in Haughton, by her mother, which was confirmed at Newcastle, 10 Ed. II. by Sir William Swinborne, Knt. son of Sir Alexander, but I reckon by a former wife.—Sir Alexander was living 34 Ed. I. at which time his son and heir, William, gave him a discharge for two hundred marks sterling, granted yearly to him (William) and his lawful heirs, by Alice, daughter of Sir John de Vaux, out of all his father Alexander's lands, sealed by the said William, Sir John de Vaux, and Sir Alan Swinburne, and given at Haweton in Tindale, 11 Oct. 1306.

This said William died about 1333, having had issue a daughter, married to John de Thellwall; and another Sir William, who, 1343, paid 23*l.* sterling, for his manour of Capheaton, to Adam de Vaux, lord of Beaumont.—In 1347, he was a witness to an indenture of Alexander Fenwick, of lands to his son, John Fenwick. 16 Rich. II. 1392, Sir Thomas de Swinburne, Knt. constituted him and William Tesdale, of Kaversdale, his attorneys. The same year, Robert Steel, vicar of the college of Windsor, proctor, and especial attorney of that college, grants him, and Sir William Angram, vicar of the church of Symondburne, by indenture the said parochial church of Symondburne, dated at Hexham. 18 Rich. II. is a receipt from William Kettering, receiver of John, duke of Aquitaine and Lancaster, whereby it appears that the said duke had granted Sir William 20 l. per Ann. for his life. And 30 Ed. III. he is mentioned in an inquisition of felonies, taken then before him, and John de Swinburne, Thomas de Herle, and others, of Newcastle upon Tyne. 21 Rich. II. the King doth pardon and remife to him, all manner of escapes of felons and fugitives, the grant having a great white wax seal appendant. 22 Ric. II. 1399, William, lord of Hilton, remifed to him all his right in the manors of Stanfordham, and Le Hugh, in Northumberland. 22 Ric. II. there was an indenture between him and Edmund, earl of Warwick, dated at London. 1 Hen. IV. he was receiver-general to Henry de Percy, as by indenture then made; and 3 Hen. IV. having been constable of the castle of Bellum Mariscum, he is mentioned in a lease, made then and there, between him and Thomas Barnaby; about which time he died, having had to wife, Mary, daughter to ———, as by a receipt from Robert Horsley to her, for 37 l. 6s. in part of a greater sum, dated at Swinborne, 5 Hen. IV. 1403, wherein she is called lady Mary, who was the wife of Sir William de Swinburne, Knt. and their issue were, a third Sir William; and Robert; also a daughter, Joan, married to John de Lyfle.

As for the sons, there was an entailment made by Richard Vaux, and Robert Lang, who granted unto William all those lands, rents, and services, which they had in Northumberland, and liberties of Riddale and Tindale, in demefne and service, to hold unto the said William, of his lawful heirs, of the chief lord of the fee, by the usual services; failing them, to Robert, his brother; failing them, to Alan Swinburne, for term of life; and after his decease, to John, son of John de Thirlewall, the younger, and his lawful heirs males, with a proviso that John bare the name and arms of the said William, son of William de Swinburne; failing him, unto Richard, son of Alan de Swinburne; and failing them, the manor of Ralys, with Altercops, to remain to the right heirs of the said William, for ever, dated at Chollerton, on the vigil of the ascension, 1 Ric. II.

Sir William de Swinburne, the third, in 4 Hen. VI. was retained by Sir Robert Ogle, for the safe keeping of Barwick-castle, committed to his custody; and in 21 Hen. VI. 1442, he entailed de la Hugh, and Stanfordham, on his cousin John Swinburne, and his heirs; and for want of issue, to his own right heirs. What issue he had, if any, I cannot find, or where he died; but his cousin John was his next heir; which John was a very religious man, as by an old writing with a conventual seal, sheweth; for the Minim-friars at Newcastle received several charities of the said John, and Iris, his wife, whereupon they promise to pray for them, as benefactors, after the same manner they were wont to do, for their own brethren, friends, &c. in a recommendation as well before as after their death. Another John, was a great benefactor to Baliol College, Oxford, for lands in Stanfordham, which the said college now enjoys, by virtue of his grant, in perpetual and pure alms, by deed about four hundred and fifty years ago.

John Swinburne, Esq; cousin and heir of Sir William, before-mentioned, had issue, Thomas, who bought Edlingham, and other lands, of Sir Roger Hastings, Knt. and had issue, Francis, of whom hereafter; and George, who had Edlingham, and from him proceeded Roger Swinburne, of Nafferton, Esq; who, temp. Hen. VIII. gave to the prior and convent of Hexham in Northumberland, lands, &c. to find a canon in the church of Ovingham, for the weal of his own, and his ancestors souls: and having had in marriage a daughter and heir of Errington, of Setham, Esq; by her descended John, who died S. P. and Thomas, father of John, who had Sir Thomas, of Edlingham, Knt. high-sheriff of Northumberland for two years together; but dying without issue, 1645, his sisters had the estate; the eldest whereof, and at length sole heir, Margaret, being married to William Swinburne, of Capheaton, Esq; in him the two branches were united, for he was son and heir to Thomas Swinburne, of Capheaton, Esq; by Margaret, his wife, daughter of ——— Lawson, of Little-Usworth in Durham, Esq; the lineal descendant and heir-male of Francis, grandson and heir of John, cousin and heir to Sir William Swinburne, Knt. before-mentioned. Which Thomas, by Margaret, his wife, before-mentioned, had also another son, John, of Blackheadon in Northumberland, who married Mary, daughter and sole heir of Robert Collingwood, of Eslington, Esq; and had four daughters, his coheirs, and lies in the burying-place of the family, in Stanfordham church: the daughters of the said Thomas and Margaret, were six, Elizabeth, wife, first, of William Aynsley, of Shaftoe, and afterwards, of William Thirlwall; Grace, married to Gawen Rotherford, of Rochester in Northumberland, Esqrs; Margaret, of Charles Rotherford, of Black-hall in Durham; Ursula, of ——— Rotherford; Mary, married to Robert Dent, of Byker; and Elianor, to Thomas Ogle, of South Dissington in Northumberland, Esqrs.

Which William Swinburne, Esq; the eldest son and heir of Thomas, possessed Capheaton, and other large estates of the family in Northumberland, and other places; and while young

he was very active in defence of his country, and took William Aynsley, of Fawlep, a Scotchman, prisoner, whom to save off the rigour of justice from a son of his, he obliged himself, with four of his sons, and for Thomas Aynsley, an Englishman, and all that bear that name in Scotland, under pain of reproof and banishing, to be faithful, true and just to the family of Swinburne, of Capheaton, his sons, tenants, &c. 28 Feb. 1601. And 6 Car. I. 1630, he paid 25*l.* composition, for not attending and receiving the honour of knighthood, at his Majesty's coronation, according to the law in that case. Upon the breaking out of the civil wars, he was often plundered by the rebels; and in 1653, his estate was under sequestration, and forfeited to the commonwealth for treason, so called by those enemies to the King and government; he died upon the 6th of November, 1653, and was buried in Stanfordham church, with his ancestors; having had two wives, the first of which was the aforesaid Margaret, the sole daughter and heir of John Swinburne, of Edlingham, Esq; by whom he had issue two sons, John and William; the last died without issue; and three daughters, Anne, Mary, and Catherine, married to John Danby, of Leek in Yorkshire, Esq; his second wife was Jane, daughter and sole heir of Matthew Bee, of Nine-banks in Northumberland, Esq; by whom he had issue five sons, William, of Haliwell in Durham; and Thomas, who both died without issue; Matthew; Francis, which last died young; and Alan, who married Frances, daughter of Sir Nicholas Thornton, of Whitton-castle in Northumberland, Knt. and two daughters, Margaret, married to Nicholas, second son of Sir Tho. Tempest, of Stella in Durham, Bart. and Jane, to William Charleton, of Hesleside in Northumberland, Esq;

John Swinborne, Esq; eldest son and heir, succeeded his father, from whom he imbibed his principles of loyalty, for which King Charles I. granted him a patent for a Baronet, but through the iniquity of those days, which was hard upon him on that score, the same was never taken out, and several of his deeds and evidences were fraudulently embezzled. He married thrice, first, Dorothy, eldest daughter of Cuthbert Heron, of Chipchase, Esq; secondly, Isabel, daughter of Sir Thomas Tempest, of Stella, Bart. by whom was issue, Troath, married to Henry Grey, of Bitchfield in Northumberland; and Isabel, to George Forcer, of Harberhouse in Durham, Esqrs; thirdly, Anne, eldest daughter of Sir Charles Blount, of Maple-durham in Oxfordshire, Knt. by whom he had issue his son and heir,

John Swinborne, of Capheaton, Esq; whom his Majesty in the twelfth year of his reign, (having regard to his loyalty, and and zeal for the restoration) advanced to the dignity of a Baronet. About the year 1668, he pulled down the old castle at Capheaton, and rebuilt in the same place a goodly mansion-house, after the modern fashion, three fronts whereof are hewn work; it is seated in a champaign country, near the spring of the river Blythe, which waters great part of the demesne. He was singularly easy in his afflictions, and in his prosperity favourable to his neighbours, both by hospitality, and other good offices; which generous temper gained him the respect and affection of his country, till he died, June 19, 1706. His lady was Isabel, sole daughter and heir of Henry Lawson, of Brough in Yorkshire, Esq; (by Catherine, his wife, one of the daughters and coheirs of Sir William Fenwick, of Meldon, Bart. and Margaret, his wife, daughter and coheir of Sir Arthur Grey, of Chillingham, Knt.) by whom he had twenty-four children, whereof two daughters married, viz. Anne, to Nicholas Thornton, of Nether-Whitton in Northumberland, and Troath, to William Dacre, of Leonard-coast-abbey in Cumberland, Esqrs;

Sir William Swinburne, Bart. eldest son and heir, succeeded his father in honour and estate. He married, 1697, Mary, daughter of Anthony Englefield, of White-knights in Berkshire, Esq; by whom he had issue three sons, Sir John, his successor; Matthew married, 1738, to Eleanora Thirlwall, sole heiress of Thirlwall-castle in Northumberland; and Thomas. Sir William died in 1716.

Sir John Swinburne, Bart. his son and heir, born in 1698, succeeded his father in title and estate; and in 1721, married Mary, only daughter of Edward, son of Sir Henry Bedingfield, of Oxbrough in Norfolk, Bart. and by her had two sons, Sir John, the eldest, born in 1724, and Sir Edward, besides several daughters. Sir John died in Jan. 1744, and was succeeded by his eldest son,

Sir John Swinburne, Bart. who died without issue, April 4, 1762, and was succeeded by his brother, Sir Edward Swinburne, who is the present Baronet. His lady died Aug. 20, 1768.

165. MAINWARING, of Over-Peover, Cheshire.

Created BARONET, Nov. 22, 1660.

THIS family is of great antiquity, being descended from Ranulphus, who entered England with William the Conqueror, on the Norman invasion.

Which Ranulphus was one of those thirty-two persons, to whom the Conqueror gave all, or most part of Cheshire, and had given him, for his part, fifteen lordships there, amongst which was, Peure, (now Over-Peover) the continued seat of the family.

Richard de Mesnilwaren, or Mainwaring, son of Ranulphus, had issue, Roger, who gave Plumley to the abbey of St. Werburge in Chester, when he made his son, Wido, a monk there; William and Randle, his sons, being witnesses; which grant, with many others, Richard, earl of Chester, confirmed, 1119, 19 Hen. I. William, his son and heir, had issue, Roger, whole son, Sir Raufe Mainwaring, Knt. was justice of Chester, temp. Rich. I. He married Amicia, daughter of Hugh Kyveliok, earl of Chester.

Roger Manwaring, of Warmincham in Cheshire, was son of Sir Raufe. William Manwaring, son of the above Roger; having Over-Pever, by gift of his father, temp. Hen. III. fixed his habitation there, where his succeeding heirs have ever since continued. He was father of William, Thomas, to whom his father gave Fodon in Over-Peover, Benedict, Guy, Roger, whose son, William, married Margaret, daughter of Roger Toft, of Toft.

William Manwaring, of Over-Peover, son and heir of William, married ———, and had issue, Roger, William, whose daughter, Ellen, married Adam Glasebrook; Reginald, and Maud, a daughter, to whom her father gave a messuage in Over-Peover, which Hammond, of Radbrooke, formerly held.

This William, lord of Over-Peover, lived 1286, 14 Ed. I.

Roger, his son and heir, married Christian de Birtles, and had issue, William, his son and heir; and Joan married to Robert de Fallybrome; this Roger died in the life-time of his father, and Christian, his widow, afterwards married John de Byrun, and lastly, she married Robert de Varnon, living 8 Ed. III. 1334.

William Manwaring, of Over-Peover, son and heir of Roger, married Mary, daughter of Henry Davenport, living 19 Ed. II. and and had issue, William, his son and heir, Roger, Margery, and Millicent, all living 8 Ed. III. 1334; this William died about the 12 or 13 Ed. III.

William Manwaring, of Over-Peover, son and heir, had two wives; 1. Joan, daughter and coheir of William Praers, of Baddiley, near Nantwich, and had issue, William, his son and heir; he married, secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of Nicholas Leycester, and sister of John Leycester, of Nether-Tabley, by whom he had issue, John Manwaring, Randle Manwaring, both afterwards, lords of Over-Peover, successively, Thomas, Alan, and Richard, living 38 Ed. III. also three daughters; Emme, married to Richard Winnington, son and heir of Sir Richard Winnington, near Northwich; Ellen, married to Raufe, son of Richard Vernon, of Shibbrook in Cheshire; and Joan, married to William Legh, of Baggiley. This William Manwaring, was stiled, William Manwaring, the elder, 33 Edw. III. He died 38 Ed. III. 1364; Elizabeth, his widow, survived, and was living, 1405, 6 Hen. IV.

William Manwaring, of Over-Pever, son and heir, had two wives; first, Catherine, daughter of John Belgrave, of Belgrave, in the township of Eccleston in Cheshire, whom he married, 40 Ed. III. 1366; his second wife was, Clementia Cotton, but he had not any issue by either wife. This William settles his estate, upon his departure out of England towards Guyen, 17 Rich. II. 1393, and afterwards made his will, 1394.

His seal, 17 Rich. II. had the impresson of his coat and crest, to wit, in an escocheon, two Bars only, and corner-ways, on the dexter angle, on a helmet, an Afs-head, coupéd, inscribed about—S. Willielmi Maynwaringe. For now, the elder house of Warmincham, was extinct, and devolved to a daughter and heir; wherefore, he bears their coat without distinction, as next heir male, which his heirs have ever since continued, to wit, Argent, two Bars, gules; the Crest, an Afs-head, coupéd, proper.

This William died without issue, 1399, 22 Rich. II. and was buried at Aghton church, leaving John Manwaring, his half-brother, to succeed in his inheritance.

John Manwaring, of Over-Pever, half-brother and heir to the last William, and son to William Manwaring, the elder, by Elizabeth, his second wife, married Margaret, the widow of Sir John Warren, of Pointon in Cheshire, and daughter and heir of Sir John Stafford, of Wigham, about 13 Rich. II. for Sir John Warren died the tenth of Rich. II.

This John Manwaring waited on the prince, afterwards King Henry V. and he was made sheriff of Cheshire, (quamdiu nobis placuerit) 18 Septembris, 4 Hen. IV. and continued sheriff, riff, 5 Hen. IV. and 6 Hen. IV. in which writ, the earl of Chester calls him, Armigerum suum.

He, with Matthew Del Mere, and Thomas Meyshawe, were constituted judges of the goal-delivery at Chester, hâc vice, nono die Aprilis, 5 Hen. IV.

This John Manwaring died without lawful issue, 11 Hen. IV. 1410, leaving his brother, Randle, to succeed in his inheritance: Margaret, his widow, survived, and was living 4 Hen. V. He had a bastard son, by Margery Winnington, called Peter Manwaring.

Randle Manwaring, of Over-Pever, Esq; brother and heir, married Margery, the widow of Richard Buckley, of Chedill in Cheshire, and daughter of Hugh Venables, Baron of Kinder-ton: he petitioned the King for enjoying the dower of Margery, his wife, because he had married her without the King's licence, 16 Rich. II. by whom he had issue, John Manwaring, eldest son; William Manwaring, second son, from whom descended the Manwarings of Ightfield in Shropshire. Mr. Walker, in his Sufferings of the Clergy, says, ' A descendant of this branch, (though a younger son) I take it, was Dr. Roger Manwaring, who was born at Stretton in Shropshire, and educated in the university of Oxford. He was some time vicar of St. Giles's in the Fields, and chaplain to King Charles I. before whom, preaching those sermons, entitled, Religion and Allegiance, he was called in question for it by the parliament, charged with endeavouring to destroy the King and kingdom, by his divinity, and censured to be imprisoned, was fined 1000*l.* and ordered to make his submission, and was disabled to have or enjoy any preferment, or office. However, the King soon after pardoned him, and gave him the rich living of Stanford-Rivers in Essex; in 1633, made him dean of Worcester, and two years after, nominated him to the bishoprick of St. Davids; in 1640, his troubles were revived in parliament; and though the old grudge lay still at the bottom of the prosecution, yet the new crimes of popish innovations, conversing with papists, and being sociable and jovial, were trumped up against him, upon which he was, (as Lloyd, in his Memoirs, p. 274, expresses it) apprehended suddenly, confined severely, fined heavily, plundered violently, and persecuted from place to place continually, insomuch, that for the two last years of his life, not a week passed over his head, without a messenger, or an injury; which he desired God not to remember against his adversaries, and abjured all his friends to forget. Under these his troubles, he had nothing left but a small temporal estate to support him, and died at Carmarthen, July 16, 1653. He was of a pious life and conversation, and very charitable; as appears particularly, by one of the three great designs which he had in pursuit, namely, the redeeming of captives; and though he laboured under a very severe character with the Puritans, (and not without reason, if the accusation against him was true, of straining the prerogative, in the matter of raising money, without the consent of parliament) yet, by the Royalists, he was esteemed worthy of the great function which he bore; being a person of great zeal for the church of England.' But to return: the third son of Randle Manwaring, Esq; was Randle Manwaring, from whom the Manwarings, of Karincham in Cheshire: Elizabeth, eldest daughter, married Raufe Egerton, of Wrynehill in Staffordshire, Esq; Cicely, to Thomas Fowlehurst, of Crew in Cheshire; Joan, married John Davenport, son and heir of Raufe Davenport, of Davenport in Cheshire, 1411; Ellen, married Thomas Fitton, of Gawsfworth in Cheshire; Agnes, another daughter, was affianced to William Bromley, of Badington in Cheshire, son of Sir John Bromley; but she died before marriage; whereupon he married Margaret, sister to Agnes, 4 Hen. VI. 1426. This Margaret was widow, 15 Hen. VI. 1436, and afterwards married Sir John Nedham, of Crannach, Juslicarius de banco, and judge of Chester, 1 Ed. IV.

This Randle was also a courtier, styled, Armiger regis, the King's servant, and Sagittarius de coronâ, 21 Rich. II. and went into Ireland with his brother John, in the King's service, 22 Rich. II. He had a bastard son, by Emme Farrington, called Hugh Manwaring, from whom, the Manwarings, of Croxton, nigh Middlewich; also, Thomas Manwaring, of North-rode, another bastard son, 12 Rich. II. and Randle, another bastard son; and also three bastard daughters. This Randle Manwaring, of Over-Pever, styled commonly, Honkyn Manwaring, in the language of those times, died 35 Hen. VI. 1456, buried at Over-Pever, in the stone chapel, on the south side of the church; which chapel, Margery, his wife, surviving, erected, with the two monuments therein, for herself, and husband, 1456.

Created BARONET, December 22, 1660.

THE present Sir Thomas-Charles Keyt, Bart. is descended from an ancient and worshipful family of Ebrington, in the county of Gloucester, of near four hundred years continuance, as appears from the inscription on the monument of William Keyt, Esq; who died 1632.

The said William Keyt, Esq; was twice married; first, to Eglantine, daughter of Edmond Riley, of Camden in Gloucestershire, by whom he had two sons; John, who succeeded him in his estate; and William, who died unmarried, March 28, 1642, æt. 57, and lies buried at Ebrington; and two daughters, Anne, married to Mr. John Andrews, of Aftall in Oxfordshire; and Elizabeth, married to Mr. Glover. The second wife of the said William Keyt, Esq; was, Eleanor, the relict of Mr. Thomas Porter, of Mickleton, in the county of Gloucester, aforesaid, daughter and coheir of John Salmon, of Nottingham, Gent. by whom he had no issue. This William Keyt was high-sheriff of the county of Worcester, and rich in good works, as well as in worldly estate, being not only charitable to the poor in his life-time, but also at his death. He died on the 15th day of October, 1632, according to his epitaph; but according to the parish register, he was buried on the 12th of that month, and in the seventy-eighth year of his age.

John Keyt, Esq; the eldest son of William, above-mentioned, had also two wives; first, Jane, the daughter of Mr. Thomas Porter, of Mickleton, aforesaid, (by Eleanor, his wife, daughter and coheir of John Salmon, of Nottingham) secondly, Margaret, the daughter of Mr. William Harrison, of Caddicroft, in the county of Worcester, and the widow of Mr. Bovey, of King's-Coughton, in the county of Warwick; by the latter, he had no issue; but by the former, he had seven sons and five daughters: his sons were, 1. This Sir William Keyt, Bart. followed the example of his worthy progenitors, in being a constant adherer to the church of England, and a truly loyal subject; courteous and friendly to his neighbours, beloved and honoured in his country. He died Nov. 30, 1702, having survived all his sons, whereof one only was married, viz. his third son, William Keyt, Esq; who was married Aug. 19, 1687, to his cousin, Agnes, the eldest daughter of Sir John Clopton, of Clopton, Knt. by Barbara, the only daughter and heir of Sir Edward Walker, Knt. garter principal king of arms; and he had issue by her, seven sons and four daughters; the sons were, 1. 172. FRANKLAND, of Thirkelby, Yorkshire.

Created BARONET, December 24, 1660.

THIS family is undoubtedly of very great antiquity in the county of York, and it is probable they came over with the Conqueror, as we soon after find the names of Julian, Sigga, Gilbert, William, and Robert Frankeland, or Franckland, as giving lands to the abbies and priories of Couton-North, Carleton near Thirsk, and several other places in that county. We shall, however, begin the account of this family from their first settlement at Ickeringill, in the parish of Skipton, and Pacehouse and Blubberhouses, in the parish of Fewstone, in the county of York: of which places was, Richard, who inherited a considerable estate, which his brother William, of Rye in Hertfordshire, had acquired in trade as a clothworker. He was one of the principal persons in obtaining the charter for the incorporation of that company, 1530, and dying in 1570, left all his wealth to his brother Richard, as above-mentioned, except his houses in Thames-street, which he left to the clothworkers company, on their paying a trifling charity to the poor of the parishes of Haslewood, Summerscales, and Stories in Yorkshire, and also to the parish where he resided in London.

Richard died in the year 1589, leaving issue three sons; 1. Hugh, who married Joan, (or rather Joice) daughter of — Traps, of London, goldsmith, and died in Jan. 1606, S. P. 2. Ralph, of whom hereafter; and 3. John, of Westhouse, near Pacehouse, who left two sons, but both died bachelors.

Ralph was of Carlton, near Thirsk, and had issue by his wife, Margaret, 1. William; 2. Richard, who had issue two daughters: Margaret, married to Thomas Bannister, and Joan, to Thomas Palliser, of Newby Wiske, Esq.

The last mentioned William married Lucia, daughter of Sir Henry Boteler, of Hatfield-Woodhall in Hertfordshire, Knt. by whom he had seven sons and one daughter; 1. Henry, of whom hereafter; 2. John; 3. Charles, who were both of Bernard's-Inn, and died unmarried; 4. William, rector of Oswaldkirk, who left a daughter, Grace, that died unmarried; 5. Richard, M. A. who was rector of Giggleswick, in the county of York: he married a daughter of Dr. Saunderson, of Hedley-Hope, in the bishoprick of Durham, by whom he had sons and daughters. This gentleman, dying in 1698, was buried in Giggleswick church, where his daughters erected a handsome monument to his memory. 6. Matthew, who was brought up to the sea, and unfortunately drowned; 7. Thomas, of Silverdale, who married the daughter of ——— Talbot, of Thornton-le-street, but had no issue. Frances, the daughter, married, first, John Wright, of Bagby in Yorkshire, Esq; secondly, to Sir Hugh Bethell, of Ellerton, Knt.

Henry, the eldest son and heir, had the honour of knighthood conferred upon him by the earl of Strafford, in Dublin, in 1637. He married Anne, daughter of Sir Arthur Harris, of Crekesley in Essex, Knt. and left issue one son, Sir William, who was advanced to the hereditary dignity of Baronet, Dec. 24, 1660, 12 Car. II. (his father being then living.) He married Arabella, daughter of Henry Bellafyse, Esq; eldest son of Thomas viscount Fauconberg, by whom he left three sons and one daughter, Grace, married to Leonard Smelt, of Kirby-Fletham, Esq; (from whom is descended the present Leonard Smelt, of Leafes in Yorkshire, Esq;) The sons were, 1. Sir Thomas, of whom hereafter; 2. Henry, of Sowerby, clerk of the peace for the North-Riding of Yorkshire, and died in 1736, unmarried; 3. John, appointed dean of Gloucester, May 30, 1723; created master of Sidney college, Cambridge, Feb. 3, 1728; elected vice-chancellor of that university, Nov. 1, 1728; promoted to the deanery of Ely, April 25, 1729; and died in Sept. 1730. He married Mary, daughter of Mr. Turton, merchant, in Bristol, by whom he left one son, John, late fellow of St. John's college, Cambridge, and is the present residentiary of Chichester, vicar of East-Bourne in Suffex, and rector of Sundridge in Kent. His first wife was Margaret, daughter of Dr. Green, dean of Ely, by whom he had one son that died in its infancy; his present wife is Mary, the widow of ——— Pierfon.

Sir Thomas Frankland, Bart. successor to his father, became possessed of a considerable estate at Chiswick, in the county of Middlesex, and other places, by gift of his uncle, the late earl Fauconberg, on the marriage of his nephew Frankland, (descended from Mary, daughter of Oliver Cromwell) to his niece

Eliza-

Elizabeth (descended from Oliver's fourth daughter, Frances) and daughter of Sir John Russell, of Chippenham in Cambridgeshire, Bart. (from this branch of the family is lineally descended the present Baronet, Sir Thomas Frankland.) King William, at the revolution, made this Sir Thomas a commissioner of the Excise, and his son William a page to Queen Mary. By his lady, who died in 1733, he had seven sons and three daughters; 1. Thomas, of whom hereafter; 2. William, who was made treasurer of the stamp-office, and married two wives; first, Margaret, daughter and heiress of ——— Ascough, Esq; by whom he had a son and a daughter, who both died infants; secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. Bawdowin, by whom he had a daughter, Elizabeth, who died unmarried, and died himself, Nov. 28, 1714; 3. John, who died a youth at Hamburg; 4. Henry, of Mattersea in Nottinghamshire, Esq; who made a considerable fortune in the East-Indies, where he died, August 23, 1728, having married Mary, daughter of Alexander Cross, merchant, by whom he had six sons and one daughter; 1. Charles-Henry; 2. Thomas, both hereafter mentioned; 3. William, bred a merchant, and was twenty years in the East-India company's service at Bengal, now of Muntham, in the county of Sussex, Esq; and member of parliament for the borough of Thirsk; 4. Richard, who died an infant; 5. Robert, who died captain of a man of war at Bombay, Dec. 1757; 6. Frederick, who died in July, 1752, at Lisbon, and was a major in the army. He married Melissa, daughter to the reverend Mr. Lang, and left issue, Melissa. The daughter was Harriot, who died an infant on her passage from India.

The fifth son of Sir Thomas was Richard, doctor of civil laws, and of Jesus college, Cambridge: he was commissioner of the salt-office, also comptroller of the penny-post office many years, and died Sept. 21, 1761, unmarried; 6. Frederick, barrister at law, one of the commissioners of the revenues in Ireland, afterwards a commissioner of excise in that kingdom; after that, a commissioner of the excise in England, and then a comptroller of the accounts in that office. He represented the borough of Thirsk in several parliaments, and died March 8, 1768, having been twice married: first to Elizabeth, relict of Adam Cardonnel, Esq; secretary to John, the great duke of Marlborough. She died Jan. 27, 1736-7, by whom he had two sons, Frederick and Arthur, who both died young; also three daughters, Anne and Francis; the two eldest died young; and another Anne, who is married to Thomas lord Pelham, of Stanmer in Sussex, by whom she has seven children. He married, secondly, lady Ann Lumley, sister to the late earl of Scarborough, who died February 28, 1739-40, without issue; 7. Robert, who was supercargo of his brother's (the governor) ship, from Calcutta to the Persian Gulph, had finished his trading voyage, and was ready to return to Bengal; but, unluckily, some of the Lascar sailors who died on board their ship, not being buried above the high-water mark, were washed up with the tide, and the flood brought their bodies up the river, which the natives made a handle of to rob and murder all the Europeans at Judda, of which number he unfortunately happened to be one, and died unmarried.

The daughters of Sir Thomas were, Mary, married to Thomas Worsley, of Hovingham in Yorkshire, Esq; Frances, to Roger Talbot, of the same county, Esq; by whom he had one son, the present Roger Talbot, (late in the militia) and one daughter, Arabella: the other daughter died unmarried.

Sir Thomas died Oct. 29, 1726, having served in several parliaments for the borough of Thirk, and was always extreme zealous for the service of his country. He was many years governor of the post-office, and improved that revenue many thousands a year more than it was in the most flourishing times. He was the first that directed a correspondence with Spain, Portugal, and all our foreign plantations, to the great advantage of our traffic. Queen Anne, on account of his great capacity and honesty, continued him in the office of post-master general.

Sir Thomas Frankland, Bart. his son and successor, was appointed a clerk of the deliveries of the ordnance stores, April 7, 1715, made a commissioner of the revenues for Ireland, April 8, 1724, one of the commissioners for trade and plantations, May 8, 1728, was also secretary to the muster-master-general, and was many years one of the lords commissioners of the admiralty. He likewise represented the borough of Thirk, in five succeeding parliaments, and married Dianal., daughter and heiress of Francis Topham, of Agelthorpe in Richmondshire, in the county of York, Esq; with whom he had a considerable fortune. By her he had two Daughters; 1. Betty, married to John Morley-Trevor, of Glinn-Bourne in Sussex, Esq; and member of parliament for Lewes, in that county, by whom he had no issue; 2. Dianah, married to the right honourable George-Henry Lee, the present earl of Litchfield. Their mother died February 2, 1740-1, and Sir Thomas married, to his second wife, Sarah, daughter of Mr. Moseley, of Worcester-shire, by whom he had one son, who died an infant.

Sir Thomas was brought up in his Majesty's navy, was made a captain in July, 1740, and in Dec. 1744, by fortune of war, made prize, off the Havannah, of a valuable French ship, with a Spanish register homeward-bound, after a smart and obstinate engagement of several hours, and is now a vice-admiral of the red squadron of his Majesty's fleet, and a member for the borough of Thirsk, which he has represented in five succeeding parliaments. He married in May, 1743, at South-Carolina in North-America, Sarah Rhett, grand-daughter to the chief-justice of that province, by whom he has had five sons and eight daughters; 1. Henry, who died an infant; 2. Thomas, born in Sept. 1750, now a student at Merton college, Oxford; 3. Hugh, who died an infant; 4. William; 5. Roger. very great estate in those days) given him by that King, which he chose in Hampshire, and upon that part thereof built his mansion-house, calling it, Beaurepaire, from a place of the same appellation in France, whereof his immediate ancestors were lords, encompassing it with a large moat, dug by his soldiers.) 175. BEDINGFELD, of Oxborough, Norfolk.

Created BARONET, January 2, 1660.

BEDINGFELD is a family (as Mr. Camden informs us) of undoubted antiquity, and takes its name from a town in Suffolk: it is a family that hath enjoyed the honour of knighthood many hundred years, a title (formerly) not granted to any but those of the first rank and quality in their country.

The first of this family, on whom the honour of Baronet was conferred, was, Sir Henry Bedingfeld, of Oxborough in Norfolk, (grandfather of the late Sir Henry Bedingfeld) whose son was the seventeenth Knight of the family, which sufficiently bespeaks the great antiquity of the family; but through the occasion of the civil wars, in which it so eminently suffered, all the ancient deeds and charters were most of them plundered and embezzled. That the ancestor of this family came into England from Normandy, with William the Conqueror, has been a constant tradition of the family; that his name was Longville of no small quality in that province; that having, as well by purchase, as by the king's gifts, possessed themselves of several manors in Suffolk and Norfolk; the manor of Bedingfeld in Suffolk was made their chief seat, and thereupon, according to the custom of those times, they changed their names into that of the manor, viz. Rogerus de Bedingfeld, and which de in process of time being left out, it passed for their surname, as in several other families, viz. The Montfords, Beaumonts, &c. and there is in the family a Bannevolt, such as knights had borne before them in war, with a very ancient French devise.

The manor of Oxburg (with others in Norfolk) came anciently into the family by the marriage of Edmond Bedingfeld with Margaret, daughter of Sir Robert de Tuddenham, Knt. (and Margaret his wife, daughter of Sir John de Herling, Knt. and sister to Sir Robert de Herling, Knt. and aunt and heir to Anne, daughter of Sir Robert) and sister and coheir to Robert de Tuddenham; she died, 14 Edw. IV. and Oxburg, from that time, became their mansion-seat.

This Sir Edmond Bedingfeld was made a knight of the Bath at the coronation of Richard III. King Henry VII. in the third year of his reign, granted to Sir Henry Bedingfeld of Oxburg, three manors in Yorkshire, viz. Wold, Newton and Gaynton, to him and his heirs males for ever, for his faithful service against the northern rebels, which patent was afterwards renewed and confirmed by Henry VIII.

When Edward VI. died, and a court faction had proclaimed Queen Jane Gray, Sir Henry Bedingfeld was one of the first knights that came in to the assistance of Queen Mary with a body of his servants and tenants, she being then at Framlingham castle in the county of Suffolk; and after her coronation, the Queen made him governor of the Tower of London and one of her privy council, as appears by his epitaph on a noble tomb in his own chapel within Oxburg church.

Queen Elizabeth granted to the same Sir Henry Bedingfeld the manor of Caldecot in Norfolk, with the impropriation thereof to him and his heirs, which is a manifest demonstration that she was well pleased with his behaviour towards her while she was his prisoner, and sufficiently confutes that part of the history of a noble prelate, who endeavours to represent him as a rough rude man, and that therefore the queen was wont to call him her jaylor, which, however, may as well be construed a term of royal familiarity as of contempt.

He married Catharine, daughter to Sir Roger Townshend, one of the judges of the court of common pleas, Knt. (ancestor to the late lord viscount Townshend) by whom he had a numerous issue, from whom several branches of the Bedingfelds are descended: Thomas, his grandson (as I take it), married Frances, daughter of Sir John Jernegan, of Somerletown in Suffolk, Knt. (who surviving him was re-married to Sir Henry Jernegan, of Cosley in Norfolk, Knt.) by her he had Henry his son and heir.

But from Sir Henry, the governor of the Tower, to the breaking out of the civil wars in 1641, nothing has been said remarkable of the family but the mighty hospitality from generation to generation, which they have kept up in their own country, where they have retired ever since the reformation.

But upon breaking out of the civil wars, Sir Henry Bedingfeld (son and heir of Thomas beforementioned), the great-grandfather of the late Sir Henry, with his two eldest sons, Thomas and Henry, then ripe for arms, flew to the royal standard; Thomas was made colonel, and Henry a captain of horse, and both behaved themselves with great conduct and courage.

Sir Henry was made prisoner and committed to the Tower, and narrowly escaped death, which, however, he did not long survive after his release. He had two wives, first, Elizabeth, daughter of the lord William Howard, of Naworth-castle, in Cumberland, third son of Thomas duke of Norfolk, and ancestor to the earl of Carlisle, by whom he had only one child, Thomas beforementioned: his second wife was Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of Peter Haughton, Esq; alderman of London, by whom he had four sons and four daughters, viz. Henry, William, Edmund, and John.

Thomas, the only son by the first venter, married Mary, daughter of Robert Brooksby, of Sheffield in the county of Leicester, Esq; and died without issue.---Henry, the second son, married in his eldest brother's life-time, Margaret, daughter and sole heir of Edward Paston, of Appleton in the county of Norfolk, Esq; William, the third son had been bred abroad in military discipline, and was a captain in the guards, and a great favourite of the famous old duke of Lorraine; he afterwards returned into England, married a widow, and died without issue. Edmund, the fourth son, took to the church, became a canon of Lier in Brabant, where he died, in the universal opinion of sanctity, and lies buried on the right side of the choir, under a fair marble tomb. John, the fifth son, died a bachelor.

Of the four daughters, the eldest was married to Colonel Aprice, in the county of Huntingdon, Esq; the second daughter to Thomas Timperley, of Hintlesham in the county of Suffolk, Esq; Elizabeth, the third daughter, to William Cobbe, of Sandringham in the county of Norfolk, Esq; and the fourth daughter to Richard Martyn, of Melford in the county of Suffolk, Esq;

ancestor of the present Sir Mordaunt Martyn, Bart. all which families (except the Cobbes, which is extinct) subsist, and are in a flourishing condition.

Henry Bedingsfeld, Esq; beforementioned, happened to survive all his brothers and sisters (Mrs. Cobbes excepted), and to enjoy a long tranquillity after the restoration of King Charles II. and when he had lain before that prince, who had desired it, a calculation of the sufferings of the family in their estate, which manifestly appeared to be above 45,000*l.* his majesty replied with concern, that it was too great for him to recompence; to which Mr. Bedingsfeld answered, that all he begged of his majesty was, that he might hope for the future, to enjoy in quiet that little which was left.

His majesty afterwards conferred the dignity of a baronet upon him for the great and eminent services done by him and his family; but his son being soon after knighted by his majesty, the father let lie dormant his patent for many years after, which postponed him to many of the order in point of seniority. This gentleman was esteemed one of the most compleat and accomplished men of the age; the comeliness of his person, the clearness of his parts, and that noble sweetness of his temper, gave him so great a credit and authority in his country, as scarce any thing was thought well done without his approbation; and many misunderstandings amongst the greatest families that friends had tried to compromise and could not, were referred to him, and happily determined. Yet the most fortunate part of his character was his felicity in a companion for a wife in the person of the beforementioned Mrs. Margaret Paston, who, besides the great portion she brought, equalled him in all his merits, aided him through all his afflictions, and in his absence, when forced to fly beyond the seas, managed his whole concerns and a numerous family, all with the utmost art and prudence, and so careful in the whole conduct of her life, as Sir Henry in his dying words declared, That she had been a wife who had never once displeased him, and yet if he had lived six weeks longer they had been married fifty years. He died the 6th of Feb. 1684-5, and lies buried in his chapel within Oxborough church, under a fair marble monument, erected for him by his mournful widow, who lies buried by him. He left issue by Margaret aforesaid, three sons and five daughters: 1. Sir Henry, his successor; 2. John, who married Dorothy, one of the daughters and coheirs of John Ramsey, alias Dicks, of Wickmere in the county of Norfolk, Esq; and being in the commission of the peace during the reign of King James II. acquitted himself with the reputation of great integrity, and died in August 1693, leaving two sons, Henry and John, and two daughters, Frances and Mary.

3. Edward, who was designed for court as page of honour to Queen Catherine, and waited there a fortnight as such, but not relishing so indolent a life took to the study of the law in the society of Gray's-inn, from whence being interrupted by the intervention of the popish-plot, he retired into France, where, and in Italy, he passed several years; from whence returning to his studies in Gray's-inn, was, in the reign of King James II. called to the bar and there resided. He married Mary, youngest daughter of Thomas, and one of the sisters of Sir Clement Fisher, of Packington in the county of Warwick, Bart. with whom, during the thirteen years she lived, no mortal man was, or could think himself more happy; he had by her two sons and one daughter, of which the daughter only, Mary, survived, and married Sir John Swinburne, of Capheaton in Northamptonshire, Bart.

Of the daughters of Sir Henry, Elizabeth, his eldest, married Thomas Wetenhall, of East-Peckham in Kent, Esq; a very accomplished gentleman; she had the reputation of being one of the most perfect beauties of the age, and yet an excellent wife, and died without issue. The second daughter was married to Richard Caryll, of Harting in Suffex, Esq; a person of great merit, then but a younger brother, though with a very competent estate, but since his death the whole estate devolved on his issue, which were very numerous and happy. Mary, the third daughter, became the second wife of Thomas Eyre, of Haslop in the county of Derby, Esq; a gentleman of most eminent worth and good breeding, and left by her six sons and as many daughters, each so happily hopeful, as can hardly be paralleled by such another instance through all England. Margaret and Anne, the fourth and fifth daughters, became religious amongst the Carmelites at Lier, in the province of Brabant, where Margaret was superior of the house.

Sir Henry Belingfeld, Bart. the eldest son and successor to the title and estate, came over with the duke of Gloucester upon the restoration of King Charles II. being that duke's chief favourite, and was soon after knighted, the court breeding meeting with so generous and affable a temper made him so fine a gentleman as few were in a higher character, and after that, when he became settled in a country life, so great was his hospitality and splendid house-keeping, as no gentleman of his rank and fortune did any where exceed him, and had not the religion of his ancestors, in which he was born and bred, obstructed his coming into the public stations of his country, no man whatever would have been more popular.

He was twice married, first to Anne, only daughter and heir to Charles, viscount Andover, afterwards earl of Berkshire, by whom whom he had no issue. His second wife was Elizabeth, youngest daughter of Sir John Arundell, of Lanhern in the county of Cornwall, Bart. by whom he had three daughters, Elizabeth, who died young at Brussels; Margaret, who married Sir John Jernegan, Bart. eldest son and heir of Sir Francis Jernegan, of Cossy in the county of Norfolk, Bart. and Frances, who was married to Sir Francis Anderson, of Lostock in the county of Lancashire, Bart. (who died without issue), and only one son, Sir Henry-Arundell, his successor.

Sir Henry died 14 Sept. 1704, and lies interred in the said chapel of Oxburgh, between his two wives, at the foot of a noble monument, erected for them by the said Sir Henry in his life-time.

Sir Henry-Arundell Bedingsfeld, Bart. his only son and successor in the honour and estate, married Aug. 1719, the lady Elizabeth Boyle, eldest daughter of Charles, earl of Burlington, and sister to Richard, the late earl. This lady died Nov. 25, 1751, and Sir Henry, July 15, 1760, and were both buried in Oxburgh chapel, leaving two sons and one daughter: Sir Richard, his successor; Edward married to Mary, daughter of Sir John Swinburne, of Capheaton in Northumberland, Bart. and Elizabeth married to Charles Biddulph, of Burton in Sussex, Esq; Sir Henry was succeeded by his eldest son,

Sir Richard Bedingsfeld, the present baronet, who, Jan. 30, 1761, married the hon. Mary Browne, daughter to the late lord viscount Montague, of Cowdray in Sussex. This lady died Sept. 23, 1767, and lies buried in the Abbey-church, leaving issue one son, Richard, born at Bath Aug. 30, 1767.

176. ERNLE, of New Sarum, Wiltshire.

Created BARONET, Feb. 2, 1660.

THIS ancient family, which has flourished in Wiltshire, from the time of Henry VI. takes its name from the lordship of Ernele, near Chichester in the county of Sussex, which place was, for many generations, their principal seat, until, on the increase of their estate in Wiltshire, and (as it is reported) ported) finding the situation of Ernele, as being near the sea, to be exposed to insult from the enemy in time of war, about the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's reign they sold this lordship and the rest of their estate in Suffex, that they might never be tempted to leave their estate in Wiltshire.

13 Edward I. John, son of Richard de Ernele held the manor of Ernele and several lands in North-Mundham, Ichenor, Donington and Oving, all in the county of Suffex, of the bishop of Chichester, and was father of William de Ernele, of Ernele, 8 Edw. II. and John. William, the eldest son, left two daughters his heirs, Isabel, wife of Foulk Paulin, and Agnes, wife of Gilbert de Ledys. The posterity of which Gilbert continued for many descents in the county of Suffex.

John, second son, was of Chichester 1 Edw. III. and was knight of the shire for Suffex, 4 Edw. III. at the parliament then holden at Winchester. This John, 13 Edw. III. purchased of Isabel Paulin, being then a widow, all her right in her father's estate, in particular, a new built house near the church of Ernele, which he seems to have made his habitation, writing himself from thenceforth Dominus de Ernele.

This John was living 27 Edw. III. and was succeeded by a son of the same name, living 3 Hen. V. Which John, by Lucia, daughter of William de Stopham, had several children, of whom William, the eldest, was of Ernele, 12 Hen. VI. and is that year returned among the principal gentlemen of Suffex, who then took the oaths for the maintenance of the king's laws and the peace of the kingdom.

Robert, another son of John, was of Barpham, in the parish of Angmering, 24 Hen. VI. and was a benefactor to a chauntry founded in that church by Thomas earl of Arundel and others. This Robert had also an estate in Wiltshire, where he was resident 12 Hen. VI. being then returned among the principal inhabitants of Wiltshire, in like manner as his brother was in Suffex.

This Robert was father of William Ernele; and he of John Ernele, of Ernele, 4 Edw. IV. which John, having married Joan, daughter and heir of Simon Best and Agnes his wife, daughter and heir of — Mervin, of Echilhampton in the county of Wilts, in her right became possessed of that manor, (part of the late Sir Edward Ernele's estate) and 20 Hen. VII. was sheriff of Wiltshire.

William, eldest son of John, was of Ernele 2 Hen. VIII. and was succeeded by his brother John Ernele, Esq; attorney-general to Hen. VII. and Hen. VIII. and afterwards chief justice of the common pleas. He contributed much to the repair of the cathedral church of Chichester, and to the building of the church church of Ernele, as appears by his arms now remaining in both those churches; in the last of which he is buried, and his monument is yet to be seen. By Anne his wife, daughter of Constantine Darel, of Collinbourne in the county of Wilts, Esq; he had four daughters married into the families of Banaster, Rogers, Farmer and Goddard, and two sons, William Ernele, of Ernele, the last of his name that resided at that place, and John Ernele, of Burton, in the parish of Allcannings in the county of Wilts, Esq;

The said Michael Ernle, of Burton, Esq; by his second wife, Susan, daughter and coheir of Sir Walter Hungerford, of Farley-castle in the county of Somerset, Knt. eldest son of Walter, lord Hungerford, attainted 31 Hen. 178. COLLETON, of London.

Created BARONET, February 18, 1660.

THIS family is supposed to enter England with William the Conqueror from Normandy, for we find one of the great uncles of the first Sir John Colleton went to recover possession of some small estates belonging to the family in that duchy, sold it, and there died without issue.

By a very ancient grant from Reginald de Villecore to Thomas Colleton of an estate, and by subsequent deeds in the beginning of Edw. I. we find they stiled themselves gentlemen, and gave the same arms as now bore.

They have been resident many years in Devonshire, and there are now villages in that county called after their names, as Colleton-Raleigh, Colleton-Bury, &c.

Peter Colleton, father of Sir John (one of whose sisters married Sir Hugh Crocker, of Exeter, Kent, some time mayor of that city, of the ancient family of Crocker, of Lineham in Devon) lived at Exeter, and left five sons, Peter, John, Henry, Hugh, and William; and two daughters; all the sons died abroad without issue except John, who succeeded his father Peter, and was very active in the beginning of the civil wars for Cha. I. was a captain of foot, and had a commission for colonel from Sir John Berkley, afterwards lord Berkley, signed by the prince of Wales; which regiment he raised within ten days, and expended for the king's service 40000*l.* and had besides 7000*l.* sequestered and plundered by the rebels. He was forced to go to Bar-

Barbadoes; and just after the restoration Sir John Berkley presented the following certificate to the king:

These are humbly to certify your sacred majesty,

‘ THAT John Colleton, some time of Exeter, Esq; engaged for your majesty’s royal father, in the beginning of his troubles, raised and commanded a regiment under me, consisting of about 1100 men well armed, without any charge to his then majesty or compulsion of his people, which was very costly to him, he neither receiving any pay or free quarter to my knowledge, and the soldiers very little of either; that he furnished moneys and arms to a good value when he was driven from his habitation and estate in Cornwall before the battle of Stratton, for which, I am confident, he hath not had satisfaction; that he being chosen a commissioner by the county of Exon for the carrying on the service of your majesty’s royal father in the associated counties of the west, did therein good service.

‘ That he did, at several other times, procure and lend moneys, and procure and furnish good store of arms and ammunition when his majesty’s affairs were in great straits, and gave credit, and stayed long for considerable sums yet unpaid of many of them, whereby a good sum must be due unto him. That he suffered much by your majesty’s enemies by being of your part, I believe to the value of above sixty thousand pounds, and he was well contented to stay for his disbursements, and bore his sufferings chearfully, proposing to himself no other satisfaction that I could perceive, than your majesty’s restoration. That after your majesty’s exile, he was ever active and helpful to your majesty’s agents in England in his person and with his purse, which I myself know to be true, and have been informed thereof by divers others.

‘ That he forsook England for many years, to avoid the oaths, subscriptions, &c. imposed upon your subjects by your enemies, destructive to your majesty’s interest, as I found by him, in Holland, in the year 1650, and returned not until your majesty’s restoration.

‘ That he hath kept his loyalty unspotted to the last, as far as I can be informed or understand.

‘ I am sure he hath done your majesty faithful and good service many ways, and all this in order to his duty and allegiance, without any respect to reward or gain that I could perceive by him.’

12th of Dec. 1660.

Jo. Berkeley.

Whereupon the king, in the thirteenth of his reign, created him a Baronet; and in memory of his great services, in conjunction with the duke of Albemarle, earl Clarendon, earl Craven, and four other noble persons, by letters patents granted to them, their heirs, and successors, large dominions in Carolina, and the Bahama islands.

Sir John left issue four sons, Sir Peter, his successor, Thomas, James, and John; and one daughter, married to lieutenant-general Stewart: three of the sons married in Barbadoes, and had issue; and John died unmarried, in St. John's college, Oxford.

Sir Peter, the eldest son, who succeeded Sir John, was member of parliament for Bosciney in Cornwall, temp. Car. II. & Will. III. and commissioner of the publick accounts many years. He left issue but one son, Sir John, and three daughters.

Sir John Colleton, Bart. who succeeded him, married Elizabeth, daughter of John Snell, Esq; late member of parliament for Exeter, and had issue three sons, John, married to a daughter of the reverend Mr. Snell, canon of Exeter, and granddaughter of John Snell, Esq; before-mentioned; Peter and Robert, and one daughter, the relict of captain Hawley, who was brother to brigadier Hawley. Sir John died Sept. 1754, and was succeeded by Sir John Colleton, his eldest son, the present Baronet.

179. BEAUMONT, of Stoughton-Grange, Leicestershire.

Created BARONET, February 21, 1660.

THIS family is of noble extraction, being descended from Lewis, second son of Charles, king of Jerusalem and Sicily, younger brother of Lewis IX. king of France.

The surname of Beaumont is derived from a city of the same name in France, on the river Sarte, in the province of Maine, now the title of a duchy, but heretofore of a viscounty, (whence, for distinction of other synonymous places, it had the adjunct of Le Vicomte) the heir female of which honour and seignury, named Agnes, marrying Lewis, before-mentioned, second

second son of Charles, king of Jerusalem and Sicily, younger brother of Lewis IX. king of France, (who were both sons of Lewis VIII. of the house of Montpensier, king of France) brought him that inheritance; and the sons of the said marriage took the name of Beaumont, and to their paternal arms, viz. France ancient, added those of their mother, viz. a Lion rampant, Or, as now borne.

The eldest of the sons of the said Agnes and Lewis, enjoyed the viscounty: Theobald, was archbishop of Paris; Lewis, bishop of Durham, in England; of whom, Bishop Goodwin, in his catalogue of bishops, writes, ‘ That he had that bishoprick given him by the pope, at the importunate suit of the Kings of England and France. He was a Frenchman borne, and of the blood royall there. He was lame of both his legges; and riding to Durham to be installed there, hee was robbed (together with two cardinals that were then in his company) upon Wiglesden-moore, near Derlington. The captaines of this rout were named, Gilbert Middleton, and Walter Selby. Not content to take all the treasure of the cardinals, the bishop, and their traine, they carried the bishop prisoner to Morpeth, where they constrained him to pay a great ransom. Gilbert Middleton was soone after taken at his owne castle of Nitford, carried to London, and there drawen and hanged in the presence of the cardinals. After this, one Sir Gofeline Deinuill, and his brother, Robert, came with a great company to divers of the bishop of Durham’s houses, in the habits of fryars, and spoiled them, leaving nothing but bare walls, and did many other notable robberies, for which they (I mean the captaines and divers of their company) were soone after hanged at Yorke. This bishop stood very stoutly in defence of the liberties of his see, recovered divers lands taken away from Anthony Beake, his predecessor, (as before is mentioned) and procured this sentence to be given in the behalf of his church, Quod episcopus Dunelmen. debet habere foris facturas guerrarum intra libertates, sicut rex extra, that the bishop of Durham is to have the forfeitures of warre, in as ample sort, within his owne liberties, as the King without. That which by some is attributed to Ranulph Flambard, I finde by others reported of this man, to wit, that it was he who compassed the city of Durham with a wall; certaine it is, that he built a hall, kitchen, and chappel, at Middleham. But before he could quite finish the chapell he died, to wit, Sept. 22, or (as one delivered) Sept. 28, 1333. He lieth buried before the high altar, at Durham, covered with a marble stone, curiously wrought, and inlayed with brasse, provided by himself in his life-time.’

Henry Beaumont, the fourth son of Lewis and Agnes, had likewise grants of several honours, in England, and bore many eminent employments in the state. This Henry Beaumont is generally supposed to come from France, on the instance of Queen Eleanor, wife of King Edward I. for Isabel, his sister, (wife of John, lord Vespi, of Alnewicke, one of the greatest Barons of the North) is stiled in our records, kinswoman to that Queen; and the said Henry, himself, (in 1 Ed. II.) is stiled, Consanguineus regis. In 2 Ed. II. he was joined in commission with others, for guarding the marches of Scotland; and the next year, being made constable of Roxborough castle, he was again sent, with the earl of Hereford, and Robert de Clifford, to guard the marches; likewise, on the death of Alexander, bishop of Lincoln, the custody of the castle of Somerton was given him for life, (being at that time constable of the castle of Dumfreeze) also the same year, was made king of the Isle of Man, for life, by the same tenure its lords usually performed to the kings of Scotland. In 7 Ed. II. he was a commissioner, to whom the seneschal of Gascoign was to attend, on matters agitated in the parliament of Paris; before the end of which year, being again employed in Scotland, he was at the siege of Strivelin, and the fatal battle of Bannocksborne. In 10 Ed. II. he was the King's lieutenant for the North, and the next year, governor of the castle of Montandre in Gascoign; and the year following, joined with Andrew de Harcla, earl of Carlisle, to restrain the incursions of the Scots, for which people he had so little kindness, (notwithstanding he had a great estate amongst them, by marrying one of the coheirs to Alexander, earl of Boglehan, constable of Scotland) that though he was a Baron of the realm, and sworn both of the great and privy-council, yet he irreverently refused to give the King his advice, towards facilitating a peace with them; at which the King, highly incensed, committed him to prison; but being bailed out, and his Majesty's heat allayed, he came again into favour, and was sent (18 Ed. II.) one of the ambassadors to treat of peace with Charles, King of France; but soon afterwards, adhering to the Queen, and prince, with other nobles, against the King, he was seized, and sent prisoner to Warwick-castle, and from thence to Wallingford; yet, upon a turn of affairs, one of the articles against Hugh le Despencer, the younger, was for causing this Henry to be imprisoned.

Standing firm in the interest of the Queen, and prince, he attended her to the earl of Heynalt, on her going out of England; and when the King (almost totally deserted) attempted to fly beyond sea, he was by him taken and brought back, and delivered prisoner to the Queen. In the reign of Ed. III. the lands of the English nobility being seized in Scotland, this Henry, (bearing then the title of earl of Boughan) went, with others, into Scotland, and encountering the Scots, routed them near Gledismore, by whose advice and council that memorable victory was obtained. But this being done without the King's knowledge, his lands in England were seized; yet soon after, upon an hearing in parliament, of what was objected against him, he had restitution thereof by the full consent of the peers; upon a farther representation to David, king of Scotland, he obtained his lands in Scotland. About the eighth of Edw. III. Isabel de Vescy, his sister, dying without issue, a considerable estate fell to him: in 10 Ed. III. being then constable of the army, he was sent into Scotland for the defence of that realm; also the same year, attended the King into Flanders, and two years after, was made justice of Scotland. He departed this life in 14 Ed. III. being one of the most potent men of his time. He had with Alice, his wife, (daughter, and at length sole heir to Alexander Comin, earl of Boughan in Scotland) the manor of Whitwick in Leicestershire, with divers other lands and possessions in the said county, and was succeeded therein by John, his son and heir.

Which John, lord Beaumont, was constable of England, 12 Ed. II. and in 13 Ed. III. was in the expedition then made into Flanders; was likewise retained to serve the King in his fleet, and the same year served in the wars of Scotland. He died two years after his father, viz. in 16 Ed. III. having had summons to parliament that same year; leaving by Eleanor, his wife, fifth daughter of Henry Plantagenet, earl of Lancaster, (grandson to King Henry III.) an only son, Henry, who succeeded him in honour and estate.

Which Henry, lord Beaumont, was born beyond sea, but naturalized in parliament, in 25 Ed. III. and had summons to parliament, as a Baron; and having been in the wars of Gascoign, in 40 Ed. III. died in 43 Ed. III. leaving by his wife, Margaret, (daughter to John de Vere, earl of Oxford) John, his son and heir.

John, lord Beaumont, (son and heir of Henry) was at Burbroke, in 7 Rich. II. when the King of France, with his whole army, besieged it; and accompanied John of Gaunt, duke of Lancaster, into Spain, in 10 Rich. II. yet before the end of the year, he was expelled the court, as an evil counsellor to the King, by the great lords assembled at Haringey-park; but these heats abating, he rose again in power, was made admiral of the King's fleet northwards, and one of the wardens of the Scotch marches; was afterwards employed in the wars of France, made governor of Cherburgh-castle, constable of Dover-castle, warden of the cinque-ports, and Knight of the garter; and having been summoned to parliament, from 7 to 18 Rich. II. died full of honour, in 20 Rich. II. He had by his first wife, Catherine, daughter and heir of Sir Thomas Everingham, of Laxton, Knt. three sons, 1. Henry; 2. Thomas, hereafter-mentioned; and 3. Richard; but I do not find he had any issue by his second wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Mowbray, earl-marshal, widow to Nicholas, lord Audley, of Heleigh, who, surviving him, was afterwards married to Michael de la Pole, earl of Suffolk.

From Henry, who died 1 Hen. V. (eldest son of the said John) by his wife, Elizabeth, daughter of William, lord Willoughby, descended by a younger son, the Beaumonts, of Weddesbury in Staffordshire. But John, eldest son of the said Henry, succeeded to the barony, and was created earl of Bulloign, by King Henry VI. and viscount Beaumont, (the first in England ever honoured with that title) he was in great favour with that King, under whom he bore the most honourable employments; was a Knight of the garter, and lost his life in his cause against the house of York, in the battle of Northampton, the tenth of July, 1459, 38 Hen. VI. leaving by Elizabeth, daughter and heir of William, lord Bardolph, (by his wife, Joan, daughter of Thomas, lord Bardolph) William, his successor, and a daughter, Joan, married to John, lord Lovell, of Tichmersh.

Which William, viscount Beaumont, and lord Bardolph, dying 23 Hen. VII. was buried at Wivenhoe in Essex.

The said William, lord viscount Beaumont, died without issue; so that Francis, viscount Lovell, (his nephew) had he been at that time living, and not attainted, would have been his heir; for the barony of Beaumont, of Folkingham, being a barony in fee, could not descend to the collateral branches in the male line; whereby that peerage ceased in this family.

The principal line remaining, is descended from Thomas, second son of John, lord Beaumont, Knight of the garter, and brother to Henry, lord Beaumont, father of John, the first viscount Beaumont. Which Thomas, being lord of Basquerville, and captain of Galliarde, was retained with John, duke of Bedford, regent of France, in the minority of King Henry VI. to serve the King in those wars; and married (5 Hen. V.) Phillippe, daughter and heir of Sir Thomas Maureward, Knt. He died in 36 Hen. VI. leaving issue two sons, John, of whom hereafter, and Thomas, who married Anne, daughter and heir of Sir William Moton, of Peckleton in Leicestershire, Knt. He married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Sir William Hastings, Knt. younger son to William, lord Hastings, and had issue, that grave, learned, and reverend judge, Francis Beaumont, Esq; one of the justices of the Common-pleas, who died April 22, 1598; a man, for integrity, wisdom, and learning, inferior to none of his bench. He married Anne, daughter of Sir George Peirpoint, of Holme-Peirpoint in Nottinghamshire, Knt. and had issue, 1. Sir Henry Beaumont, of Gracedieu, Knt. who, by Barbara, daughter of Anthony Faunt, of Foston in Leicestershire, Esq; (re-married to Sir Henry Harpur, of Calke in Derbyshire, Bart.) left a daughter and heir, Barbara, married, first, to Sir John Harpur, of Swarkeston in Derbyshire, Knt. and secondly, to Sir Wolstan Dixie, Bart. Sir John Beaumont, second son of the judge, was created a Baronet, Jan. 29, 1626, and married Elizabeth, daughter of John Fortescue, Esq; (son of Anthony Fortescue, Esq; and Catherine, his wife, daughter of Sir Geoffrey Poole, of Lordington in Suffex, Knt. son of Sir Richard Poole, Knight of the garter, and Margaret, his wife, daughter and heir to George, duke of Clarence, brother to King Edward IV.) and left a son, John, but this title is extinct. To return to the elder branch :

John Beaumont, Esq; eldest son and heir of Thomas, before-mentioned, resided at Overton, (now called Cole-Orton, from the cole-mines there) but the English being driven from their acquisitions in France, the lordship of Balquerville was lost: he was slain in 38 Hen. VI. with his cousin, John, lord viscount Beaumont, in the battle of Northampton; leaving, by Joan, his wife, daughter of John, lord Darcy, of the north, John, his son and heir, aged ten years, as appears by inquisition taken in 1 Ed. IV.

Which John, in 5 Hen. VII. was made one of the Knights of the Bath, at the creation of Arthur, prince of Wales; but having no issue by his wife, Alice, daughter to Sir William Fielding, settled his estate, (after the decease of him and his wife) on his brother George, and his heirs. He died Aug. 11, 23 Hen. VIII. in the eighty-sixth year of his age, as may be computed from his being ten years old, 1 Ed. IV.

The said George Beaumont married Joan, daughter and heir to Sir Thomas Pauncefoot, of Northall in Gloucestershire, and died in 22 Hen. VIII. leaving issue, William, his son and heir, who married Mary, daughter to Sir William Basset, of Blore in Staffordshire, Knt. He died in 20 Hen. VIII. and she, July 2, in the thirty-first of that King's reign, having had two daughters that married, and several sons, three of which were heads of families; 1. Richard, hereafter mentioned; 2. George, who lived in Kent, and had issue, Henry Beaumont, dean of Windsor, and others; 3. Anthony, father of
Sir

Sir Francis Beaumont; and Mary, who married Sir George Villiers, Knt. and was created (after her husband's decease) countess of Buckingham, by King James I. being mother to John Villiers, viscount Purbeck, Christopher, earl of Anglesey, and George, duke of Buckingham, that great favourite of King James I. and King Charles I.

Richard Beaumont, Esq; (son and heir of William, aforesaid) succeeded his father in his inheritance, and also to the estate of his great uncle, John, viz. brother to George Beaumont, aforesaid; and was dead in 30 Hen. VIII. leaving by his wife, Collet, daughter and heir to Richard Clerke, of Buckingham, Esq; (who afterwards married William Villiers, Esq;) Nicholas, his son and heir; and three daughters, Anne, married to — Keldon; Mary, to — Shary, who died S. P. and Etheldred, wife to Thomas Finderne, and died S. P.

The said Nicholas Beaumont, Esq; was one of the Knights of the shire in parliament for the county of Leicester, in 14 Eliz. and sheriff thereof in the nineteenth of that Queen. He married Anne, daughter of William Saunders, of Welford in Northamptonshire, Esq; who died the seventh of September, 1582, and was buried in Christ-church, London; and he, dying the same year, was buried by her, leaving six children, four sons and two daughters; Dorothy, married to William Read, of Barton in Berkshire, Esq; and Catherine, to Sir Henry Berkeley, Bart. The sons were, 1. Henry; 2. Francis, who was master of the charter-house, and died therein, June 18, 1624, without issue, and was there buried; 3. Sir Thomas Beaumont, of Bedworth, and Stoughton-Grange, Knt. ancestor to the present Sir George Beaumont, Bart. of whom hereafter; 4. Huntington Beaumont, who married —, daughter of — Holland, and left issue: but as some considerable persons descended from the eldest son, we shall briefly treat of that branch, before we proceed to the line from whence the present Baronet descends.

Henry, (eldest son and heir of Nicholas) who was elected one of the Knights for Leicestershire, in the parliament held in 31 Eliz. was sheriff of that county in 36 Eliz. and meeting King James I. at Workop in Nottinghamshire, when he came first into England, received from him the honour of knighthood, the twentieth of April, 1603. He presented a petition to King James, to be restored to the viscounty, which had been forfeited by the attainder of John, lord viscount Beaumont, who was slain in the battle of Northampton, fighting in behalf of Hen. VI. against King Edw. IV. but I do not find any further regard was paid to this claim, than creating his son, Thomas, (perhaps in consideration of it) an Irish viscount, several years after Sir Henry's death.

This Sir Henry married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Thomas Lewis, Esq; and had one son, Thomas; he, and Elizabeth, his lady, lie buried in Cole-Orton church.

The said Sir Thomas Beaumont. (in the life-time of his father) was one of the Knights for Leicestershire, in the first parliament called by King James I. and was sheriff of the said county, in the third year of that King, who conferred on him the dignity of a Baronet, Sept. 17, 1619, and afterwards promoted him, 1622, to the peerage of Ireland, by the title of viscount Beaumont, of Swords, in that kingdom. He was loyal to King Charles I. and during the great delinquency of his subjects, was engaged in his service, and was obliged to compound for his estate. He had issue, by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter and heir of Henry Sapcote, of Elton in Huntingdonshire, Esq; five daughters and four sons; Sapcote, born May 10, 1614; and Henry, born 1616, who died unmarried; Thomas, killed 1642, S. P. and Robert, who died unmarried.

Sapcote, lord viscount Beaumont, succeeded to the honours and estate, and was a great sufferer for his loyalty to King Charles I. and in 1651, compounded with the commissioners of sequestration for his estate, and died before the restoration; but having married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Thomas Monson, of Burton in Lincolnshire, Knt. (by Margaret, daughter of Sir Edmond Anderson, Knt. lord chief-justice of the Common-pleas) had issue a daughter, Elizabeth, wife to Sir John Hotham, of Scarborough in Yorkshire, Bart. and two sons, Thomas, his successor, and John.

Which Thomas, lord viscount Beaumont, with his said brother, John, had their share in the sufferings of their father and grandfather, for their loyalty to King Charles I. their estates being sequestered by the usurping powers. John, when young, attended King Charles II. in his exile, and, after the restoration, had, under that prince, and his brother, King James II. divers honourable employments at court; but this their affection to the royal family, did not hinder them, when they saw their country's religion and liberties endangered by King James II. from exerting themselves in defence of those valuable blessings. Thomas, the viscount, raised a troop for the prince of Orange; and John, his brother, who, besides his civil preferments, had, under King James, a commission of lieutenant-colonel of the regiment, of which the duke of Berwick was colonel; and being commanded to take some Irish papists into the regiment, then at Portsmouth, strenuously opposed the King in it, and in spite of all invitations and menaces, persisted in the refusal; refusal; for which he, and some other officers that adhered to him, were imprisoned: and as the King, by this, gave great discontent to his subjects, so it furnished the prince of Orange, at his landing, with matter for his declaration.

The said John, with his cousin, Thomas Beaumont, of Stoughton, Esq; (eldest brother of the late Sir George Beaumont) went, with their followers, to the prince of Orange, on his first landing, (though Sir Henry, the father of Thomas, by no means approved of it) and after his coronation, were preferred by him. John was made governor of Dover-castle, and colonel of that regiment whereof he had been lieutenant-colonel, and served his Majesty abroad many years, but died before his elder brother, on the third of July, 1701; having married two wives, first, Mary, the daughter of Sir Hatton Fermor, of Easton-Neston in Northamptonshire, Knt. and relict of Sir Charles Compton, Knt. second son of Spencer, earl of Northampton; and secondly, Phillipe, the daughter of Sir Nicholas Carew, of Beddington in Surry, Knt. but by neither of them had issue.

Thomas, viscount Beaumont, (brother to the said John) having likewise no children, by Mary, his wife, daughter to Sir Erasmus Fountain, of Kirby-Bellers in Leicestershire, Knt. and dying without issue, on the eleventh of June, in the year 1702, the title of Baronet, and his other dignities, expired.

He was honourably interred in the vault of his ancestors, in Cole-Orton church, by his cousin, (and the heir-male of his family) Sir George Beaumont, of Stoughton, Bart. to whom he left, by will, all his estate.

But to return to Sir Thomas Beaumont, Knt. third born, but second surviving son, of Nicholas Beaumont, of Cole-Orton, Esq; before-mentioned.

Which Sir Thomas Beaumont, Knt. married Catherine, daughter and heir of Thomas Farnham, of Bedworth in Leicestershire, Esq; teller of the Exchequer in the reign of Queen Mary, (by Hellen, his wife, daughter of Roger Chaloner, Esq;) By her he had issue, three sons and seven daughters; 1. Sir Henry; 2. Farnham, who, by Lucy, daughter of ——— Dawes, of Dawson in Leicestershire, left only a daughter and heir; Thomas, the third son, left no issue; of the daughters, 1. Elizabeth, was married, first, to Sir John Ashburnham, of Ashburnham in Suffex, of whom is descended the present earl; and secondly, to Sir Thomas Richardson, of Huningham in Norfolk, Knt. chief-justice of the Common-pleas, and afterwards of the King's-bench; (she was created Baroness of Cramond, in the kingdom of Scotland, by King Charles I. and to the heirs-male of her husband, Sir Thomas: probably, the reason why the title was not granted to Sir Thomas, was on account of his being a judge, it being in those days unusual. This title became extinct on the death of William, lord Richardson, baron of Cramond, who died unmarried, July 28, 1735, whose sister and sole heir, Elizabeth, married William Jermy, Esq;) 2. Frances, to Sir Wolstan Dixie, of Bosworth in Leicestershire, Knt. 3. Anne, was married to Sir John Dillon, of Fordinghay in Northamptonshire, Knt. 4. Hellen, who died unmarried; 5. Isabel, married to Hugh Snawswell, of Bilton in Yorkshire, Esq; 6. Jane, to William Temple, of London, merchant; and 7. Mary, to Richard Paramore.

The said Sir Thomas died Nov. 27, 1614, and his lady, May 10, 1621, and both lie buried at Stoughton.

Sir Henry Beaumont, Knt. eldest son and heir of Sir Thomas, succeeded to his estate. He was truly loyal in those times of trial, in the reign of King Charles I. and underwent the fate which all his Majesty's friends were subjected to, of compounding for their estates. He died in April, 1646, and by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter of Sir William Turpin, of Knaptoft, Knt. (by Elizabeth Fiennes, daughter of the lord Say, of Broughton) he had issue four sons, Thomas, Henry, Farnham, and William; also two daughters, Elizabeth, married to Zouch Percival, Esq; and Frances, married to James Sinclair, of Sinclairs-Holme, Esq; major and commander of the castle of Wardoe Huys, upon the north cape of Norway, for the King of Denmark, son of Sir Andrew Sinclair, lord Sinclair, of Dysart.

Thomas, the eldest son, on the death of his father, possessed the estate at Stoughton-Grange, &c. and was advanced to the dignity of a Baronet, 13 Car. II. and died Aug. 11. 1676. He married Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of Sir Nicholas Trott, of Quickswood in Hertfordshire, Knt. (by Mary, daughter and heir of Sir George Perient, Knt.) and had issue, three sons and three daughters; 1. Sir Henry, his successor; 2. Thomas, a clergyman, who married Susanna, daughter of William Oldys, vicar of Adderbury in Oxfordshire, D.D. (and had two daughters, Elizabeth, married William Hayley, M. D. and Arabella; and four sons, of which, only one left issue, a daughter) he died, Jan. 15, 1710, at Great Dunmow in Essex, aged seventy-one; William, third son of Sir Thomas, was of Great Dunmow in Essex, and ancestor to Sir George, the present Baronet, of whom hereafter. The daughters of Sir Thomas, were, Henrietta, Jane, and Mary.

Sir Henry Beaumont, Bart. eldest son and heir of Sir Thomas, succeeded to the estate and title. He married Elizabeth, daughter of George Farmer, Esq; prothonotary of the Common-mon-pleas, descended of an ancient family of that name, in Warwickshire; and after having served in parliament many years, died in 1688, and lies interred with his ancestors at Stoughton; he had eight sons and seven daughters, that lived to be men and women, (besides six sons that died in their infancy) 1. Sir Thomas, his successor; 2. Sir George, successor to his brother; 3. Henry, who died unmarried; 4. Basil; 5. Sir Lewis, successor to his brother Sir George; 6. William-Villers; 7. Charles; and 8. James, who died a batchelor: of the seven daughters, 1. Elizabeth, died Feb. 1726-7; 2. Anne; 3. Diana, who died 1694; 4. Henrietta; wife of John Styleman, Esq; she died March 10, 1724-5; 5. Catherine, married to William Busby, of Loughborough in Leicestershire, Esq; (she died April 1, 1726, leaving one son, William Busby, of Stoughton-Grange, Esq; nephew, and one of the heirs to the late Sir George; and one daughter, married to Anthony Keck, of Lincoln's-Inn, Esq;) 6. Arabella; and 7. Christiana.

Sir Thomas Beaumont, Bart. the eldest son, succeeded to the title and estate. In his youth, he accepted of a commission in the horse-guards, under King James II. But when that prince's proceedings grew suspected, he voluntarily resigned it; and, upon the revolution, went to the prince of Orange, at his landing in the west, with a troop raised at his own charge; for which service, that prince made him, first, a lieutenant-colonel of dragoons, by commission dated at Exeter, Nov. 19, 1688, and after his coronation, standard-bearer, and major of his first troop of guards; and attending him in his wars in Ireland, served with great valour; and while in expectations of higher preferment, was seized with the flux, (a distemper fatal to the English there) and died in his twenty-fifth year, 1690, greatly lamented, and lies buried at Stoughton.

Sir George Beaumont, Bart. succeeded his brother, Sir Thomas, in title and estate, and being also heir-male in blood, to Thomas, lord viscount Beaumont, of Cole-Orton, (an ancient seat and inheritance of the family) succeeded to that, and all other his estates, by the last will of the said lord. He was elected in the first parliament called by Queen Anne, for the town of Leicester, and served for the said town, in every parliament afterwards, till his death. In the year 1712, he was made a commissioner of the privy-seal, and in 1714, one of the right honourable the lords of the admiralty; and dying unmarried, April 9, 1737, left the paternal estate at Stoughton to his three surviving sisters, Anne, Arabella, and Christiana, and to his nephew, William Busby, Esq; (only surviving son of his sister, Catherine) and was buried with his ancestors at Stoughton.

Sir George was succeeded in the title, and the Cole-Orton, and other estates of the lord viscount Beaumont, by his next surviving brother, Sir Lewis Beaumont, Bart. hereafter mentioned.

Basil, brother to Sir George, was from his infancy brought up to the sea-service, (under his kinsman, the lord Dartmouth) and was captain of divers ships, employed in the most signal services in the wars, in the reigns of King William and Queen Anne. He attained to the honour of a flag before he was thirty-two; and being appointed rear-admiral of the blue squadron of the fleet, 1702-3, was employed to restrain the attempts of the enemy from Dunkirk, which he did with great success: but being remanded thence to the Downs, in order to be furnished with necessaries, he was, while bearing the flag in her Majesty's ship the Mary, forced, with several others, from their anchors, by that violent storm which happened, Nov. 27, 1703, and being hurried on the Goodwin-sands, was, with the rest of the ship's company, cast away, and perished.

He underwent the mortification, some years before his death, of losing two hopeful brothers, William-Villers, and Charles Beaumont, who, encouraged by his example, pursued the same fortune, and were educated at sea; William, a lieutenant, under commodore Meeze, and died the same hour with the commodore, of a calenture, at the age of nineteen, July 17, 1697. Charles, in the seventeenth year of his age, was blown up in the Downs, Sept. 19, 1700, in the Carlisle, a fourth rate man of war; but by what accident is unknown, not one of the ship's company on board being saved: captain Francis Dove, the commander, was happily ashore when the ship was blown up.

Sir Lewis Beaumont, Bart. successor to his brother, Sir George, was rector of Pycomb in Suffex, and one of the prebendaries of Chichester; he married Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. Courtenay, and relict of the reverend Mr. Temple, by whom he had no issue; and dying, Dec. 23, 1738, the title, and the lord viscount Beaumont's estate at Cole-Orton, and other places, went to his cousin, Sir George Beaumont, in the following manner:

William Beaumont, Esq; third son of Sir Thomas Beaumont, the first Baronet of this branch of the family, was seated at Dunmow in Essex, where he was buried, 1719; and having married Jane, daughter of John Watts, of the county of Leicester, Esq; (by Jane, daughter of Sir Thomas Burton, of Stockerston, Bart.) had issue two sons, William, and Henry, who had a son, Thomas, and three daughters, Henrietta, Jane, and Mary. William, the eldest son, married Elizabeth, daughter of William Jordain, of Charlton in Surry, Esq; by whom he had three

three sons; 1. Sir George, successor to his cousin Sir Lewis; 2. William, and 3. Thomas; and two daughters, Elizabeth, who died young; and Margaret.

Which Sir George Beaumont, Bart. the eldest son of William, who succeeded Sir Lewis, before-mentioned, in December, 1738, died in 1762, and was succeeded by,

Sir George Beaumont, his son, who is the present Baronet, and in his minority. He is lineally descended, by the paternal line, from the Kings of France, and by the female, from Hen. III. King of England.

181. WILSON, of East-Bourne, Suffex.

Created BARONET, March 4, 1660.

THE name of this family hath been variously written at different times, as Welson, Wylsone, Wylsone and Wylson, but in these later times generally Wilson.

The Baronet, whose pedigree is here to be derived down, is descended from an ancient and worshipful family of that name in in Yorkshire, which hath spread itself into many branches there and in other parts. We find Thomas Wilson seated at Elton in Yorkshire 1250, 34 Hen. III. whose son, John Wilson, lived at Elton aforesaid 1270, 54 Hen. III. and married a daughter of John Livinter of that county, and left issue, Thomas Wilson, of Elton, who, by a daughter of Scarborough, had a son, Richard, who married Joan, the daughter of Thomas Reade; their son, Anthony Wilson, of Elton aforesaid, took to wife the daughter of John Prophit, of Pocklington in Yorkshire, by whom he had issue three sons, viz. 1. Henry, who died without issue; 2. Edmond Wilson, of Elton aforesaid, who continued the line; and 3. John Wilson, of Kellom in Yorkshire, clerk, a prebendary of York.

Edmond Wilson, brother and heir, married the daughter of Thomas Woodrofe, of Woolley in Yorkshire, a very ancient and knightly family of that county, and by her left issue, William Wilson, who lived at Elton 1438, 16 Hen. VI. and married the daughter of Thomas Wells, of Tealby, whose son Thomas Wilson, of Elton aforesaid, by Julian, daughter of Haman Upton; had two sons, viz. 1. William Wilson, of Stroby, alias Strubby in Lincolnshire. 2. Edmund Wilson, of Tockwith, in the parish of Bilton within the county of the city of York, of whom we shall treat hereafter; and proceed now with William and his posterity; which William had a son, Thomas Wilson of Stroby aforesaid, who took to wife, Margaret Songer, and by her had issue two sons, viz. 1. Edmund Wilson; 2. Edward Wilson, of Gravely in Hertfordshire (from whom the Wilsons of that place, and Coddreth, alias Codred or Cottered, Willey and Walkerne, all in the same county are descended); Edmund, elder son and heir of the said Thomas, had issue, Thomas Wilson, of Stroby aforesaid, who took to wife, Anne, the daughter and heir of Roger Comberworth, of Comberworth in Lincolnshire, by Margery his wife, the daughter and heir of Hugh Braytofte, of Braytofte-hall in the same county, by whom he had a son, the right honourable Thomas Wilson, LL.D. who married Anne, the daughter of Sir William Wynter, of Lydney in Gloucestershire, Knt.

This Thomas Wilson was admitted into king's college Cambridge 1541, and afterwards was incorporated of the university of Oxford, and took the degree of doctor of laws abroad; for his learning he was temp. Eliz. appointed one of the ordinary masters of the honourable court of requests, and afterwards, in a short time, preferred to be master of St. Catherine's hospital near the Tower of London. And at length, his learning and knowledge not being confined within the ordinary limits of a private education or peculiar study, he became so well acquainted with the laws of nations, and had acquired such a general knowledge in political affairs, that his qualifications for more public employments both abroad and at home, were apparently distinguished by Queen Elizabeth, so remarkable for discerning of men, and in the choice of her ministers, who was pleased to employ him several times as her ambassador to Mary Queen of Scots, and into the Low-countries 1577; and in 1579, Feb. 5, by the queen's own appointment he was promoted to the deanry of Durham, vacant by the death of William Whittingham; at the same time he was also in the high station of principal secretary of state and one of her majesty's most honourable privy council. In which great employments, he discovered an adequate genius and most penetrating judgement, which, joined to the closest application to business, and a vigorous industry in the execution of the many arduous affairs belonging to his elevated station, crowned all his proceedings with honour, and gained him that reputation which the concurrent testimonies of many writers confirm: for, as a secretary, three things completed him, viz. first, quick dispatch and industry; secondly constant intelligence and correspondence, and thirdly a large and strong memory. Queen Elizabeth would needs at first favour my lord of Leicester against the earl of Suffex, which this doctor and my lord Burleigh dissuaded upon this account, because, if she, who should be the common mother of all, inclined to one party and leaned to a side, the ship of the common-wealth would be as a boat overturned by too much weight on the one side and too little on the other. His place called upon him to suppress, with severity, such seditious reflexions upon the state as came to his knowledge; but his inclination was to dissipate them with connivance and contempt, for to be opposed renders a faction considerable; to be despised (and watched), ridiculous. His peculiar knack was a politick and artificial nourishing and entertaining of hopes, and keeping men in suspense is one of the best antidotes against the poison of discontent, it being observed by this statesman to be a certain sign of a wise government and proceedings, to hold men's hearts by hopes when it cannot by satisfaction, and when it can handle things in such manner as no evil shall appear so peremptory but that it hath some outlet of hope, which is the easier done, because both particular persons and factions are apt enough to flatter themselves, or at least to boast what they believe not. In general he bears the character of a wise and worthy minister, and, in short (to use the words of an author of credit), ' he was secretary of state to Queen Elizabeth for four years together, and ' it argues his ability for the place because he was put into it ; ' seeing ‘ seeing, in those active times, under so judicious a queen, weakness might despair to be employed in such an office.’

Nor does his private character, when considered as it is published, appear beneath the dignity of his public; for his parents designed him for study, his nature for business; his presence assisted his inclination, and his complaisance his presence, and his good nature both; a good nature, that would have spoiled a politician in any other but Dr. Wilson, whose wisdom was the largeness of his soul, not the narrowness of a shift. He had that penetrating and comprehensive judgement that he could at once shew the greatest prudence in laying his design, and the greatest integrity in managing it, as rather, securely knowing, than warily close. He had a way of conveying effectual and imprinting passions among compliments suitable to persons and business; he had his familiarity to his inferiors, that made him not cheap; his state among equals that made him not envied, and his observance to superiors that made him no flatterer; his behaviour, like a well made suit, was not too streight, but justly measured, and free for exercise and motion: he was more reverend than plausible, more considerate than active. He had a slow but a sure way to honour, which was nothing else in him but a discovery of his virtues and worth, upon any occasion, without any disadvantage. His thoughts were, as his inclination, grave; his discourse, as his reading, subtle; his action, as his education, well weighed; regular as his temper, even and smooth, as custom. None had a more skilful method to sway nature in others, none more prudent minutes and seasonable degrees to check it in himself, his rule being never to practise any thing until perfect; for so he might exercise his weakness as well as his abilities and induce one habit of both. Three things he aimed at; first, the search of truth by industry, secondly, the attainment of it by apprehension, and thirdly, the enjoyment of it by assent: neither took he greater pleasure in knowing than in relating and doing what is true, found and plain, without those crooked courses which shew a creeping rather than a raised nature. He used to say, what all great men know (as a certain author takes notice), that he was six times a slave, viz. 1. to himself and his inclinations, till he had advanced reason; 2. to the world and its insolence, till he had improved his fortune; 3. to his pupils and their tempers, till he understood their genius; 4. to fame and its reports, till he was known in the world; 5. to his sovereigns and their humours, till he found their interest, and 6. to his business, till he had attained experience.

He was not only an able statesman, but also eminent amongst the literati of that age, which is manifest by his writings that are

are published, for he was first author of Epistola de vitâ & obitu duorum fratrum Suffolciensium, Henrici & Caroli Brandon; printed at London 1552; it is set before a book of verses made on their deaths by several scholars of Oxford and Cambridge; all which he collecting together, did publish them, and, by an epistle of his composition, dedicated them to Henry Grey, duke of Suffolk. 2. The Art of Rhetorick, Lond. 1553: for writing of this book he suffered much at Rome, where he was, on that account, imprisoned (as appears in his prologue to another edition of the same book printed at London in 1567), accused, and formally tried as an heretick, but he bravely maintained the protestant cause and his own, in the midst of his enemies, and, notwithstanding their threats, refused any submission, and at last was happily delivered from their unmerciful hands by a forcible rescue made by the worthy Romans, an enterprize in that sort, heretofore never attempted, as he himself observes. 3. The Rule of Reason, containing the Art of Logick, first printed in the reign of King Edw. VI. and afterwards at London 1567. 4. A Discourse upon Usury, Lond. 1572, much commended by Dr. Lawrence Humphry, the queen's public professor of divinity in Oxon. 5. He also translated into English, The three Orations of Demosthenes, chief Orator among the Grecians in the Olynthians, Lond. 1570.---At last he was taken out of this life 1581, and was buried at St. Catharine's near the Tower of London, leaving this conclusive character behind him; 'That though he ' made not so much noise as other men, yet he as effectually pro' moted the three main supporters of this nation; 1. Its native
' commodities; 2. its artificial manufactures, and 3. its vesture
' and carriage, and so died with that content and resolution
' that they do who are overtaken by fate in the pursuit of great
' actions and publick designs.' He left issue by his wife, Anne, two daughters, Lucretia, married to Sir George Belgrave, of Belgrave in Leicestershire, Knt. and high sheriff of that county, and Mary, first married to Robert Burdett, of Bramcote in Warwickshire, Esq; mother of Sir Thomas Burdett, the first baronet of that family, and surviving him, was married again to Sir Christopher Lowther, of Lowther in Westmorland, Knt.

Also his son and heir, Nicholas Wilson, of Sheepwash in the county of Lincoln, who married Anne, the daughter of William Henneage, of Benworth in the same county, Esq; by whom he had issue two sons, Charles and Thomas Wilson; Charles, the elder, married the daughter of ----- Craycroft, of Whisby in Lincolnshire, gent. and left issue likewise two sons, Charles and John; Charles Wilson was a major of horse in the service of King Charles I. and was slain on the king's side at the battle of Naseby, having married the daughter of Blythe, of Straw-

son; from him and the other collaterals are descended the Wilsons of this place and county.

To return to Edmond Wilson, of Tockworth in Bilton beforementioned, brother of William of Stroby before named, the common ancestor of the younger branch of this family, who married Grace, the daughter of John Leak, of Tockworth aforesaid (who, by the arms, it is presumed, was the late earl of Scarfdale's family), and by her had issue, Thomas; he had a son, William Wilson, of Tockworth, who married the daughter of ——— Garton, of Tolthorp, near York, gent. and had a son, John Wilson, and he married Maud, daughter and heir of William Smith, of Dringhouses near York, Esq; who died Aug. 1613, leaving issue by her said husband, a son, John Wilson, who being educated in the profession of the law, came to London and lived there some time; from whence he at length removed into Suffex, and settled there in the latter end of Queen Elizabeth's reign, residing at Sheffield-house, in the parish of Fletching in that county, and in that and the succeeding reigns was in offices of trust and reputation relating to the affairs of this county. On the 25th of June 1601, 44 Eliz. he married Mary, second daughter of Thomas Gardiner of London, master of the fine-office, by Catharine, daughter of Robert Chapman, Esq; lord of Mardocke in Hertfordshire, by Elizabeth, daughter of Henry Vesey, of Iselham in Cambridgeshire, gent. in his life-time he made a pecuniary addition to a donation of that kind formerly bequeathed to the poor of Fletching, with which augmentation by deeds (dat. 6 Car. I.) the purchase of lands there called Westlands (20 acres), was completed in trust to their use for ever. And we find, 1631, that the court of honour (then in vigour, much to the satisfaction of the nobility and gentry; for such defamatory affronts received, not to be redressed by the common law), granted a process in his behalf, being a gentleman of ancient descent, by the name of Mr. John Wilson, Esq; (as the style then was), against one John Tye, a licentious person, who was thereupon convened before the earl-marshal of England for injurious aspersions and offensive expressions spoken through spleen and malice; which affair was so effectually prosecuted, that Tye made a satisfactory submission for his intemperance, in a seemly manner, in Fletching church before many people, and in the presence of Mr. Richard Amherst, Esq; serjeant at law, Mr. Thomas Chaloner and Mr. Anthony Fowle, Esqrs. commissioners specially authorized for this purpose by a letter from the earl-marshal, which proceedings are extant in the college of arms amongst the records of that honourable court. On the 9th of May 1633, 8 Car. I. he was sworn at Sheffield one of the justices of peace for Suffex; an office at that time more esteemed than at present, in which he continued to his death ; and also was many years associated with the chief gentry of this county as one of the king's commissioners for the contribution there towards the repair of St. Paul's cathedral, London. He died 1640, leaving issue, 1. Charles, who died of the small-pox, July 1621, a young batchelor ; 2. the reverend John Wilson, of Trin. col. Cambridge, A. M. who married Cicely, the daughter of Francis Shirley, of West-Grinstead, Esq; sister of Thomas Shirley. of the same college, A. M. descended from Sir Thomas Shirley, of Westneston in Suffex, Knt. a younger branch of the noble family of the earl Ferrers which settled in this county temp. Edw. IV. he died S. P. 1649 ; 3. the honourable Sir William Wilson, hereafter mentioned ; 4. Thomas, an East-India merchant, and agent for the East-India company at Mesulapatum and Suratt, who travelled over most parts of the Indies, and set sail in 1657 from Bengal for his native country ; but it appears by his will, &c. that some time in that year he died in his passage, having married Mary, daughter of Valentine Markham, of Lime street, in St. Dyonis Backchurch, London, East-India merchant, by whom he had no issue ; 5. Francis Wilson, Esq; who being of a martial disposition, in 1633, went a volunteer with the English auxiliary forces in the service of the States of Holland, against the Spaniards in the Spanish Netherlands. In September the ensuing year, returning from England to the army, the ship was taken by a Dunkirk man of war, and he, with others, was carried prisoner to Ostend ; and having been some time detained, at length they obtained a general pass for England ; but he hired a vessel, and by the favour of a dark night, got safe to Rotterdam, and thence, on Monday the 2d of December, was at the Hague, where the queen happened to be, who, hearing of his late misfortune, and inquiring after him, the Wednesday following he had the honour to be introduced and kiss her majesty's, and the prince's and the princesses hands there ; to whom he gave a particular relation of his ill treatment by the Spaniards ; and, upon his return to the army, was admitted a gentleman of a company ; in July 1635 was in a Leaguer at the siege of Vendelo in Great-Brabant, and before, in the same year, among other actions, had been at the besieging of Lovain, where he was in imminent danger. We find, in 1637, he was a lieutenant in those forces ; but upon a disgust taken, quitted this service, and went ensign, on promise of future preferment, under general Ranso, to assist the Swedes against the Hussars ; but it appears that (after having been at Amyens and elsewhere in the French service) he was at length an officer under the earl of Northumberland, appointed general of the king's forces at the breaking out of the civil wars, afterwards a captain of foot, and during the usurpation, being too open in declaring his sentiments, suffered imprisonment; he was married, and had an only child, Frances, who died unmarried, but we do not find by whom; 6. and 7. Nathaniel and Emanuel, died infants. Cassandra was married to Ralph Beard, of the Inner-Temple, London, and Hurstpierpont in Suffex, Esq; barrister at law, whose descendants now live there.

William Wilson, third son, and at length heir, when the king made the first expedition into the North, in 1639, to suppress the insurrection of the Scots, we find, was with the army at Newcastle and Berwick when his majesty was there in person, and sent his proclamation of grace into Scotland; and being concerned in the king's affairs, had a warrant from the principal secretary of state, dated 18 Ap. eod. ann. directed to all sheriffs, mayors, &c. setting forth, that 'he was to make his speedy repair to Berwick, &c. and on sight thereof, they should furnish him with three able post-horses and sufficient guides to the said town and back again, on peril, &c.'-But in the succeeding wars that so miserably divided this kingdom, it does not appear by what we yet collect, that he was in action; though after the fatal battle of Worcester in 1651, when King Cha. II. made his escape into Suffex, this gentleman's affections to the king were so well confided in, that he was, by letter, acquainted with his majesty's condition, and was to have been farther honoured with the royal presence at his house, had he met with any interruption to his embarkation at Brighthelmstone in this county, from whence he was happily conveyed into France. He was appointed in 1653, by that parliament, high sheriff of the county, contrary to his own inclinations, as was the case of many others in those oppressive times. And during the sad eclipse of monarchy, though he lived very retired, yet his behaviour was such as rendered him much suspected of promoting the king's interests; suspicions, we find, so well grounded, that, by an order from Cromwell, the protector, lieutenant Hopkins, of colonel Ingoldsby's regiment, was dispatched with a detachment of horse to East-Bourne-place his seat in Suffex, to seize and secure his person and carry him away, doubtless in order to have been prosecuted as a delinquent; but (luckily for himself and his family), at that juncture, he was so much weakened by a long and severe fit of illness, that he could not be removed with safety of life (as they judged), and having notice of their approach, he procured his dangerous letters, &c. to be put beyond the reach of their strict scrutiny, so that the principal ends of these unwelcome visitors were defeated, finding nothing that might add weight to the subject of his accusation, or increase their their suspicions; and his wife having an interest, by relation to some then at the head of affairs, which she strenuously and successfully exerted on this occasion, the storm which hung over his head was dispersed, and he lived to see the restoration of the king to his just rights, and ancient government in church and state; soon after which he was appointed one of his majesty's justices of the peace, & quorum unus, for the county aforesaid. And further, in the same year, his hearty inclinations for the restoration and loyal affections, being sufficiently manifested to his majesty, he was pleased, in consideration thereof, and of his being in other respects qualified, by his letters patent, to advance him to the dignity of a baronet of England; East-Bourne, the place of which he was stiled, in the king's patent of creation to this title, lies under that lofty and famous promontory on these coasts called Beachy-head and the Three Charles's, or Churles; and the seat here is generally much esteemed for its pleasant situation; as the parish is also remarked, in the histories of this county, for being the chief place where those rare birds are caught called Wheat-Ears, which so much resemble the French Ortelans. He was a person of much knowledge in business and the affairs of life; kept an hospitable house in proportion to his estate, which he managed with a care becoming the gentleman as well as the œconomist; was kind and beneficent to his relations and friends; and the poor always found him charitable, to whom he was especially bountiful at the anniversary-festival-times; and his deportment was such, in every relation of life, as became his honours, and gained him respect from persons of all ranks. He was in the commission of the peace and others, concerning the county affairs, till his death; and married Mary, the daughter of Francis Haddon of London, merchant, (by Judith, daughter of — Carter, remarried to Edward Burton, D.D. eldest son of Sir Edward Burton, Knt. justice of the peace, and rector of Broadwater, Suffex), lineally descended from Sir Richard Haddon, Knt. of an ancient family (some of whose posterity, we find lived at West and East-Haddon in Northamptonshire, places, from whence probably the family was originally denominated), who died seized (8 Hen. VIII.) of several lordships and other estates in that county, Kent, and Oxfordshire, from whom proceeded the learned and eloquent Walter Haddon, LL.D. Reg. professor of the civil law in Cambridge, some time president of Magdalen college Oxford, and master of the requests to Queen Elizabeth), by which lady he had issue five sons and two daughters, viz.

1. Sir William, his successor, hereafter mentioned; 2. John, counsellor at law, who married first, Elizabeth, the daughter of Robert Pickering, of Tablehurst, in East-Grinstead in Suffex, gent. and secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Roots, of Fletching, Esq; and died S. P. 1700; 3. Francis, who died young; 4. Thomas, who married, Anne, the daughter of Geo. Courthope, of Wadhurst in Suffex, gent. of an ancient family, and died June 27, 1684; leaving issue, Sir Thomas, of whom hereafter, and Philadelphia, married to Mr. Richard Knight, of Berks, S. P. 5. the reverend Edward Wilson, who was of Queen's college Cambridge, there took the degree of master of arts, afterwards went into holy orders, became rector of Blatchingington in Suffex, and married Catherine, daughter of Sackville Graves, of West-Firle in Suffex, Esq; justice of the peace, who died March 27, 1711, aged 58.

He departed this life in Jan. 4, 1728, S. P. and is buried near his wife in the same chancel.

Of the two daughters, Judith, the elder, was first married to Benjamin Culpeper, Esq; son and heir apparent of Sir William Culpeper, of Wakehurst, in the parish of Ardingley in Suffex, Bart. who died V. P. leaving issue by her a daughter, Mary, married to Andrew Ker, the laird of Lintoun in Scotland, of his grace the duke of Roxborough's family. Also Sir William Culpeper, Bart. born at Wakehurst on the 23d Nov. 1668, who succeeded his grandfather in title and estate, and died unmarried March 28, 1740, and was buried at St. James's Westminster, whereupon, he being the last heir male, the dignity of an English baronet, by his decease, became extinct in that ancient and honourable family. She was wedded a second time to Christopher Mason, of East-Greenwich in Kent, Esq; some time captain of the Oxford, and afterwards of the London man of war (a first rate), who was a brave and experienced commander, and had issue by her a son, named Christopher, who was also captain of a man of war, and slain in the service of his country, in an engagement at sea as he was boarding a French ship. She died May 9, 1685. Philadelphia, the younger daughter, was married to Sir James Smyth, Knt. lord mayor of London at the coronation of King James II. second son of Sir Robert Smyth, of Upton in Essex, Bart. and grandfather to Sir Robert Smyth, of Isfield-place in Suffex, Bart. She died in March 1710. Lady Wilson departed this life Oct. 3, 1661; Sir William ended his days at his seat there on the 9th of Dec. 1685, aged 77.

He was succeeded in honour and estate by his eldest son,

Sir William Wilson, Bart. who married Recharde, the second daughter and coheir of Richard Pecock, of North-end, in the parish of Finchley in Middlesex, Esq; eldest son of William Pecock, of the same place, Esq; by Mary, his wife, the second daughter of the honourable Sir Thomas Foster, Knt. of Hundsdon in Hertfordshire, one of the judges of the court of common-pleas in the reign of King James I. which lady died before Sir William, and was buried on the next day of March 1686.

By her he had issue three sons and two daughters, viz. 1. William, who died young; 2. another William, who married Jane, the only daughter and heir of Nicholas Townley, of the Inner-Temple, Esq; barrister at law (by Jane his wife, second daughter and coheir of Nicholas Gildredge, of East-Bourne aforesaid, gent.) eldest son of Nicholas Townley, of Littleton in Middlesex, Esq; directly descended from the ancient family of Townley, de Townley in Lancashire, and died July 15, 1713, in his father's life-time (his relict afterwards, viz. in Oct. 1716, was remarried to Anthony Trumble, of Hailsham in Suffex, gent.)

The son was William Wilson, hereafter mentioned, and the daughter, Elizabeth, married to the honourable James Glen, of Linlithgow in North-Britain, Esq; captain-general and governor in chief, &c. of the province of South-Carolina. 3. Christopher Wilson, who died an infant; Philadelphia, the elder daughter was first married to John Nutt, of Marshalls, in the parish of Maresfield in Suffex, gent. a descendant from a collateral branch of the family of Sir Thomas Nutt, formerly of Mays, in the parish of Selmiston in the same county, Knt. by whom she had issue; afterwards surviving him, she was again married to Joseph Ferrers, of Isleworth in Middlesex, Masham-street, Westminster, and Fletching in Suffex, Esq; late a lieutenant-colonel in the first regiment of foot-guards, when commanded by John, duke of Marlborough, 1. Geo. I. brother to the late brigadier-general Thomas Ferrers deceased; and at the time of his death, viz. on the 23d of Feb. 1739-40, one of the commissioners of the wine-licence office. Richard Wilson, the younger daughter, was the relict of Mr. William Exeter, late of East-Bourne, deceased. Sir William Wilson died Dec. 26, 1718, aged 74, and was succeeded in title and estate by his grandson,

Sir William Wilson, Bart. who was designed for the army, and died a batchelor at major Foubert's academy, on the 23d day of Jan. 1723, aged 19; upon whose death, the male issue failing in this branch, the dignity, and a considerable part of the family estate, devolved upon

Sir Thomas Wilson, baronet (the only son of Thomas Wilson, Esq; fourth son of Sir William Wilson, the first baronet), who married Elizabeth, the daughter of Mr. William Hutchinson, of Uckfield in Suffex, and hath had issue two sons and two daughters, viz. Sir Edward, the late, and Sir Thomas-Spencer, the present baronet. The daughters, Anne and and Mary, died young. Sir Thomas died Oct. 6, 1759, aged seventy-seven, and was succeeded by his eldest son,

Sir Edward Wilson, Bart. who died unmarried, June 1, 1760, being esteemed a sensible, worthy, and sincere friend; just in all his dealings, humane, and public spirited. He was a Fellow of the Antiquarian Society, and well versed in the history and antiquities of this kingdom. He was succeeded in dignity and estate by his only brother,

Sir Thomas-Spencer Wilson, the present Baronet. He received these two Christian names from his two grandfathers, Thomas, late duke of Newcastle, and Spencer, late earl of Wilmington. Sir Thomas-Spencer went early into the army, was wounded at the battle of La Val, and La Feldt, in Flanders, and rose intirely, through his own merit and bravery, to those posts he now enjoys. He was one of those brave officers, whom prince Ferdinand sent public thanks to for their courage and conduct at the battle of Minden, and is now lieutenant-colonel of the second regiment of foot-guards. In June, 1767, he married Jane, the only daughter and sole heir of John-Badger Weller, of Hornchurch in Essex, Esq; by whom he has issue one daughter, Margareta-Elizabeth, born April 4, 1768.

Created BARONET, June 5, 1661.

THE first of this ancient family was, Eustace, a noble Norman, who had two sons, who entered England with William the Conqueror; the eldest, was called Serlo de Burgo; he built the castle of Knareborough, and died issueless.

John-Monoculus, the second son, heir to his brother, had three sons; 1. Pagan, who died without issue; 2. Eustace; and 3. William: these three brothers were living, 1133, 33 Hen. I. and were witnesses to the royal foundation of the priory of Cirencester in Gloucestershire.

Eustace, the eldest surviving son, had two wives, first, Agnes, daughter to William Fitz-Nigell, baron of Halton, constable of Chester, and viscount Constantia, in Normandy; by her he had a son, Richard, who, in right of his mother, was baron of Halton, &c.

His second wife was, Beatrix, only daughter of Yvo de Vescy, a Norman, who entered England with William the Conqueror, who gave to him in marriage, Alda, only daughter and heir of William Tyfon, master of the baronies of Alnewick and Malton, by whom he had one son that was cut out of his mother's belly, when she was dead, who bore the name and arms of his mother, and was called, William de Vescy, and took for his wife, Burga, sister to Robert Stuteville, lord of Knaresborough; he had by her one son, called, Eustace de Vescy, and two daughters, Matilda, and Cecilia. This Eustace de Vescy married Agnes, daughter to William, King of Scotland, and had by her a son, called William, who married Agnes, daughter to the count of Ferres.

Dugdale, in his Baronage of England, tells you, ' That Eustace (the father of these sons) was one of the first peers in England, and of infinite familiarity with Hen. I. as also a person of great wisdom, and singular judgment in councils. He tells you, he was slain in an expedition into Wales, 1154, 3 Hen. II. with this honourable character, that he was a great, and aged man, of the chiefest English peers, most eminent for his wealth and wisdom.'

Richard, baron of Halton, &c. eldest son and heir of Eustace, aforesaid, married Albreda, daughter and heir to Robert de Lizures, by whom he had two sons; 1. John, who took upon him the name of Lacy, with the arms of constable of Chester, and died 25 Hen. II. leaving one son, Henry de Lacy, who left only a daughter, married to the earl of Lancaster: she settled all her lands on that family, and from thence, the Lacy's, earls of Lincoln, (now extinct) derived themselves.

Roger, the second son of Richard, aforesaid, was the first baron of Warkworth in Northumberland, by gift of Hen. II. and from him is lineally descended, the noble family of the Claverings. This Roger married Alianor, daughter and co-heir, (with her sister, Alice, who married one Vere, from whom the Veres, earls of Oxford, descended) of ——— Henry, of Essex, baron of Raleigh; by her he had one son, Robert, who founded founded the monastery of Langley in Norfolk, and married Margaret, only daughter and heir to William de Caifneto, vulgo, Cheney, (relict of Hugo de Crescy) and by failure of male issue of the said Crescy, the barony of Harford in Norfolk, fell to the heirs of this Robert. He was sheriff, for many years, of Norfolk, Suffolk, and Northumberland, and left one son, John, baron of Warkworth, and Clavering, in Essex, who took to wife, Ada, daughter and heir of — de Baliolo; by whom he had three sons; 1. Roger, of whom hereafter; 2. Hugo de Eure, from whom the lords Eure descended; 3. Robert, ancestor to the Eures, of Axholm in Lincolnshire.

Roger, the eldest son and heir, baron of Warkworth and Clavering, died 33 Hen. III. and left a son, Robert, very young, who was committed to William de Valence, the King's brother. Which Robert was also baron of Warkworth and Clavering, and died 3 Edw. II. having been summoned to parliament, as a baron, from 23 Edw. I. to 4 Edw. II. By his wife, Margery de la Zouch, he had seven sons; 1. John, who had given him, by King Edward I. the surname of Clavering, taking it from the chief place of his estate in Essex; 2. Edmund; 3. Alexander; 4. Robert; 5. Henry; 6. Roger; (which five last died issueless) 7. Alan.

Sir John Clavering, Knt. the eldest son and heir, baron of Warkworth and Clavering, was called to parliament from 28 Edw. II. to 5 Edw. III. inclusive: and having married Havise, daughter to Robert de Tibitot, died at his manor at Aynho in Northamptonshire, without any male issue, 1332, 6 Edw. III. and was buried at the conventual church of the abbey of Langley, which was founded by his ancestors.

Sir Alan Clavering, Knt. (who inherited nothing of his brother's estate, but what he had independent of him, given him by his father) married Isabella, eldest daughter and coheir to William Riddell, by whom he had one son, William, and died 2 Edw. III.

William, his son and heir, died 20 Ed. III. leaving Robert, his son and heir, who was a soldier; and died 17 Rich. II. leaving four sons; John, the eldest, was bred a soldier, and died 4 Hen. Tilmouth, in the county of Durham. Edward, the son of Ralph, was there seated, and was father of another Ralph, whose eldest son, Robert, raised a company of foot for the service of King Charles I. and was a captain in the regiment of Sir Robert Clavering, knighted under the banner, by the said prince. Sir Robert was the eldest son of Sir John Clavering, of Calley, Knt. and died at Kendal, without issue. Robert, of Tilmouth, left issue two sons, Robert and William, who were both married; but the eldest dying without issue, William, the second, succeeded to the estate of the family: he married Dorothy, eldest daughter of Richard Selby, Esq; alderman, and some time mayor of Berwick upon Tweed, who was a great sufferer for his loyalty to King Charles I. He left issue two sons, (by his said wife) Robert and William: William, the youngest son, was a person of great courage, which he signalized in Africa, being then only in the twenty-sixth year of his age, and having, two years before, been promoted to the government of Dickey's-Cove, as an earnest of farther advancement, for having defeated five hundred of the rebel moors, with four-score men he commanded on that occasion; he died of a calenture, unmarried, whereby the early hopes he had given of greater actions, and rising to posts, suitable to his courage and merit, were unfortunately frustrated. Robert, the eldest son, heir in a direct line to the Tilmouth branch, was the lord bishop of Peterborough, and Hebrew professor in the university of Oxford; who, besides his descent from the Calley family, as here set forth, was likewise cousin, in the third degree, to Ralph Clavering, Esq; late possessor of that estate, by his grandmother, Anne, a sister's daughter of Sir John Clavering, of Calley, Knt. who died in the year 1647; his lordship married Mary, second daughter of John Cook, Esq; a Spanish merchant, niece to Sir Thomas Cook, of Hackney, Knt. and sister to John Cook, Esq; who changed his name to Freeman, of Fawley-court, near Henly-upon-Thames in Oxfordshire, by whom he had one son, Robert, and four daughters, Mary, (married to the reverend Mr. Frederick Williams, vicar of Long-Sutton in Lincolnshire, also rector of Peakirk, cum Glington, in Northamptonshire, and prebendary of Peterborough, third son of the late William Peer Williams, Esq; an eminent lawyer in the court of chancery) Catherine; Susanna, (married to the reverend Mr. William Brown, prebendary of Peterborough, and late fellow of Queen's college, Cambridge, son and heir to Thomas Brown, of Horblin in Lincolnshire, Esq;) and Anne.

191. STANLEY, of Hooton, Cheshire.

Created BARONET, June 17, 1661.

THE family of Stanley is of such antiquity, that it would be endless to trace their original farther than their taking that surname, which was occasioned by the father dividing his estate betwixt his two sons, Leudolph and Adam.

To the first he gave Aldelegh, alias Audley, from whence the lords of that name descended. To the other he gave Thalk in Staffordshire.

Adam had for his son William, who gave to his cousin Adam de Audley, the township of Thalk in exchange for the manor of Stanle, or Stanley, from whence that family took their denomination; and as that is situated near the moors in Staffordshire, and that the said open country might then be stocked with deer, it might probably give rise to their coat of arms.

192. RUSHOUT, of Milnft-Maylards, Essex.

Created BARONET, July 17, 1661.

THIS family is said to be originally of English extraction, but long since went into France and there settled; where we find Thibaut Rouhaut, Sieur de Boismenart, from whom this house derives its descent: he lived in the year 1300, and about that time married the lady Jane de la Val, daughter of Guy, Comte, de la Val, of Brittany, one of the most ancient houses in France, by whom he had one son and one daughter, viz. Tristan and Jane.

Tristan, Sieur de Boismenart (a person of great merit), married Peronelle de Thouars, daughter of Louis, viscount de Thouars, and by her had only one son, named John; Jane was married to Robert Dreux, baron, and Seigneur D'Esneval, by whom she had issue.

John, Sieur de Boismenart, only son of Tristan, was a valiant knight, served long in the army, and distinguished himself upon several occasions; he married the lady Jane de Bellay, daughter of the prince D'yvetot, and by her had two sons, viz. Joachim and Abel (who was governor of Valognes, and served in the French army with great reputation, and is much applauded by Monstrelet), who died issueless.

Joachim, Sieur de Boismenart, de Gameches, and de Chatillon, began to make a considerable figure about the year 1439, being at that time, first, master of the horse to the Dauphin of France, afterwards King Louis XI. and served him in his wars almost throughout the whole course of his reign, and was by him advanced to the dignity of a mareschal of France, great master of the horse of France, and assisted in that quality when Louis XI. made his publick entry into Paris; he was also governor of Paris, constable of Bourdeaux, and had the government of Berberac, of Montquion, of Blau, and of Fronsac. He rendered his prince great service; and is recorded by the French historians in their catalogues of illustrious persons as one of the greatest captains of those enterprizing times. He married the lady Frances de Volleveire, daughter of the marquis de Ruffet, and by her had three sons, viz. Alolph, Thibaut, and John.

Alolph, eldest son to the mareschal Gamaches, married Gabrielle de Montrigny, of the house of Salvart, and by her had issue only one son, named Alolph, who married Jaqueline de Soissons, called Moreul; from whom is lineally descended, after several descents, the present marquis de Gamaches, who resides at Gamaches in Picardy.

Thibaut, the second son of the mareschal, was governor of Hesdin, and was highly signalized for his courage: he married Jane de Sauveuse, heir of Sauveuse and Cangny, and by her had only one daughter, married to the Seigneur de la Brosse.

Marchudd was the father of Carwed, the father of Japheth, father of Inetham, lord of Abergele, who died in 849; the father of Edryd, the father of Idnerth, the father of Gwyon, the father of Jorwerth, the father of Kynrick, who married Angharad, daughter and heir to Hwfa ap Kynrick (descended from Tudur Trevor, earl of Herefordshire), by his wife Gwenlian, daughter of Owen Gwynedd, prince of North-Wales, by whom, among many other children, he had issue,

Created BARONET, August 2, 1661.

THIS is a family of great antiquity and eminency, being seated in England before the conquest. The first ancestor we can trace is Other, who lived in Edward the Confessor's time; whose son Walter, held several lordships at the time of the Conqueror's survey (as may be seen in Doomſday-book), and was styled Walter de Windſor (ſo called from his being governor of that caſtle under the Conqueror). He had two ſons, William, progenitor to the earl of Plymouth and lord Windſor; and Gerald, ſeneſchal, or caſtellan of the caſtle of Pembroke, who was a great ſoldier, and much in favour with King Henry I. This Gerald, was ſometimes ſtyled de Windſor, and ſometimes Fitzwalter, by which latter name Camden ſtyles him, mentioning that King Henry I. gave him Moulesford in Berks; and that the Carew's, as well of England as Ireland, deſcended from him.

The name has been variously ſpelt, but was taken (as is imagined) from Carew-caſtle in Pembrokeſhire, which came to the family, with ſeven manors, by marriage of Gerald before-mentioned, with Neſta, daughter of Rees, Prince of South-Wales, by whom he had three ſons, 1. William; 2. Maurice-Fitzgerald (progenitor to the earls of Kildare and Deſmond in Ireland); 3. David, biſhop of St. David's, 1176.

William Fitzgerald, the eldeſt ſon, or William de Carrio (as lord thereof), married Marrio, daughter to Stephen, conſtable of Cardiganſhire, and had iſſue Otho; William (from whom the Gerards of Lancaſhire, the earls of Maccleſfield, and barons Bromley, derived themſelves); Griffin; and Raymond,

firmamed the Gros, at the conquest of Ireland, who married Basilia, daughter of Gilbert, and sister of Richard Strongbow, earl of Pembroke, and died without issue.

Otho, the eldest son of William Fitzgerald, was living temp. Rich. I. and heir to his younger brother, Raymond, and gave Redbard, distant a mile from Carew-castle, to the knights-templars, and died 1173. He married Margaret, daughter of Richard Fitz-Tancred, by whom he had William, his son and heir; and Stephen, who gave his estate to religious houses.

William de Carru, or Carrio, temp. King John, was the first that took upon him the name of Carru. He had a confirmation of the manor of Mulesford the 14th of that reign; and married the heir of Digon, or Tegen, baron of Odron in Ireland; whereby that barony, which is held of the castle of Catherlogh, came into the family: he left issue, William, father of

Nicholas, whose wife was Ada, daughter to Arnulph de Montgomery, lord of Pembroke, by whom he had issue, William, living temp. Hen. III. and was styled baron Carru and Mulesford.

Sir Nicholas, his son, married Amicia, daughter of Sir Richard Twit, jun. lord of Marsta, in West-Meath, Ireland, by whom he had two sons, Sir Nicholas and David. This last Sir Nicholas had summons to sit in the parliament at Lincoln, 1301, but whether as a baron of parliament, or holding only per Baroniam, is uncertain. He had to wife, Amicia, sister to Sir John Peverell of this county, Knt. and died 2 Edw. II. 1308, having issue four sons, 1. John, of whom hereafter; 2. Thomas, who left posterity; 3. Nicholas (progenitor to the Carews, of Bedington in Surrey; of which line was Nicholas Carew, keeper of the great seal, and one of the executors to King Edward III. And after the intermarriages with the heiresses of Hurscarle and the lord Hoo, was Sir Nicholas Carew, Knt. master of the horse, and knight of the most noble order of the garter, temp. Hen. VIII. one of whose daughters, coheir to her brother, Sir Francis Carew, Knt. brought a plentiful estate unto the issue of her husband by her, viz. Nicholas Throckmorton, Esq; her son and heir, who assumed by stipulation, the name and arms of Carew, as born by his descendant, Sir Nicholas-Hacket Carew, of Bedington, Bart. William Carew, fourth son of Nicholas, baron Carru, married, but his issue failed.

Sir John de Carru, Knt. eldest son of Nicholas, married, first Eleanor, daughter and coheir to Sir William Mohun, of Mohun-Ottery, Knt. by whom he had a son, Nicholas, who married Elianor, daughter to Gilbert, lord Talbot, but died without issue, 1324. Sir John married to his second wife, Joan, daughter to Gilbert, lord Talbot, by whom he had issue one son,

Sir John, who was both a soldier and statesman, served King Edward III. in his wars in France, and was by that King made lord-deputy of Ireland. He died 1363, but by Margaret, daughter of John, lord Mohun, of Dunster, had issue,

Sir John Carru, Knt. who was slain in France, 1353, in his father's life-time, unmarried; and Sir Leonard de Carru (who died 1368), but by Alice, daughter of Sir Edmund Fitz-Alan, second son of Edmond, earl of Arundel, had issue,

Thomas, his son and heir, who was knighted, and became a great soldier: he had the trust of the navy, and 3000 soldiers committed to him for securing the Emperor Sigismund during his abode in England, temp. Hen. V. he commanded at the siege of Rouen, 6 Hen. V. was also at the battle of Agincourt, where the English took more prisoners than they had soldiers in their army. He died 9 Hen. VI. leaving by Elizabeth his wife, daughter of Sir William Bosvile (or Bonvile), of Shute, Knt.

Sir Nicholas Carew, Knt. his son and heir (who died 1446), he married Joan, daughter of Sir Hugh Courtney, of Haccombe, Knt. (by Phillippa his wife, daughter and coheir of Sir Warren Erchedeacon, Knt.) by whom he had issue five sons. Sir Thomas, the eldest son, disobliging his mother (having undutifully given her a blow), she settled seventeen manors on her younger sons, which proved the occasion of three great families, as is hereafter shewn. Her sons were, 1. Sir Thomas; 2. Nicholas Carew, on whom she settled Haccombe, Ringmore, and Milton, from whom the present Baronet descends, of whom hereafter; 3. Hugh, unto whom his mother gave Lyham, Manedon, Combhall, and Southtawton; but he dying issueless, his portion, by virtue of an entail, went to his brother Nicholas; 4. Alexander, who had East-Anthony in Cornwall, Shoggebroke, and Landegy, by gift of his mother; 5. Sir William Carew, knighted after the battle of Black-heath, 12 Hen. VII. to whom his mother gave Wicheband, Widebridge, Bokeland and Bleduagh, and was progenitor to the Carews, of Crocum in Somersetshire.

After Sir Nicholas's decease, this Joan married to her second husband, Sir Robert Vere, brother to John, earl of Oxford, and had a son, John, to whom she gave Roseworthy, Bosewen, and Tregennow in Cornwall.

Sir Thomas Carew, of Mohun's-Ottery, eldest son and heir, repaired in part the loss he sustained by disobliging his mother, by his marriage with Joan, daughter and coheir to John Carmi-now, and was father of Sir Nicholas, buried in Westminster-Abbey, 1470, who left issue by Margaret, daughter of Sir John Dinham, Knt. sister and coheir of John, lord Dinham, of Nutwell in Devon, lord high-treasurer of England, Sir Edmund Carew, Knt. who married Katherine, daughter of Sir William

Hud-

Huddesfield, Knt. attorney-general to King Henry VII. Sir Edmund was a brave foldier, knighted at Bosworth-field, and killed at the siege of Terouin, as he sat in council, by a cannon-ball that came from the town. He had several sons; 1. Sir William; 2. Thomas Carew, of Bickleigh, ancestor to the Carews of that place, now terminated in an heir-female, married to the Haccombe line; 3. George, archdeacon of Totness, who had issue, Sir Peter, slain in Ireland, and Sir George Carew, Knt. president of Munster, privy-counsellor, and master of the ordnance to Queen Elizabeth, created baron Carew, and earl of Totness, which honour expired for want of issue-male; 4. Sir Gawen Carew, of Woods, who served in the wars of France, temp. Hen. VIII. with good reputation, and died without issue, 1583.

Sir Peter, who was at the siege of Bologne, and principally employed to quell the rebellion in Devon, where he commanded the horse against Sir Edward Butler, and Peirce, brothers to the earl of Ormond, and died in Ireland, 1575. These three brothers dying without issue, Cecily, their sister, became heir, who married Thomas Kirkham, of Blagdon in Devonshire, Esq.

But we now return to Nicholas Carew, of Haccombe, Esq; (second son of Sir Nicholas, who died 24 Hen. VI. 1446, by Joan, his wife, daughter of Sir Hugh Courtney, of Haccombe, Knt. whose descendants, on the death of Sir Peter Carew, that died in Ireland, 1575, became the eldest branch of this ancient family) who married Joan, daughter to ——— Seymour, (some pedigrees make her relict of Seymour) by whom he had a son, John. John, his son and heir, was a commander in the army, sent into Italy, under Mons. Lautrec, by Francis, the French king, and King Henry VIII. 1527, to rescue pope Clement VII. then prisoner in the castle of St. Angelo, so made by the emperor Charles V. whose success was so fortunate, they soon set the pope at liberty. He died at Pavia, 1528, and was there buried; having had issue by his wife, Catherine, sister to the lord Zouch, of Haringworth, two sons, John and Francis.

198. Y O N G E, of Culliton, Devonshire.

Created BARONET, Sept. 26, 1661.

THE present Sir George Yonge, Bart. derives his descent from William Yonge, who was returned one of the members for the city of Bristol, to the parliament summoned to meet at Westminster, in the thirty-fourth year of King Edward III. and in the same year, John le Yonge was returned one of the members for Dorchester.

It was in 47 Edw. III. that Bristol was made a county of itself, before which time, the sheriffs of Gloucestershire, returned the members of the said city to parliament; whereby it may be presumed, that the family was originally of that county, or of Shropshire, the adjoining county, where they had large possessions; and Thomas le Yonge was returned to parliament, as one of the knights for that county, in 7 and 18 Rich. II. and 1 Hen. IV.

Whether he was brother, or nephew to William Yonge, one of the members for Bristol, before-mentioned, does not appear, nor how he stood related to Hugh de Yonge, who, in 50 Ed. III. was the King's chamberlain of South-Wales, and in that year received the King's writ, to deliver to Richard, prince of Wales, all the lands in his jurisdiction. Also in 4 Rich. II. William, lord Latymer, and Thomas Yonge, were appointed the King's ambassadors, to conclude an alliance with Ferdinand, King of Portugal, and Leonora, his Queen. And in 5 Hen. IV. Owen de Glendourdy, prince of Wales, nominated Griffin Yonge, his chancellor, to treat with Charles, King of France, for his assistance.

In 12 Hen. IV. Thomas Yonge was mayor of Bristol, and that year, with John Spyne, the sheriff, returned Thomas Norton, and David Dudbroke, Esqrs; burgesses to the parliament. It may be justly presumed, that he was either son, or grandson to William Yonge, first named; for by his last will and testament, bearing date 14 March, 1426, (4 Hen. VI.) wherein he styles himself, burgess of Bristol, he orders his body to be buried before the altar of St. Nicholas, in the church of St. Thomas, the martyr, in Bristol.

His eldest son, Thomas Yonge, hereafter mentioned, advanced himself by the study of the laws; and John, his younger son, was lord-mayor of London. It appears by the books in Guildhall, that John Yonge, who was lord-mayor of London, was the son of Thomas Yonge, of the city of Bristol. He was one of the members for the city of London, in 33 Hen. VI. and received the honour of knighthood from King Edward IV. in the eleventh year of his reign, together with the lord-mayor, and several other aldermen, who, meeting the King (after his victory over the Lancastrians, at Tewkesbury) about a mile without the city, he immediately knighted them, in the highway, having highly deserved of him a little before, by repelling the bastard, Fauconberg, who assaulted them, in order to release King Henry VI. from his imprisonment in the Tower. He was lord-mayor of London in 6 Edw. IV. He left issue; but my present design being, to treat only of the descendants of those who were advanced to the dignity of baronets, I shall return to Thomas Yonge, his elder brother.

Which Thomas took to the study of the laws, and eminently advanced himself. He was one of the members for the city of Bristol, in the parliaments of 13, 20, 25, 27, 28, 29, and 33 Hen. VI. He was called to the degree of a serjeant at law, by writ, dated May 23, in 3 Edw. IV. and on the eighth of Nov. following, was appointed King's serjeant. In 7 Edw. IV. being one of the justices of the Common-pleas, he had a grant of ten marks yearly, for the better support of that dignity. And on the revolution, which obliged King Edward IV. to quit the nation, and re-instated King Henry VI. in the royal dignity, he was so deserving, as that monarch continued him one of the justices of the Common-pleas. Also, when King Edward obtained again the crown, he was, in 15 Edw. IV. appointed one of the judges of the King's-bench: and departing this life the year following, 1476, 16 Edw. IV. was buried in Christchurch, London, where a monument was erected to his memory, long since defaced. By the inquisition taken after his death, at Amersbury in Wiltshire, 16 Sept. 17 Edw. IV. the jury found, that Edward Cervyngton, Esq; son and heir of David Cervyngton, was seized of the manor of Wraxhall, alias North-Wraxhall, in Wiltshire, with the advowson of the church, church, and that he granted the same to Thomas Yonge, son and heir of Thomas Yonge, of Bristol, merchant; John More, of Columpton in Devonshire; John Sydenham, jun. and others; to hold to them, their heirs, and assigns, for ever: and the said Thomas Yonge died seised of the said manor, jointly with them, on 5 May, 17 Ed. IV. leaving Thomas Yonge, his son and heir, aged thirty years and upwards. Also by another inquisition, taken at Bath in Somersetshire, Nov. 6, 17 Ed. IV. the jury say, that the said Thomas Yonge was seised of the manor of Elton in Gordan, alias Elton in Gordano, in Somersetshire, and that he gave the same to George Yonge, and Joan, his wife, and their heirs, remainder to him, the donor, and his heirs. But by another inquisition taken at Holeway in Somersetshire, June 28, 18 Ed. IV. the jury say, that the said Thomas Yonge did not give the said manor to George, and Joan, aforesaid, but that he died seised thereof, and it descended to Thomas, his son and heir.

The said George Yonge, his younger son, by his last will, bearing date at Tilehurst in Berkshire, (Sarum diocese) the last day of Sept. 1485, bequeaths to Joan, his wife, his house, called the White Lamb, in Winch-street in Bristol, between the houses of Thomas Yonge, and the lord Cobham, for life, remainder to Hugh, his son and heir. And to Agnes, his daughter, his house, called the White-hart, in Brad-street in Bristol. He constitutes Joan, his wife, executrix, leaving Hugh, his son, under age.

John Yonge, was another son of judge Yonge, as may be presumed from the age he lived in: which John, was doctor of the civil laws, and constituted master of the rolls, 22 Jan. 23 Hen. VII. and had his patent renewed on the accession of King Henry VIII. who made him dean of York, May 17, 1514. He died two years after.

I now return to Thomas Yonge, the eldest son of the judge, who was thirty years of age, and upwards, on his father's decease. He had a mansion in Wynch-street in Bristol, near the lord Cobham's house, as mentioned in the will of his brother, George. He was also of Basilden in Berkshire; but when he died, I do not find. Under the east-window, in the chancel of the church of Basilden, is a grave-stone, at the head whereof, in a brass plate, are the figures, at full length, of a man in armour, for Roger Yonge, of Basilden, who died March 3, 1589, ætat. ninety-six, after he had continued in the commission of the peace, in the county of Berks, without any intermission, full sixty years, who is supposed to be son of Thomas, and grandson of the judge.

Contemporary with the said Roger Yonge, Esq; and probably his brother, was, Walter Yonge, Esq; who is mentioned in the Visitation of Devonshire, 1620, to be a younger son of the Yonge's, of Berkshire, and came into Devonshire, in the reign of King Henry VII. He married two wives, and in the latter part of his life, resided at Sudbury in Devonshire, where his last will bears date, viz. on the second of February, 1561, 4 Eliz. and the probate thereof, the nineteenth of June, following. It appears by this will, that his last wife was, Agnes, the widow of Richard Sampford, of Sudbury, and that she had several children by her first husband. The first wife of the said Walter Yonge, is not mentioned by him by name; but he bequeaths to Alice, daughter of John Yonge, his son, his harness girdle, that was his first wife's; and as it seems by the will, all his children were by his first wife. He first takes notice of Julian Berde, his daughter; and his other daughters were, Joan, the wife of Roger Hayman; Jane, of Nicholas Westlake; and Florence, of John Pitt, Esqrs. His only son was, John Yonge, Esq; whom he constituted his sole executor, who had then living, three sons, Walter, John, and Robert; also two daughters, Alice, and Agnes. He bequeaths to his said son, the manor of Cobeton, the manor of Botteshorne-Paulet, in the parish of Honiton, purchased of Sir Hugh Paulet, Knt. as also all his lands in Winterborne, Kingston-Winterborne, Wyffach, and Combe-Marshall, all in Dorsetshire, which his wife, Agnes, held in dower, and all other his lands and tenements.

John Yonge, Esq; only son of the said Walter, was, in his life-time, member for Plymouth, in the second and third of Philip and Mary, and served for Portpigham, alias Westlow, in Cornwall, in 5 Eliz. He married Joan, daughter and coheir of John Colleton, Esq; by whom he had three sons; Walter, who died issueless; John, who succeeded him in estate; and Robert, who married Anne, daughter of — Haffard; also, Margaret, married to Hercules Pyne, of Hay in Devonshire, Esq; Alice, Agnes, and Hellen.

John, the eldest surviving son, was seated at Culliton, and married Alice, daughter of — Starre, Esq; by whom he had issue, John, who left no issue, and Walter; also five daughters, Jane, married to Richard Mallock, of Axmouth in Devonshire; Alice, wedded to Humphry Cokeran; Anne, wife to Robert Hill, of Hollylane in Somersetshire; Jane, married to William Hill, of Pounsford in Somersetshire; and Mary, wife to William Fry, of Yarty in Devonshire, Esqrs.

Walter Yonge, Esq; only surviving son, resided at Upton-Helion in Devonshire, 1620, at which time, John, his eldest son, was seventeen years of age. In 16 Car. I. the house of commons, appointing a committee to view the records of what towns had sent burgesses to parliament, and for some time had been discontinued; on a report made to the house, they ordered the borough of Honiton to be restored, and send members to parliament; whereupon, Walter Yonge, Esq; and William Pole, Esq; were the two first returned for the said borough, and was also a member to the time of his death. He married Jane, daughter and coheir of Sir John Peryam, Knt. by whom he had issue two sons, John and Walter, who married Alice, daughter of Joyles Green, of Purbeck in Dorsetshire, Esq; also one daughter, Jane, who died unmarried.

John, the eldest son, was knighted in his father's life-time, and elected one of the members for Plymouth, in 16 Car. I. before which, he had received the honour of knighthood. In 1656, he was one of the members secluded by Cromwell, who denied him, and above an hundred more members, entrance into the house; whereupon, they had the courage to publish a remonstrance, inveighing bitterly against the tyranny of Cromwell, and asserting the legality of their right to sit in parliament. Which remonstrance was signed by him, Sir Anthony Ashley Cooper, and one hundred and fifteen more members. On the restoration of King Charles II. he was advanced to the dignity of a baronet, by letters patent, bearing date Sept. 26, 1661, 13 Car. II. He had to wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir William Strode, of Newnham in Devonshire, Knt. by whom he had issue five sons; 1. John, who died an infant; 2. Sir Walter, his successor; 3. Robert; 4. William; married to Jane, daughter of Sir John Drake, of Ash in Devonshire, Bart. and 5. George, who died young: also four daughters; Jane, married to Sir John Drake, of Trill, and Ash, Bart. (to whom she was first wife) Elizabeth, married to Thomas Hodges, of Shipton Moigne in Gloucestershire, Esq; Mary, and Sarah, who both died infants.

Sir Walter Yonge, Bart. successor to his father, married Isabel, daughter to Sir John Davie, of Creedy in Devonshire, Bart. by whom he had five sons and eight daughters; 1. John, who died unmarried; 2. Sir Walter, who succeeded him; 3. Francis, who died a bachelor; 4. Charles, who died at Montpelier, unmarried; and 5. William, who died an infant. Of the daughters; Isabella, married Richard Duke, of Otterton in Devonshire, Esq; 2. Elizabeth, died an infant; 3. Jane, died unmarried; 4. Mary, wedded to John Walrond, Esq; 5. Elizabeth, wife of Bartholomew Beale, of Heath-house in Shropshire, Esq; 6. Dorothy, who died young; 7. Margaret, died at a year old; and 8. Sarah, married to Robert Yate, of Bristol, Esq.

Sir Walter Yonge, Bart. his eldest surviving son, succeeding him, was returned a member for Honiton, in three parliaments, in the reign of King Charles II. viz. in two called in 31 Car. II. at Westminster, and in that at Oxford, in 32 Car. II. In the first parliament called by King William and Queen Mary, he was elected for Ashburton; and in the second of William and Mary, for Honiton. On August 14, 1694, he was constituted one of the commissioners of the customs, and was chose a member for Honiton, in the several parliaments of the seventh, tenth, twelfth, and thirteenth of King William; as also in the first, fourth, seventh, and ninth years of Queen Anne. He continued a commissioner of the customs, in the reign of King William, till the act passed to disqualify those who were in that commission, to sit in that house, and then he chose to relinquish his post, to serve his country in parliament.

On the accession of George I. he was again constituted one of the commissioners of the customs, (viz. Nov. 19, 1714, being the first in the commission) as he was to the time of his death, July 18, 1731. He first married Gertrude, daughter of Sir William Morrice, of Werrington in Devonshire, Bart. by whom he had only a daughter, that died young. His second lady was, Gwen, daughter and coheir of Sir Robert Williams, of Penhryn in Carnarvonshire, Bart. (by Jane, daughter of Sir John Glynne, lord chief-justice) by whom he left issue, the late Sir William Yonge; and had also four daughters, viz. Gwen, married to Arthur Arcot, of Telcot in Devonshire, Esq; member of parliament for Tiverton; Isabella, who died an infant; Jane; and Frances, wife of Edward St. Hill, of Bradninch in Devonshire, Esq.

The right honourable Sir William Yonge, Bart. his only son and heir, was elected for Honiton, in the first parliament called by King George I. and constantly served in the house of commons till his death. On the second of July, 1717, he was appointed one of the commissioners for taking, examining, and stating the debts due to the army. On the second of April, 1724, he was constituted one of the lords-commissioners of the treasury, in which commission he continued till the accession of his late Majesty; and was elected one of the knights-companions of the Bath, on the institution of that most honourable order, in 1725. On the first of June, 1728, he was made one of the commissioners of the admiralty, wherein he continued till May 11, 1730, when he was again made one of the commissioners of the treasury; and soon after, was constituted secretary of war, and sworn of his Majesty's most honourable privy-council. In July, 1739, he was appointed custos rotulorum of the county of Carnarvon; in May, 1746, he was appointed one

one of the joint vice-treasurers of Ireland, and the same year was one of the committee of the house of commons for managing the impeachment against Simon Lord Lovat, for treason and rebellion; in 1747, he was elected to parliament for Bodmin and Tiverton, but took his seat for the latter. He was likewise L L. D. and F. R. S. He first married Mary, daughter of Samuel Heathcote, of Hackney, in the county of Middlesex, Esq; from whom he was divorced, without issue by her, 1724, and enabled, by act of parliament, to marry again. On Sept. 14, 1729, he married, secondly, Anne, daughter and coheir of Thomas Lord Howard, of Effingham, elder brother to Francis, the late earl of Effingham, by whom he had issue four sons and six daughters. He died Aug. 10, 1755, and was succeeded in title and estate by his son,

Sir George Yonge, the present baronet, who was elected to the two last and present parliaments for Honiton, and is now, 1770, one of the lords commissioners of the admiralty. He married, in 1765, Elizabeth, only daughter and heir of the late Bouchier Cleeve, of Foots-Cray in Kent, Esq; by his wife, Elizabeth, daughter and sole heir of — Heydon, of London, timber-merchant.

199. S M Y T H, of Hill-Hall, Essex.

Created BARONET, Nov. 28, 1661.

SMYTH, of Hill-Hall in Essex, is descended from the family of Smyth, of Saffron-Walden in Essex, many of whom have been knighted, made deputy-lieutenants, and sheriffs of the said county. John Smyth was high-sheriff of the counties of Essex and Hertford, 30 Hen. VIII. He married Agnes, daughter, and one of the coheirs, of — Charnock, of Lancashire, Esq; and had by her several children.

Thomas, his eldest son, was sent to Queen's college, Cambridge, at the age of fourteen or fifteen, where he distinguished himself to such advantage, that he, together with Mr. John Cheke,

Cheke, afterwards tutor, and secretary of state to King Edward VI. was appointed King Henry VIII's scholars: in 1531, he was chosen fellow of his college; and about two years after, was appointed to read the publick Greek lectures. About the year 1535, he consulted with Mr. Cheke, about the sounds of the Greek letters, and introduced a new way of pronouncing that language. In 1536, he was made university orator. In 1539, he began his travels abroad, and studied in the universities of France and Italy, and took the degree of doctor of civil law at Padua. After his return, he took the same degree at Cambridge, in 1542, and was made regius professor of civil law, in that university. He became, likewise, chancellor to the bishop of Ely. During his residence at Cambridge, he wrote a tract, concerning the correct writing of the English tongue, and the true sounding of the letters and words. And as he was thus useful to learning in the university, so he promoted likewise the reformation of religion, even in the reign of King Henry VIII. Besides the preferments above-mentioned, he enjoyed also the living of Leverington in Cambridgeshire. Upon the accession of King Edward VI. to the crown, he removed from Cambridge, into the duke of Somerset's family, where he was employed in matters of state, by that great man, who was uncle and governor of the King, and protector of his realms. Dr. Smith was appointed master of the requests to the duke, wherein he might have received many bribes, if he would, for dispatching suits, and selling the lord protector's letters; but he challenged all the world to charge him with one penny that he had taken dishonestly. He was, by King Edward VI. appointed steward of the stannaries, provost of Eton, and dean of Carlisle. In 1548, he was advanced to be secretary of state, and knighted by his Majesty; and in July, the same year, was sent with Mr. Chamberlayne, (afterwards Sir Thomas) ambassador to Brussels, to the emperor's council there; and, in September, returned to England, leaving Mr. Chamberlayne resident at Brussels. He was concerned, about this time, in the reformation of religion, and the redress of base coin, upon which last point, he wrote a letter to the duke of Somerset. In 1549, he was employed in an ecclesiastical commission, for the examining of Anabaptists and Arians, and appointed one of the visitors of the university of Cambridge. In October, the same year, the duke of Somerset being brought into trouble, Sir Thomas, who faithfully adhered to him, seems to have been involved in it, there being only three, viz. Thomas, archbishop of Canterbury, Sir William Paget, and Sir Thomas Smith, that stuck to him; upon this, he was deprived of his place of secretary of state; for at this time, it appears from the King's journal, journal, that Dr. Wotton was made secretary, though Sir Thomas seems to be restored to that place soon after. April 30, 1551, Sir Thomas, still under the name of secretary, was appointed one of those that were to go in that great and splendid embassy to France, to treat of a marriage between King Edward, and the King of France's eldest daughter. Sir Thomas past the reign of King Edward VI. in great reputation and prosperity; but upon Queen Mary's accession to the crown, Sir William Cecil, and he, the two secretaries, were cast off, and Sir Thomas was deprived of all his places, and was charged not to depart the kingdom, though he was allowed a pension of 100l. per Ann, and enjoyed a particular indulgence from the pope, being highly favoured by bishop Bonner, of London, and bishop Gardiner, of Winchester. Upon the accession of Queen Elizabeth to the throne, he was employed in the settlement of religion, and several important affairs of the state, and wrote a dialogue concerning the marriage of the Queen. In 1562, he was sent ambassador to France, where, in conjunction with Sir Nicholas Throckmorton, he concluded a peace between England and France, in the beginning of the year 1564, but was still continued ambassador in France. In March, 1565, he finished his treatise of the commonwealth of England, and in the beginning of the year following, returned to England. In 1567, he was again sent ambassador to France, to demand the restitution of Calais: and upon his return from thence, in 1568, he solicited for the place of chancellor of the dutchy of Lancaster, vacant by the death of his old friend, Sir Ambrose Cave, Knt. but without success, it being given to Sir Ralph Sadlier. In 1570, he was admitted into the privy-council, and the year following, was engaged in a project for transmuting iron into copper. In September, 1571, he was again sent ambassador to France, where he concluded a league; and during his absence abroad, in April, 1572, was made chancellor of the garter. About June, the same year, he returned to England, and on the twenty-fourth of that month, was advanced to be secretary of state; and the same year, sent a colony into a land of his, in Ireland, called, The Ardes, for which he had obtained a patent from her Majesty, in 1571. In 1576, he was seized with a lingering sickness, which at last proved fatal to him, and in order to divert his melancholy hours, he looked over his former writings, particularly his book about Roman coins. He died at his house at Mount-hall in Essex, Aug. 12, 1577, æt. sixty-five. He was one of the greatest scholars of the age, an excellent philosopher, physician, chemist, mathematician, astronomer, politician, linguist, historian, orator, and architect; like-likewise, a man of great virtue, a sincere protestant, and extremely charitable.

Sir Thomas married, first Elizabeth, the daughter of William Karkeck of London, Esq; (whose sister Anne, married Sir Thomas Chamberlayne, Ambassador in Flanders and Spain) and afterwards, Philippa, the daughter of John Willford, Esq; (relict of Sir John Hampden, Knt.) she survived him, and died June 20, 1578.

Sir Thomas dying without issue, his estate descended to his nephew, Sir William Smith, son of his brother George.

Which Sir William Smith, Knt. was a brave soldier, and a colonel in Ireland, till having attained to thirty years of age, he returned into England, and possessed his deceased uncle's estate. Sir William, his eldest son, married, first Helegenwagh, one of the daughters of the right honourable Edward, viscount Conway, by whom he had one son, Edward, and two daughters, who both died young. He afterwards married Anne, daughter of ——— Crofts, of Herefordshire, Esq; Sir William died 1631, in the thirty-second year of his age.

Edward, his son, at the age of fifteen, served volunteer under P. Rupert, in the civil wars, where he gained great reputation; he died aged twenty-two.

Thomas, his uncle, succeeded him, and was created a Baronet, 13 Car. II. He married, first Johanna, the daughter of Sir Edward Altham, of Marks-hall in the county of Essex, Knt. by whom he had eleven sons and two daughters; 1. Thomas, who died young; 2. Sir Edward, his successor; 3. James, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Robert Parkhurst, of Purford in Surrey, Knt. and lies buried at Guilford in that county; 4. Charles, who died S. P. 5. ley in Middlesex, Knt. by whom he had no issue ; his second wife was Amy, daughter of ——— Hatton, of London, merchant, relict of Thomas Steward, of Haslingfield in Cambridgeshire, Esq; by whom he had a daughter, Althania ; 10. George ; and another son. His second wife was Beatrice, the daughter of the right honourable Francis, viscount of Valentia, and relict of Sir John Lloyd, Knt. by her he had no issue. Sir Edward Smyth, Bart. his eldest surviving son and successor, married Jane, daughter of Peter Vandeput, of London, Esq; by whom he had four sons and two daughters ; of whom five died in their infancy. He died 1713, in the seventy-seventh year of his age. He was succeeded by his only son, 200. TREVELYAN, of Nettlecomb, Somersetshire.

Created BARONET, January 21, 1661.

THIS ancient family takes its name from Trevelyan, in the parish of St. Vehep, near Fowey in Cornwall ; of which, and other lordships in that county, they were anciently possessed, at, or soon after the Conquest.

In 2 Edw. I. Felicia, widow of William de Bodrugan, grants to Andrew, son of Nicholas de Trevelyan and his heirs, by Felicia Felicia his wife, all her lands and services about Trevelyan and Cume; to which deed, Sir Richard de Cerasis, Sir William de Bodrugan, Richard de Hywis, and several other gentlemen of principal note in that county are witnesses. This Felicia survived her husband; and in 2 Edw. II. confirmed to Nicholas de Trevelyan her son, a grant, formerly made to him, of a house and lands in Polran. Which same estate, Thomas, son of Nicholas de Trevelyan, grandson to Felicia, gave to Otto de Trevelyan, his younger brother.

This Thomas made several purchases at Lestwithiel, and elsewhere, in the county of Cornwall, and 33 Edw. III. accounted with Edward Pauncel for certain rents and profits he had received, belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall, issuing out of the manor of Refrant.

The next of this family, after Thomas, was Baldwin de Trevelyan; which Baldwin was lord of Trevelyan from 42 Ed. III. to 8 Hen. VI. and was succeeded by Henry, his son and heir; which Henry married Alice, daughter and heir to John Boteraux, of Urder, by Margaret his wife, daughter and heir to ----- Retorville, of Retorville, and left two sons, John Trevelyan, of Trevelyan, 5 Hen. VI. who died without issue; and Thomas; which Thomas, by Lucia his wife, was father of another John.

This John Trevelyan, married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Thomas Whalesborough, of Whalesborough, near Stratton in Cornwall, by Joane his wife, sister and heir to Simon Raleigh, of Nettlecomb; in whose right, besides the lordships of Nettlecomb in Somersetshire, and Whalesborough in Cornwall, several other estates of great value, in those and other countries, accrued to the Trevelyan family. This John was sheriff of Cornwall, 27 Hen. VI. and also in the 38th of that reign; and in 31 Hen. VI. was returned one of the knights for Cornwall in the parliament held at Reading. In 17 Hen. VII. at the marriage of Prince Arthur he was created a knight of the Bath, together with Sir William Walgrave, Sir John Scrope, of Castlecomb, Sir John Paulet, Sir Richard Warre, of Hestercomb, &c. He had been attainted, 1 Richard III. together with Amyas Pawlet, son and heir of Sir William Pawlet, but they were both restored by act of parliament, Rot. Parl. 1 Hen. VII. This Sir John Trevelyan, in his will, dated 20 Jan. 1518, 'Orders his body to be buried at Nettlecomb,---To Jane, my wife,---to Thomas Trevelyan, my son,---to the churches of St. Burien, St. Peryn, in Uthno, St. Mawgon, and St. Marvyn, in Cornwal, to every one of them a banner of St. George.---My son and heir, John Trevelyan, executor,---Mr. George Trevelyan, my son, overseers.' Prob. 18 Sept. 1522.

Thomas

Thomas Whalesborough dying 21 Edw. IV. this Sir John Trevelyan became intitled to both the estates of Whalesborough and Ralegh, by which advantageous alliances, the blood, as well as the fortunes of the house of Trevelyan, being greatly enriched, it may not be improper to give a short account of those two eminent families.

Faramus de Whalebraa in Cornwall, is mentioned in the scutage, 2 R. Johannis. One of his descendants married a daughter of Sir Ralph Arundel, of Lanherne; another had to wife Joane, daughter of Sir Roger Carmino; and a third wedded a daughter of Bodrugan; which three families are known to have been of the greatest eminence in the county of Cornwall.

The wife of the last-mentioned Thomas Whalesborough, was Matilda, daughter and heir of Sir William Bowes, Knt.

The last of the family of the Raleghs, of Nettlecomb in Somersetshire, was Sir Simon de Ralegh, who died possessed of that and many other manors in the same county, 18 Hen. VI. whereby Thomas Whalesborough, the son of Joane, sister of the said Sir Simon Ralegh, became his next heir.

This family of Ralegh was anciently possessed of the lordship of Nettlecomb, and other lands in Somersetshire, by a grant of one of the ancient earls-marshals of England, of whom these Raleghs held the manor of Nettlecomb, &c. as of their capital lords, from Henry II's reign, as plainly appears from the original charters, in the custody of the present Sir John Trevelyan.

The famous Sir Walter Ralegh, was descended from a younger branch of these Raleghs, of Nettlecomb, as Sir William Pole shews, in his MS. Survey of the county of Devon.

The manors and lands possessed anciently in Somersetshire by the Raleghs, are all enumerated in the escheat rolls of 35 Edw. I. 45 Edw. III. and 18 Hen. VI. still preserved among the records of the Tower.

According to the religion of the times in which they lived, we find that Simon Ralegh, in the year 1453, founded a perpetual chantry for one chaplain to celebrate divine service in the chapel of St. John Baptist, within the parochial church of St. Mary, in Nettlecomb, &c.

I return now to the forementioned John Trevelyan, who married the daughter and heir of Whalesborough. He died 8 Hen. VII. leaving, by the abovementioned Elizabeth, his wife, John, his son and heir; Thomas; George, chaplain to King Henry VIII. and Humphrey; which Humphrey married Margaret, daughter to Sir Rice ap Thomas, knight of the garter, and was progenitor the family of Basil, near Stratton in Cornwall. To his son, Thomas Trevelyan, of Yarnscomb, he gave the manor of Woodland land in Devon, by whose son, Hugh, it descended to Anthony Trevelyan.

This last-mentioned John Trevelyan married the daughter of Sir John Halywell in Devon, and died 13 Hen. VIII. leaving issue John, his eldest son, who married Alice, or Avice, sole daughter and heir of Nicholas Cockworthy, of Great-Yarnscomb in Devonshire, descendant and heiress of the noble families of Champernon and Valletorte, and by them of Edmond, earl of Cornwall. This Avice brought him several children, of whom, John, the elder (in his father and mother's life-time, and by their direction), married Maud, daughter of Giles Hill, Esq; upon which marriage, his father and mother, upon a valuable consideration, promised, that all Cockworthy's estate should descend to that their eldest son, after their deaths, or to their children, in case they survived them. But notwithstanding all proper precautions were used (as appears by writings still remaining in Sir John Trevelyan's custody) to secure the descent of those lands to the eldest son; the mother prevailed with her husband to defeat their first-born of what their promise, and his primogeniture, had entitled him to; and at length, by the artifices of their agents, involved him in such tedious law-suits, as almost ruined their family.

The rest of their children (besides John, their eldest son), were George, Thomas, Hugh, and another John; and three daughters, Dorothy, wife of Nicholas Tooker, Esq; Jane, wife of William Sandes, Esq; and Isabel. From Thomas, the families, late of Yarnscomb and Knolle, descended.

This John resided at, and wrote himself of Yarnscomb, where he died, 34 Hen. VIII.

John Trevelyan, his eldest son, chiefly dwelt at Trevelyan in Cornwall. He married with Wilmot, daughter of John Harris, serjeant at law, of Hayne in Devon. Concerning this family of Harris, I beg leave to transcribe what I find in the visitation-book of Devonshire, A.D. 1562; 'John Harris, of Hayne in Devon, the King's serjeant at law, in the reign of King Ed. VI. eldest son and heir to William Harris, of Stone in Devon, married Elizabeth, daughter to Michael Kelly, of Radcliff and Southwick in Devon, and by her had issue, William Harris, his eldest son, John Harris, second son, Oliver and Arthur. Alice, married to John Wise, of Sydenham, Wilmot, married to John Trevelyan, of Nettlecomb in Somersetshire.'

John Trevelyan, the heir of John Trevelyan, and Wilmot Harris, married Urith (in the year 1561), sister (another visitation-book calls her daughter) of Sir John Chichester, of Raleigh in Devon, Knt. Of this family of Chichester, it would be unpardonable to make a slight mention, being one of the most

most eminent families in the whole county of Devon for its antiquity, great estate and employments, and also by its illustrious alliances.

This family, now called by the name of Chichester, seems anciently to have born that of Cirencester, and probably derived itself from Thomas de Cirencester, a person of great note, by the many honourable employments sustained by him, from the beginning of Henry III's reign, throughout the whole course of it; as appears by many ancient records still extant. But a full representation of the dignity of this worthy family, is so well manifested by that learned antiquary, Sir William Pole, in his MS. Survey of Devonshire, that I can need no better authority. By him we are assured, that the Chichesters (now of Raleigh, in Devon), have a right to quarter the arms of the Raleighs, the Beaumonts, the Wilingtons, and many other noble families. This John Trevelyan (who married the daughter of Sir John Chichester) rebuilt the house of Nettlecomb, and 16 Jac. I. was high sheriff of Somersetshire. He died anno 1623, and was succeeded by another,

John Trevelyan (being the seventh of that name, in a direct succession), who married Margaret, daughter to George Luttrell, of Dunster-castle in the county of Somerset, Esq; and by her had one son, George, who married Margaret, daughter to Sir Robert Strode, of Parnham in the county of Dorset, Knt. This George, in the late times of rebellion, suffered much for his loyalty in his person and estate; having been plundered, sequestered, fined and imprisoned; at one time paying a composition of near 1600*l*. His lady, in a journey from London (having been to solicit her husband's enlargement), died, and was buried at Hounslow. He had issue three sons; 1. George, his successor; 2. Francis, aged 29, 1672, who married Anne, daughter of Amos Bamfield, of Weston-Bamfield, Esq; 3. Amos. The father of these children died before the restoration, and was succeeded by George Trevelyan, Esq; his son and heir; which George, soon after the King's return, was made a Baronet; and having married Mary, daughter and sole heir to John Willoughby, of Leahill in Devonshire, Esq; was father of the late Sir John Trevelyan; and of several sons and daughters; of whom Mary, was wife of Edmond Wyndham, of Kentsford in the county of Somerset, Esq; and Margaret, of Sir Thomas Putt, of Combe in the county of Devon, Bart. the rest died unmarried.

Sir John Trevelyan, Bart. sat in several parliaments, as knight of the shire for the county of Somerset, and burgess for the borough of Minehead. He married two wives; the first was Urith, daughter to Sir John Pole, of Shute in the county of Devon, Bart. by whom he had one daughter who died a child. His second lady was Sufanna, daughter and heir of William Warren, of Stallensthorne in the county of Devon, Esq; by whom he had three sons and five daughters; John, who died unmarried; Francis, died an infant, and George, his successor. Of Sir John's daughters, 1. Margaret, married Alexander Luttrell, of Dunster in the county of Somerset, Esq; whose only daughter and heir, Margaret, married Henry Fownes Luttrell, Esq; and had issue. Margaret, the mother, died in 1764, and the daughter in 1768; 2. Mary, and 3. Elizabeth, who both died young; 4. Sufanna, living and unmarried; 5. Anne, deceased. Sir John died Sept. 25, 1755, and was succeeded by his only surviving son,

Sir George Trevelyan, Bart. who married Julia, only daughter of Sir Walter Calverley, of Calverley in Yorkshire, Bart. by whom he had issue, 1. Sir John, the present Baronet, 2. Julia, married, to Sir William Yea, of Pyrland, Somersetshire, Bart. and has issue, living, four sons*; 3. Sufanna, married to John Hudson, of Bessingby in Yorkshire, Esq; 4. Charlotte, married to Tobias Freer, of Bath, Esq; 5. Frances, married to Captain James Field; 6. Walter, unmarried. Sir George died at Nettlecomb, Sept. 11, 1768, and was succeeded by his eldest son,

Sir John Trevelyan, the present Baronet, who married Louisa-Marianne, daughter and coheir of Peter Symond, Esq; merchant in London (whose sister is mother of lord St. John, of Bletso), by whom he has four sons, John, Walter, George, and Willoughby; and one daughter, Louisa.

ARMS. Gules, a Land-Horse, Argent, armed, Or, coming out of the Sea, Party-per-fefs, Wavy, Azure, and of the second. Though it appears by old seals, that their Arms were sometimes a Lion rampant, holding a Baton; which Arms have been disused, and their present bearing assumed.

The occasion of which bearing (according to tradition), was one of the family swimming on horseback, from the rocks called Seven-Stones to the Lands-End in Cornwall, at the time of an inundation, which is said to have overwhelmed a great tract of land, and severed thereby those rocks from the continent of Cornwall.

CREST. On a Wreath, two Arms, counter-embowed, proper, habited, Azure, and holding a Bezant.

201. WITTEWRONG, of Stantonbarry, Bucks.

Created BARONET, May 2, 1662.

JAQUES, or in English, James Wittewrong, alias Wittewrongs, was born in the city of Gaunt, the metropolis of Flanders, anno 1531, of an honourable stock, such as are called Edel, that is, gentle, or noble. In the year 1564, he forsook his native country in the time of persecution of those of his religion, being a protestant, and came into England with his wife and two young children. He had a very liberal education, speaking the German, French, Spanish, Italian, and Latin tongues; and having made shipwreck of his outward estate to preserve his inward peace, settled himself in London in the employment of a public notary; and with that small pittance of his estate, which he had, as it were, snatched out of the fire, he made a shift to live comfortably to his death, which happened anno 1594. He had nine children, four sons and five daughters, viz. Jacob, Abraham, Marcus, and William; Christian, Sarah, Mary, Sarah, and Susanna; all which, except Jacob and Abraham (who had a daughter married to Mr. Paggen), died single, or without issue. Jacob, the eldest son, was born at Gaunt, Jan. 15, 1558, came over hither with his father, and was put to the free-school at St. Alban's in Hertfordshire. In the year 1576, he went to Magdalen college in Oxford, and was a student there under the particular care of doctor Humphreys, president of that college. He married Susanna, sole daughter and heir of Bernard Tileman, a German gentleman, by whom he had a considerable fortune, part of which was the house and land at Walthamstow in Essex, given by him to one of his daughters, viz. Mary, the wife of Mr. Peter Lennarts; and being then not resolved what to apply himself to, he became acquainted with Mr. Matthias Otton, a brewer in London, with whom he became a partner, and contracted so great a friendship, that two of Mr. Otton's sons, married two of his daughters. After a few years, he built a large brew-house, and mansion-house thereunto adjoining, in Grantham-Lane; where he lived, and carried on that calling by himself for several years, attaining to a very considerable estate thereby: and his said wife dying, and leaving no issue male, he married Anna, youngest daughter and coheir of Monsieur Garrard Vanacher, of the city of Antwerp, merchant. In 1619 he retired into the country, to a house he had purchased, in Westham in the county of Essex, where he died July 5, 1662, and there lies buried; of whom Mr. Strype, in his additions to Stow's Survey of London, says, ' On the pavement, under a fair marble stone, is buried, James Wittewringle, the son of James Wittewringle, a Fleming, a singular friend to the ministers of the city, a Mæcenas of studious youth, a favourer of piety and learning.' He left only one son, John Wittewrong, very young, to the care of his mother; who afterwards married Sir Thomas Middleton, lord mayor of London. She was very careful both in his education and fortune, and purchased for him the manor of Harpenden in Hertfordshire. He was knighted by King Charles I. 1640, and was high sheriff of Hertfordshire, 1658, being chose by the parliament; and created Baronet by King Charles II. in the fourteenth year of his reign. He had three wives, viz. 1. Mary, second daughter of Sir Thomas Middleton, of Chirkcastle, in the county of Denbigh, Knt. 2. Elizabeth, second daughter of Timothy Middleton, of Stansted-Mountfitchet in Essex, Esq; and 3. Catherine, eldest daughter of Mr. Maurice Thomson, of London, merchant, and sister to John, lord Haverham. By the first wife he had only one son, named John, who succeeded to the honour. By the second wife he had three sons, Jacob, James, and William; and three daughters, Catherine, married to Edward Lloyd, of Montgomeryshire, Esq; Anne, to Robert Siderfin, of Croydon in Somersetshire, Esq; and Hellen, to Samuel Gibbs, of Stoke-Nayland in Suffolk, Esq; Of the sons, Jacob and William died without issue, and James was of Rothamsted in Hertfordshire, barrister at law, and recorder of St. Alban's; and married three wives, 1. Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Dickenson, of Hillingdon in Middlesex, Esq; 2. Mary, daughter of Mr. John Cock, of St. Albans; and 3. Susan, daughter of Sir Nicholas Pedley of Huntingdon (widow of William Bullock, of Sandhurst in Berks, Esq;) Jacob, his eldest son by the first wife, married Elizabeth, sole daughter of Henry Coghill, of Aldenham in Hertfordshire, Esq; and dying soon after, left her with child of a son, Jacob, who married Anne, daughter of Mr. Bennet, and had issue.

Sir John, beforementioned, purchased the manor of Stantonbarry in Bucks, of Sir John Temple, Knt. 1667 (a lordship anciently belonging to the Barrys, who had, in Henry III's time, great possessions in those parts), and there built a fair mansion-house, which he settled, with lands to the value of 1000l. per annum, on his eldest son. But for the most part, he resided at Rothamsted in the county of Hertford, and there died, in June 1693, in a good old age, viz. seventy-five years, and was interred in his vault at Harpenden in Hertfordshire. During all his life, he was reputed very exemplary for piety, justice, and charity.

Sir John, his eldest son, succeeded him in the honour, and married two wives ; first, Clare, daughter of Sir Joseph Alston, of Chelsea in Middlesex, Bart. who died October 12, 1669, leaving only one daughter, Mary, married to Mr. Crompton, of London. His second wife, was Mrs. Martha Sebrook, niece of alderman Backwell ; by whom he had four sons ; Sir John, who succeeded him ; Edward, killed at Namure ; Thomas, who married in Barbadoes, and died at sea ; and James, a lieutenant in the fleet ; and one daughter, Martha, married to Thomas Saunders, of Bricksworth in Northamptonshire, Esq ; He died, and was buried in the church of Stantonbarry, and was succeeded by his eldest son, Sir John Wittewrong, of Stantonbarry in Bucks, who served in parliament for the borough of Aylesbury, and for Chipping-Wicomb in that county, in the reign of Queen Anne, and was colonel of a regiment of foot in her Majesty's army. Of this family also, was Sir John Bernard, living anno 1460, who married Ellen, daughter of John Mallory. His descendant, Sir Robert Bernard, serjeant at law, was the first Baronet of this family: he was son of Francis Bernard, second son of Francis Bernard, of Abingdon, near Northampton, whose ancestors had been possessed of that manor upwards of two hundred years.

This Sir Robert Bernard, Bart. married, first, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Tallakerne, by whom he had several sons and daughters; of which, Sir John was his successor; Lucy, married to Sir Nicholas Pedley, of Huntingdon, Knt. member of parliament for that town, and had several children (and was ancestor to John Pedley, of Tetworth in that county, Esq;) and Mary, was wife to Laurence Torkington, of Great-Stewkley in Huntingdonshire, Esq; (from whom was descended, the reverend Mr. James Torkington, rector of King's-Rippon, and of Stewkley-parva in that county, who married the lady Dorothy Sherrard, eldest daughter of the late earl of Harborough, and had issue): Sir Robert's second wife was Elizabeth, daughter of Sir James Altham, of Oxhey in Hertfordshire, Knt. relict, first, of Sir Francis Astley, of Hill-Morton in Warwickshire, Knt. and, secondly, of Robert, lord Digby, but by her he had no issue; she died Jan. 3, 1662, and lies buried at Covent-Garden church in Middlesex, and he died in his sixty-sixth year, ann. 1666, and lies buried in the north isle of Abingdon church, near Northampton.

203. GAGE of Hengrave, Suffolk.

Created BARONET, July 15, 1662.

THE patent for this title was granted first by K. Charles II. to colonel Gage, son of Sir Henry Gage, Knt. governor of Oxford, for King Charles I. and slain at Cullum-bridge, near Abingdon; as a recompence to the son, for the father's services to that Prince, in whose cause he lost his life; which said colonel, having no issue, procured the patent to be settled on Edward, his kinsman, a younger brother to Sir Thomas Gage, of Firle.

Sir Edward Gage, of Hengrave, Bart. so created, was third son to Sir John Gage, of Firle in Suffex, Bart. by his wife, the lady Penelope D'arcy, daughter and coheir to Thomas lord D'arcy, of Chich, and earl Rivers, and grand-daughter to Sir Thomas D'arcy, knight of the garter, noted for his good services on the borders of Scotland; the said lady Penelope was relict of Sir George Trenchard, of Wolverton in Dorsetshire, Knt. and surviving likewise Sir John Gage, married, thirdly, Sir William Hervey, of Ickworth, Knt. grandfather to John, earl of Bristol*; by her first and last husband, she had no issue; the said lady Penelope was entitled, by agreement, to her mother's estate, Mary Kitson, afterwards countess Rivers, and daughter to Sir Thomas Kitson, of Hengrave, by his wife, Mary, daughter to Sir Thomas Cornwallis, of Bromhall in Suffolk, Knt. by whom he had issue one son, who died in his infancy, and two daughters, Margaret, married to Sir Charles Cavendish, from whom the Newcastle line descended, and Mary, married to the lord D'arcy, of Chich, afterwards earl Rivers, by which Mary, he had issue one son, that married to the heiress of the Fitzes's, of Devonshire (an ancient family in that county), and died without issue; and two daughters, Mary, married to Sir John Savage, of Rock-Savage in Cheshire; and after the demise of his father-in-law, earl Rivers; and the above-said lady Penelope, wife to Sir John Gage, of Firle, by whom she had four sons and five daughters; and being a lady of great fortune, and greater hospitality and tenderness to her children, as keeping most of them together in her house of Hengrave many years, in a family of above one hundred in number, and leaving out of her own estate, considerable estates to each of her sons, and further contributing to the marriage-portions of her daughters, out of her particular love to her third son, Edward, as above, and through her desire to raise another branch of the family of the Gage's, she left to him, the said Edward, her house of Hengrave, with the bulk of her estate.

This Sir Edward lived to the 90th year of his age, and died 1707. He had five wives, first, Mary, daughter of Sir William Hervey, of Ickworth in Suffolk, Knt. his father-in-law, by whom he had one son, Sir William, his successor, and two daughters, Penelope, wife of Edward Sulyard, of Hawley-park in Suffolk, and Mary, married to William Bond, Esqrs. secondly,

* This lady Penelope was courted by her three husbands all together, and they quarrelled about her; though at length, she put an end artfully thereto, by threatening the first aggressor afterwards, with her everlasting displeasure; by which means, they not knowing whom she might choose, to make the happy man, laid the quarrel asleep; and she told them humourously, If they would keep the peace and bear patience, she would have them all in their turns; and so it happened, though so very unlikely to turn out.

Frances, second daughter to Walter lord Aston, of Tixhall in Staffordshire, by whom he had one son, Francis, who had Packington-hall in Staffordshire, in right of his mother, who died in child-bed of him; he married Elizabeth, daughter and sole heir of John Devereux, Esq; of Mountferrat, (one of the Caribbee-Islands) and died Sept. 6, 1729, leaving issue one son, Devereux; Sir Edward married, thirdly, Anne, daughter of — Watkins, by whom he had one son, Edward, who died unmarried; fourthly, the lady Elizabeth Fielding, daughter to the earl of Desmond, and sister to the late earl of Denbigh, by whom he had four sons, John, James, George, and Henry; and two daughters, Catherine, who died beyond sea, and Basilisa, who was maid of honour to Mary D'Este, Queen of King James II. and fifthly, Mrs. Bridget Fielding, of the same family, relict of — Slaughter, Esq; by whom only he had no issue.

Sir William Gage, Bart. eldest son by the first marriage, and successor to the title and estate, married two wives, first, Mary-Charlotte Bond, only daughter of Sir Thomas Bond, of Peckham in Surry, Bart. comptroller of the household to the Queen-mother of King Charles II. by whom he had issue two sons and seven daughters, of which, Alice, married Henry Sorrel, of Bury in Suffolk, M.D. Of the sons; 1. Thomas, of whom hereafter; 2. John, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Rookwood, of Coldham-hall in Suffolk, Esq; by whom he had two sons, Sir Thomas, the present baronet, and John.

Sir William had to his second wife, Merelina Jermyn, daughter and coheir to Thomas lord Jermyn, baron of St. Edmundsbury, being also coheir to Henry Jermyn, earl of St. Albans, and to Henry Jermyn, lord Dover, and relict of Sir Thomas Spring, of Pakenham in Suffolk, Bart. by whom he had no issue, and died Feb. 1726.

Thomas Gage, Esq; eldest son of Sir William, took to wife, Delariviere, eldest daughter of Sir Symonds D'Ewes, of Stowhall in Suffolk, Bart. (by Delariviere, his wife, daughter and coheir of Thomas lord Jermyn, baron of St. Edmundsbury, also coheir to Henry Jermyn, earl of St. Albans, and to Henry Jermyn, lord Dover) by whom he left three sons; 1. Sir Thomas, successor to his grandfather; 2. Sir William, successor to his brother; and 3. Edward, who died S. P. This Thomas died in the life-time of his father, March 1, 1716, in the thirty-second year of his age; and lies buried at Hengrave.

Sir William Gage, Bart. who married in June, 1741, Frances, relict of John Ellis, of Cotton in Suffolk, Esq; daughter of Robert Harland, of Sproughton, in the same county, Esq; Sir William dying, May 17, 1767, without issue, and his brother, Edward, also dying several years before him, in the emperor's service in Germany, unmarried, the title and estate devolved to,

Sir Thomas Rookwood Gage, the present Baronet, of Coldham-hall in Suffolk, eldest son of John and Elizabeth Gage, before-mentioned, who, at the death of her father, Thomas Rookwood, Esq; became sole heiress to all his estate. Sir Thomas married, in 1747, Lucy, daughter of William Knight, of Kingesby in Lincolnshire, Esq; by whom he has issue three daughters and a son; Lucy; Elizabeth, married to Henry Darell, of Cale-hall in Kent, Esq; Thomas, and Mary.

204. ASTLEY, of Patshull, Staffordshire.

Created BARONET, Aug. 13, 1662.

THIS very ancient and noble family, (having been Barons of parliament from King Edward the First's time, to the reign of King Henry the Fifth; from the bearing of the Arms, the lands they held by military service, and the employments they had under the earls of Leicester) is supposed, by Sir William Dugdale, to be a younger branch descended from Simon de Montfort, earl of Leicester, great grandchild to Almaric, an illegitimate son to Robert, King of France.

The first by name upon record, is Philip de Estleja, or Estley, who in 12 Hen. II. 1166, held of the earl of Warwick three Knights fees, viz. Estley or Astley in Warwickshire, the seat of the family, with Wedinton, Hillmorton, Milverton, and Merston Jabet, de veteri feoffamento. By which it is plain (says Dugdale) that his father, or grandfather, was enfeoffed of them.

Thomas de Estley, son and heir of Philip, held certain lands by military service, of Simon de Montfort, earl of Leicester; and and 12 King John, gave to that King a fine of an hundred marks, to be excused attending him in his wars in Ireland; but five years after, being in arms with the rebellious Barons, was sent prisoner to Bedford-castle, and his lands were seized; but returning to his obedience, they were restored to him, 1 Hen. III. 1216. and four years after, he was put into commission for the gaol-delivery, both at Warwick and Leicester; as also the year following, for seizing into the King's hands, all the demesnes whereof King John was possessed at the beginning of the wars with the Barons. He married Maud, second sister and coheir of Roger de Camvill, and grand-daughter of Richard de Camvill, founder of Combe-Abbey.

Walter de Estley, his son and heir, succeeded him in his estate, and probably bore some honourable employment under King Henry III. for, as Dugdale says, in the beginning of that King's reign, he received favour of the King, as his father had done; and 19 Hen. III. 1235, he answered for one Knight's fee in Warwickshire.

Thomas de Astley, (reputed by our historians, says Dugdale, to be a Baron) son and heir of Walter de Estley, being a Knight, 26 Hen. III. 1242, was for that year, and the year following, constituted one of the King's justices for the gaol-delivery of Warwick, at which time he paid to the King 15*l.* for his relief. Six years after, this Thomas de Astley was sent, with divers other great men, into Gascoigne; but in 47 Hen. III. 1263, taking part with the rebellious Barons, joined with those who seized upon the King's revenues in Warwickshire and Leicestershire, and grew so eminent amongst them for his activeness in those troubles, as that upon the agreement made the following year, betwixt the King and those Barons, wherein, to satisfy them, he submitted to those unreasonable ordinances, called Provisiones Oxonii, which they, by their power, had forced him unto, constituting several persons, who they could most trust in all parts of the realm, to secure what they had so got. He was the only man entrusted with the management of Warwickshire, having thereupon the title of Custos Pacis. But for these his rebellious actings, he paid dear at the last; for the next year, viz. 49 Hen. III. he was slain with Simon Montfort, earl of Leicester, in the battle of Evesham. Whereupon his confiscated estate, (viz. the lordships of Astley, Wetington, Willeby, and Copston in Warwickshire, Lilburne, and Creek in Northamptonshire, with Broughton, Cotes, and Hecham in Leicestershire) were bestowed on Warine Bassingburne, the value thereof, by extent, being then rated at 151*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.*

This Thomas lord Astley married two wives, first, Joan, the daughter of Ernald de Bois, a great man at that time in Leicestershire, and afterwards, Edith, the daughter of Peter Constable, of Melton-Constable in Norfolk. By the former, he had Andrew, his son and heir, and a daughter, called Isabel, married to William de Birmingham. By Edith, he had three sons, Thomas, Ralph, and Stephen, and one daughter, named Agnes. Thomas settled at Hill-Morton, but dying without issue, left his estate to his brother Ralph, from whom Sir Edward Astley, of Melton-Constable in Norfolk, and of Hill-Morton in Warwickshire, is lineally descended.

Andrew lord Astley, in virtue of the decree, called Dictum de Kenilworth, was put into possession of his father's estate, 12 Ed. I. 1284; he was associated by commission, with Raphe de Hengham, (a learned and eminent professor of the law) for taking assizes of Novel Disseisin, Mort D'Ancestour, &c. in Warwickshire.

The year following he claimed by prescription, and obtained them, a court-leet, gallows, power to punish the breakers of assize of bread and beer, free warren, with other privileges, in his lordship of Astley, cum Membris, viz. Merton Jabet, Wedington, and Milberton. 22 Ed. I. 1294, he was in that expedition made into Gascoigne, and two years after, was summoned to attend the King at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, upon the first of March, well fitted with horse and arms, to oblige John Baliol, King of Scotland, to do his homage, and to vindicate such injuries as he had done to the King's subjects. The next year, prince Edward being made General of the English forces against the Scots, he had summons to attend there upon the feast of St. Nicholas; and in the same year, was summoned to be at London, upon Sunday next after the octaves of St. John Baptist, furnished with horse and arms, to wait upon the King in his expedition into Flanders and Gascoigne, but was dispensed with, by sending such knights, and others, as he thought fit to attend the prince at London, on the octaves of St. Michael next ensuing. He was also commanded by the King, to be at York on the feast of Pentecost, 1296, well accoutred with horse and arms, to march into Scotland. And having been summoned to parliament amongst the Barons of this realm, from the twenty-third of this King's reign, departed this life, 1301, leaving two sons, Nicholas, and Giles de Astley.

His son, Nicholas, succeeded him, and was, 1302, put into the commission of the peace, and summoned to parliament; as also 2 and 3 Ed. II. In 1312, 5 Ed. II. he was knighted, and the seventh of that reign, he attended his Majesty in that fatal expedition against the Scots, when he and his brother, Sir
Giles

Giles Astley, were both taken prisoners at the battle of Bannockbourn, near Stirling. Leaving no issue, his nephew, Thomas, son of his brother, Sir Giles, (by Alice, second daughter and coheir of Sir Thomas de Wolvey, Knt.) had livery of his lands, 1326.

This Thomas lord Astley, 10 Ed. III. received the honour of knighthood. The next year he founded a chantry in his parish church of Astley; and afterwards, 1343, procured licence to change these chantry-priests into a dean and secular canons, and thereupon built a fair and beautiful collegiate church. As to his publick employments, he was twice in the commission of the peace for Warwickshire, once an assistant, 12 Ed. III. to Richard earl of Arundel, and Thomas lord Berkley; and afterwards, in 33 Ed. III. 1359, authorised by commission in the same county, for arraying of men in the King's absence, to assist him in his wars; and in 16, 22, and 23 Ed. III. summoned to parliament among the Barons. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Guy de Beauchamp, earl of Warwick, (and Alice, daughter to Robert de Toni, whose progenitor, Malahulcius, was uncle to Rollo, grandfather to William the Conqueror) and had issue, Sir William de Astley, Sir Thomas de Astley, and Giles de Astley, from whom the Astley's of Wolvey are descended.

William lord Astley, the eldest son and heir, succeeded, and had many publick employments under Henry IV. and was in commission of the peace, from 17 Rich. II. to 6 Hen. V. He had issue one only daughter, first married to Thomas Raleigh, of Farnborough in Warwickshire, Esq; and afterwards, to Reginald lord Grey, of Ruthin.

Sir Thomas de Astley, Knt. second son of Thomas lord Astley, 2 Rich. II. 1379, was in commission for taxing a subsidy on the county of Warwick, and six years after, for collecting a fifteenth and tenth granted that year by parliament, in which he sat as one of the knights of the shire. He was also the same year retained by indenture, to serve the King one whole year in an expedition his Majesty personally made into France, attended by three archers completely armed and appointed for the war. He married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Richard Harcourt, Esq; and had issue five sons, Thomas, John, William, Richard, and Henry.

Thomas Astley, Esq; his eldest son and heir, (the first of this family that lived at Patshull) married Jane, the daughter of Sir Thomas Griesly, of Colton in Staffordshire, Knt. (nurse to King Henry VI.) by whom he had issue one son, named Thomas,

John,

John, second son of Sir Thomas de Astley, is eminently distinguished in the histories of those times, for his great and heroic actions. In the year 1438, Aug. 29, in the presence of Charles VII. then King of France, he maintained a duel on horseback, in Paris, with one Peter de Massei, a native of that country, in the street called St. Antoine, who piercing Massei through the head, had (as was mutually stipulated) the honour of presenting his lady with Massei's helmet. Coming into England he did, (with great honour to his King and country) January 30, 1441, in presence of King Henry VI. undertake another combat in Smithfield, in the city of London, with Sir Philip Boyle, an Arragonian knight, who, (as Dugdale says) having been in France, by the King his master's command, to look out some such hardy person, against whom he might try his skill in feats of arms, and missing there of his desires, repaired hither.

After which combat ended, being gallantly performed on foot, with battle-axes, spears, swords, and daggers, he was knighted by the King, and had an hundred marks given him during his life; and so famous did he grow for his valour, that he was elected knight of the most noble order of the garter, and bore for his arms the coats of Astley and Harcourt, quarterly, with a label of three points, ermine. He lies interred at Patshull, under a very handsome monument.

Thomas, son and heir of Thomas Astley, of Patshull, Esq; married Margaret, daughter of Sir William Boteler, of Warrington in Lancashire, Knt. and leaving issue by her three sons, Richard, William, and Thomas, and two daughters, Elizabeth and Joan, died 1 Rich. III. 1483, and was buried at Wolverhampton in Staffordshire.

Richard Astley, Esq; his son and heir, married Joan, daughter of Thomas Oteley, of Pitchford in Salop, Esq; and had issue, Thomas, and one daughter, named Jane: he died 23 Hen. VIII. 1532.

Thomas Astley, Esq; succeeded his father, Richard, and married Mary, daughter and coheir of Sir Gilbert Talbot, Knt. (by Anne, daughter and heir of Sir William Paston, Knt. and Anne, his wife, sister of Edmond Beaufort, duke of Somerset, grandson to John of Gaunt, fourth son of King Edward III.) and had issue two sons, Gilbert and John, (from whom the Astleys of Aston, are descended) and one daughter, Elizabeth, married to John Wrottesley, of Wrottesley, Esq;

Gilbert, eldest son and heir of Thomas, married Dorothy, daughter of Sir Thomas Giffard, of Chillington in Staffordshire, Knt. and had issue, Thomas, who married Margery, daughter of Sir Walter Aston, of Tixal in Staffordshire, Knt. and by her had issue,

Walter Astley, of Patshull, Esq; his son and heir, who married Mary, daughter of Francis Trentham, of Rocester in Staffordshire, Esq; and had issue by her four sons, Richard, John, Walter, and Thomas.

Richard, his eldest son and heir, succeeded him in his estate, and living in the times of the civil wars, was early in the King's service, raised a troop of horse, and maintained them at his own expence; and, in regard to his services, was knighted by King Charles II. and, soon after the restoration, created a baronet. He married two wives, first, Elizabeth, daughter of John Philipps, of Picton-castle, in the county of Pembroke, Esq; and afterwards, Henrietta, daughter and coheir of William Borlace, of Great-Marlow in Buckinghamshire, Esq; By Elizabeth, he had one son, Richard, who died unmarried; and three daughters, Elizabeth, Mary, and Catherine. By Henrietta, he had one son, the present

Sir John Astley, Bart. who married Mary, the daughter and heir of Francis Prynce, of Shrewsbury, Esq; (and Mary, his wife, daughter and heir of Samuel Gilly, of High-hall, in the county of Dorset, Esq; and Arabella, daughter of the lord chief-justice Banks) by whom he had issue one son, Richard Prynce Astley, who died unmarried; and six daughters; Mary, who died unmarried; Henrietta, married to Edward Daniell, Esq; Alicia, to Charles, late earl of Tankerville; Anne, unmarried; Arabella, married to Sir Francis Vincent, Bart. Frances, to James O'Donnell, Esq; Sir John was representative in the seventh parliament of Great-Britain for Shrewsbury, as he has been in every parliament since for the county of Salop.

205. FUST, of Hill, alias Hull, Gloucestershire.

Created BARONET, Aug. 21, 1662.

THIS family is of long standing, and of great antiquity, and originally of Saxon extraction, and at different places and periods of time went by the several names of Faustinus; Faustus, Fault, Vaust, Furstinus, Furstinus, Furist, Vursten, Fursten, Fursten, Furisten, Firft, Furft, Futz, and Fust; and in former times married into the several families of Boynton, Man-nock, Spring, Bancraft, Bedingsfield, Garrett, Plumsted, Astley, Asheton, Smalwood, Goodfellow, Ashfield, Isham, Sherwood, Bancroft, and other families at present unknown.

The first I find mentioned in history is, Walter Fust, of Uri in Switzerland, who in the year 1308, 1 Ed. II. being in confederacy with two others, formed a conspiracy to shake off the tyranny of the emperor, Albert, which they effected that same year, and by their means made the Switz a free people ever since.

The second on record is, Richard Fust, of Suffex, as I find by a Latin inquisition, taken after the death of Margaret, his wife, in the year 1420, 8 Hen. V. at Chichester, January 5, before William Bekke, Escheator, on the oaths of Richard Spenser, Walter Atte Stokke, Robert Mondyt, Henry Grenelef, Thomas Hygon, John Frampton, John Smyth, John Grogam, Richard Marshall, Henry Ipyng, Walter Stapelere, and John Crouke, who say, the said Margaret held one toft of land with the appurtenances, containing twenty acres, at Bradbury in Bosham, in the said county, in sockage, by service of two white capons, in full acquittal of all other services; and that the said toft was of the value of sixteen shillings by the year, and that the said Margaret held divers other lands and tenements in Bosham, aforesaid, of the earl-marshal, but under what services they know not; and that those other lands and tenements, were of the yearly value of four pounds and four shillings; and that the said Margaret died the day of the feast of St. Michael, and that William, of Scardevile, was her son and heir, and then thirty years of age.

The third is, John Fust, of the city of Mentz in Germany, who, about the year 1430, 8 Hen. VI. invented the art of printing.

The fourth is, Richard Fust, of Suffex, who, in the year 1486, 6 Ed. IV. was made a trustee by Joan, daughter and heir of John Stanbridge, of Strode, in the parish of Slingfield, in the said county, on her marriage with John Cooper, of Strode, aforesaid; which Joan, by her deed, dated at Euhurst, June 5, 6 Ed. IV. by the name of Joan, late wife of Stephen Brode, grants to the said Richard Fust, and Richard Briggs, her lands, rents, and services, in the parishes of Okeley, Euhurst, and Crouley, in the county of Surry, of her inheritance, who, in order to her marriage with the before-mentioned John Cooper, re-conveys the same to the Lord Maltravers, John Bouchier, Lord Berners, Sir John Audley, Lord Audley, and Thomas St. Leger, Esq; of the King's body.

The fifth is, Thomas Fust, of Ware, in the county of Hertford, who, in the year 1555, 2 Mary I. suffered martyrdom for his religion, being burnt at a stake in the market-place of Ware, aforesaid.

The sixth is, Edward Fust, of the city of London, who, about the year 1564, 6 Elizabeth, married Jane, daughter of — Singleton, of the county of Norfolk, by whom he had eight children, viz. three sons and five daughters; 1. Julian, born Nov. 2, 1566; she married Sir Thomas Haskett, Knt. master of the court of wards and liveries in the reign of King James I. and surviving him, she afterwards married Sir Randolph Crew, Knt. lord chief-justice of the Common-pleas in the same reign, but left no issue by either of them; 2. Jane, who died unmarried; 3. Richard, born Oct. 10, 1568, of whom more in its proper place; 4. Edward, born Oct. 8. 1569, and died unmarried; 5. Samuel, a merchant at Bristol, and died there unmarried; 6. Barbara, born Oct. 12, 1573, who married two husbands, viz. Thomas, and Francis Chaloner, of Lindfield and Kenwalls, in Suffex; 7. Elizabeth, born Jan. 31, 1577; she married Henry Fleetwood, of Langby, in the county of Bucks, Esq; (fourth son of Thomas Fleetwood, master of the mint, by his second wife, Bridget, daughter of Sir John Spring, of Lavingham in Suffolk, Knt.) and had issue six sons and several daughters, viz. 1. —; 2. Henry; 3. Thomas; 4. Edward; 5. Richard; 6. George: the daughters were, Elizabeth, Bridget, Dorothy, and others; their names uncertain. 8. Ann, who died unmarried.

His second wife was Eleanor, daughter of Richard Wrottesley, of Staffordshire (relict of Edmond Liverlay); by the latter he had a numerous issue. Robert, of Wrexhall, his eldest son, married Barbara, daughter of Sir Edward Carne, of Wenny in Glamorganshire, and had issue Walter and Henry. This Robert was esquire of the body to King Henry VIII. gentleman-pensioner to the said King, and served him at the winning of Bullen. Several of this family have served as high-sheriffs of the county; as Henry Long, 13 Edward IV. Henry Long, 35 Hen. VI. Thomas Long, 16 Hen. VII. Sir Thomas, Knt. 22 Hen. VII. Henry Long, 3 Hen. VIII. Sir Henry, Knt. 17, and 28 Hen. VIII. Robert, 17 Eliz. Sir Walter, Knt. 44 Eliz. Gifford, 21 Jac. I. and Walter Long, Esq; 3 Car. I.

* For a short historical account of the ancient family of Long, this original letter is here inserted.

Extract of a letter, dated Oct. 16, 1688, to Mr. Panchrinch at Cossam, from the original, penes Dom. Rob. Long, Bar.

‘ I Received, not long since, a letter from my cousin, James ‘ Long, about the pedigree and arms you mention; I sent ‘ them not, because I intended to send a draught of them on ‘ vel-

Robert (the second son of Sir Walter, by his second wife), was secretary to King Charles II. in his exile; and at the restoration was made auditor of the exchequer, and one of his Majesty's most honourable privy-council, and advanced to the dignity of a Baronet, 14 Car. II. with remainder to his nephew, James, and the heirs male of his body. Sir Robert, dying a batch-

‘vellum, in colours, which I have not yet done. For some seals, indeed, I have the draughts which appertain to me in particular, as coheir to the earls of Marlbro’. But as I can remember the genealogy, I have set it down underneath.

‘Sir Henry Long, married with Wrottesley, of Wrottesley, the family of one of the founders of the order of the garter, who was son to Sir Thomas Long, who married the daughter of Sir John Darrell, of Littlecourt, by Margaret, sister and coheir to the dukes of Somerset, who were named Beauford Darrells. Arms are, Azure, a Lion crowned, Or; this coat is also borne by the dukes of Somerset, and earls of Bedford, descended from a daughter and heyre of our family, viz. Sir Richard Long's grandchild and heir, married to the lord Russell, of Thornay. John Long died young; he married Margaret, daughter to Sir — Weight, Knt. by the heyre of Cerne, lord of the manor of Draycot, &c. He was son to Sir Robert Long, who was married to Alicia de Bradley, by whom he had North-Bradley, &c. she was niece and heyre to Sir Reginald de Bradley; the grant of Bradley was from William, the Norman, by the name of Reginald de Bradley, Militis hospite nostro, the lands I have now, whose father was Rogerus le Lang, who married the daughter and heir of St. Maur, by whom he had many great manors and lands, some of which I now possess. Her mother was Zouch, a great heiress. His father married Berkeley, of Beverston, and an heiress, by whom we quarter Fitzhardings coat, now earls of Berkley, with distinction of three Roses, on the Cheveron, between the Crosses, Patee. I need not blazon the Coat, it being in all the books of heraldry. His father married an heiress of the house of Stourton, whose Coat we quarter, and is well known. For my cousin's family, and its planting in Yorkshire, it suffices, that their predecessor was son to Sir Henry Long, of Draycot in Wiltshire, father to Sir Robert, father to Sir Walter Long, and grandfather to the second Sir Walter Long, my dearest father.

‘Sir, this may suffice at this time, not having time to peruse my deeds, the best evidences of any descent.’ Honoured Sir,

I am your most humble, and most obliged Servant,

JAMES LONG.

This Henry is the first mentioned to have resided at Shipdam in Norfolk: he was knight of the shire for Bucks, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and married Anne, daughter of Edmund White, of Shottisham in Norfolk, Esq; (and Margaret, his wife, the widow of William Timperley, Esq;) which Anne, by the death of her only brother, Edmund White, Esq; became sole heiress of the Shottisham estate, and had issue, Edmund, his son and 218. LORAINÉ, of Kirk-Harle, Northumberland.

Created BARONET, Sept. 26, 1664.

ROBERT, the first of this family in England, came an officer in the army of William the Conqueror, who, as well for his service in that expedition, as after in the sixth year of the reign of his son, William, against Malcolm, King of Scots, was rewarded with several hides of land in the East, West, and Middle-Harrington, and at Ufferton, all in the county of Durham, for him and his heirs for ever. Some of this family have been knights-templars, as may be seen in the Temple-church, and have matched with the ancient and principal gentry of that country, where they have lived upwards of three hundred years, and were frequently of the retinue of the noble family of Piercy, earls of Northumberland, in their expeditions for the defence of their country, against the depredations of the Scots. Kirkharle, with about 1900 acres of arabic land, came into the family, temp. Hen. IV. by the marriage of William Loraine, with Johanna, eldest daughter and coheir of William del Strother. Edward, his son, married Elizabeth, daughter of John Harding, of Hallingside in Durham, by whom he had several children, and died temp. Rich. III.

Robert Loraine, his descendant, was so zealous a prosecutor of robbers, moss-troopers, &c. in the border-service, that he constantly kept a number of horses and arms ready, as others of the best families in the neighbourhood did, particularly, Fenwick, of Wallington, Swinburn, of Capheaton, Shaftoe, of Little-Bavington, &c. for which extraordinary service, the Scots conceived such great malice to the said Robert, that a party of them lay in ambush betwixt his house and the church, (where he frequently resorted for his devotion) and in his return home, suddenly surprized him, and dragged him into an adjacent close, where they barbarously murdered him, and cut him, as they had often threatened, as small as flesh for the pot; in memory whereof, his successor set up a great stone, remaining to this day. About 14 Hen. VIII. this unfortunate gentleman married Margaret, daughter of Robert Bowes, of the bishoprick of Durham, Esq; and had issue,

William, his son and heir, married to Agnes, daughter of Sir William Waters, of Yorkshire, Knt. (who surviving him, was re-married to John Lisle, of Aſton in Northumberland, Esq;) by whom he had, Robert, Ursula, and Dorothy, married to Thomas Ogle, of Kirkley in Northumberland, Esq.

Robert, his son and heir, took to wife, Thomafine, daughter of Thomas Warter, of Whitwell in Durham, Gent. and died 15 Jac. I. (she afterwards married baron Hilton) by whom he was father of Thomas and William.

Thomas, the eldest son and heir, was so great a lover of learning, that though he was then the sole male person of his family, yet he continued at Cambridge, with that famous man for learning and virtue, Mr. Mede, and was reputed one of the greatest masters of the Latin, Greek, and Hebrew tongues, of any layman in that university. He was so loyal to the King, as his ancestors had always been, that in Oliver's time, the rebels burnt seventeen houses in one of his towns, to the ground; his learned and sober qualifications brought him into so great an esteem and familiarity with Dr. Cosins, lord bishop of Durham, that he stood godfather to his only son, to whom he gave, upon that occasion, a handsome present of plate. He married, in 1636, Elizabeth, widow of Thomas Bewick, of Cloase-house in Northumberland, Esq; and daughter and coheir of Charles Maddison, of Sutwell-side in Durham, Esq; (sister to Sir Ralph Maddison, of Newcastle, Knt.) by whom he had only one son, Thomas. He died at Newcastle, Oct. 1649, and was interred in the south isle of St. Nicholas church.

Thomas Loraine, Esq; his only son and heir, was advanced to the dignity of a baronet, by King Charles II. He married Grace, the eldest daughter of Sir William Fenwick, of Wallington, lington, Bart. (eldest son of Sir John Fenwick, Bart. by Grace Loraine, of this family, a reputed beauty) and sister to Sir John Fenwick, Bart. who was attainted, temp. Will. III. by whom he had issue, fourteen sons and five daughters ; and dying Jan. 1717, was buried at Kirk-Harle.

Sir William Loraine, Bart. his eldest son, succeeded him in dignity and estate. He was educated at Lincoln's-Inn, and took the degree of barrister at law, and practised some years. He married two wives, first, Elizabeth, one of the daughters of Sir John Lawrence, Knt. alderman, and lord-mayor of London, in the sickness year. She died in about three years, and left no issue. He married to his second wife, Anne, only daughter of Richard Smith, of Preston in Lincolnshire, Esq; and sister to Richard Smith, of Enderby, in the county of Leicester, Esq; (who followed King Charles II. beyond sea, attending him during his exile, and returned with him at the restoration, and was made clerk of the cheque) by whom he had issue, five sons and four daughters ; Thomas, his eldest son, died three weeks after he was born, and was interred in the vault of St. Clements Danes, in Middlesex ; Sir Charles was his second son and successor ; two other of the sons died young ; Richard, his youngest son, was entered of the Temple, and died suddenly at Newington, in Middlesex, Oct. 26, 1738, unmarried.

During the time of the court of wards, the heirs of this family falling into wardship by their infancy, were defrauded of several parcels of their estate ; but by the great care and management of this Sir William, a considerable part of the ancient estate, as Ufferton, &c. with the manors and lordships of Kirk-Harle, which is holden of the crown, of the manor of East-Greenwich, by a rent of 5s. per ann. as a member of the barony of Bolbeck, (which by mismanagement was greatly diminished) is intirely redeemed ; to which he added, by purchase, Little Swinburne, Denum, part of Great Bavington, which two last were in the family above three hundred years ago, and members of the manor of Kirk-Harle. Sir William was a very great planter, by which means, and draining of morassies, marshy grounds, inclosing, and tillage, he improved great part of his estate, one third in value. He died Jan. 22, 1743, aged eighty-four, was buried at Kirkhall, and succeeded in dignity and estate by his only surviving son,

Sir Charles Loraine, Bart. who married to his first wife, Margaret, daughter of Ralph Lambton, of Lambton-hall, in the county of Durham, Esq; By this lady he had issue only one daughter, Dorothy, who died an infant. His second lady was Dorothy, daughter of Ralph Mylott, of Whitehall, in the county of Durham, Esq; by whom he had issue four sons, now living; 1. William, his successor; 2. Charles, who has taken the surname of Smith; 3. Lambton; 4. James-Thomas. Sir Charles died April 29, 1755, aged fifty-four, and was buried at Kirkhall. He was succeeded by,

Sir William Loraine, his eldest son, who is the present baronet, and a minor.

ARMS. Quarterly, Sable and Argent, a plain Cross, counter-quartered of the Field.

THIS family is a branch from that of Wentworth Woodhouse, which has flourished for several ages in the West-riding of Yorkshire. They had denomination from the lordship of Wentworth, in the wapentake of Strafford, in the county of York, as is evident from several of our genealogists, who all agree, that Reginold de Wyntworth, of Wyntworth, living in the reign of William the Conqueror, had issue, Henry de Wyntworth, whose son, Richard, had issue, Michael de Wyntworth, father of Henry de Wyntworth, and he, of Hugh de Wyntworth, who had issue, William Wyntworth, of Wyntworth, whose son and heir, Robert de Wyntworth, married Emma, daughter and heir of William Woodhouse, of Woodhouse in Yorkshire, and thereby acquiring that estate, made it his principal residence, which has ever since retained the name of Wentworth-Woodhouse.

This Robert de Wyntworth, was living in the reigns of King Henry III. and King Edward I. and left issue, William, his son and heir, who died in 2 Edw. II. having married Beatrix, daughter of Gilbert de Thakel, in Yorkshire, by whom he had, William, his son and heir.

About the year 1450, a younger brother of that family came into Derbyshire, and resided in Dronefield; and have matched into most of the gentry of those parts, as, the More's, the Fanshaw's, the Eyre's, the West's, &c.

John Wolstenholme, father of Sir John Wolstenholme, was a younger brother, born about the year 1520, nephew to Henry Fanshaw, Esq; the King's remembrancer, and to Sir ——— More, his great uncle: after the wars in Scotland, in Ed. VI's reign, he came to London, and had an office in the custom-house; he died at Stanmore in Middlesex, where he lies buried; he married a Larkin, by whom he had issue three sons; Henry, who died without issue; John; and Thomas, who died a commander, in Muscovy; also one daughter.

John, his second son and heir, was knighted by King Charles I. and was distinguished by, Sir John the elder; he was a farmer of the customs, with Sir Abraham Dawes, Sir John Jacob, &c. in King Charles I's reign; he purchased Nostell-abbey in Yorkshire, and left a very great estate; he died in the year 1639, and was buried at Stanmore in Middlesex, in the church which he built himself.

He married Catherine Fanshaw, by whom he had two sons, John and Henry, and two daughters, Joan and Catherine. His second wife was, Catherine Wanton, of Yorkshire, by whom he had no issue. Henry, his younger son, died in the wars, in the palatinate, under the lord Vere. Joan, his eldest daughter, was married to Sir Robert Knollys, of Grays, in the county of Oxford, Knt. (by whom she had two sons and three daughters; the sons married two sisters, daughters of one Saunders, in Berkshire; the eldest daughter married Sir John Corbet, of Shropshire, Bart. the second was married to — Egerton, of Staffordshire, Esq; the third to — Holmby, of Yorkshire, Esq;) Catherine, the second daughter of Sir John, married William Fanshaw, Esq; third son of Thomas Fanshaw, of Fanshaw-gate in Essex, Esq; King's remembrancer.

John, the eldest son and heir of Sir John, was known by the name of, Sir John the younger; he was knighted in his father's life-time, by King Charles I. In the time of the civil wars, the parliament fined him, and his father's partners in the farm of the customs, one hundred and fifty thousand pounds; to answer which great sums of money, his estate was all sold, upon a statute of bankrupt unjustly brought against him, for his loyalty to the crown; by which he became damnified above one hundred thousand pounds, besides great debts due from the crown, which are still unpaid, having carried plate, and other effects, to the value of eight or ten thousand pounds, to York, to be coined for his Majesty's service; besides the loss of his son, Henry, and his brother-in-law, Sir Thomas Dallison, both slain in the civil wars. There was a remarkable friendship between him and the earl of Clarendon, lord-chancellor. He was a farmer of the customs, with Sir John Shaw, Sir Nicholas Crispe, &c. after King Charles II's restoration, in two farms; and was restored to a patent of collector outward, in the port of London, from which he had been sequestred during the civil wars; he was created a baronet by King Charles II. after his restoration; but died in the year 1670, and was buried at Stanmore, near his father. He married Anne, sister of Sir Thomas Dallison, of Laughton in Lincolnshire, who was a colonel of horse under prince Rupert, which he raised at his own charge, and was slain at Naishby fight. By the said Anne, he had issue nine sons and two daughters; 1. John, who married Dorothy, daughter and coheir to Horatio, lord Vere, baron of Tilbury, and died before his father, without issue; he lies buried at Stanmore, under a stately monument of white marble; 2. Henry, who was killed in the fight at Marston-Moor, under prince Rupert, and died unmarried; 3. Sir Thomas, of whom hereafter; 4. Edward; 5. Christopher; 6. Charles; 7. Robert, who all lived to men's estate, and died unmarried; 8. and 9. both Williams, who died infants. Anne, the eldest daughter, married Sandford Nevil, of Cheet in Yorkshire, Esq; and Elizabeth, the youngest, was married to Richard Hutton, of Goldsborough in Yorkshire, Esq.

Sir Thomas, the third son, succeeded his father in the title and estate, being left sole executor; he died in the year 1691, and and lies buried in St. Margaret's, Westminster; he married Elizabeth, the daughter of Phineas Andrews, of Denton-court in Kent, Esq; (where he was chosen baron for the cinque-ports) by whom he had issue, six sons and six daughters, viz. 1. Sir John; 2. Sir Thomas, of whom hereafter; 3. Edward, who died young; 4. Henry, who married Mary, the daughter of Stephen Jermin, of Tottenham, in the county of Middlesex, Esq; but left no male-issue; William, the fifth son, was lieutenant of the Tyger-prize man of war, and captain of the first regiment of guards, under colonel How, and died unmarried; and the sixth died unchristened. Anne, the eldest daughter, was married to Sir Philip Matthews, of Great-Gobions, in the county of Essex, Bart. (by whom she had one son, John, who was killed in Flanders, at the battle of Audenard, being a colonel of the foot-guards in the first regiment; and two daughters, Dorothy, who died unmarried; and Elizabeth, married to the reverend Mr. Thomas Dawson, minister of Windfor) Elizabeth, and Mary, his second and third daughters, died young; Catherine, the fourth daughter, was married to Sir Henry Bathurst, Knt. son to alderman Bathurst, of Edmonton, in the county of Middlesex, by whom no issue; Mildred, the fifth daughter, died young; and Hester, the sixth daughter, was married to Thomas Hall, of Islington in Middlesex, Esq; son to Thomas Hall, Esq; first secondary in the King's remembrancer's office, at the exchequer, by whom he had one son, Thomas, and one daughter, Mary, married to captain Plukenet, of the first regiment of guards.

Sir John Wolstenholme, Bart. the eldest son, was several times chosen knight of the shire for the county of Middlesex, in the reign of King William, and once in the reign of Queen Anne; he married, first, Mary, daughter and sole heir of Nicholas Rainton, of Forty-hall in Endfield, in the county of Middlesex, Esq; by whom he had four sons and four daughters; 1. Sir Nicholas; 2. John, who went to Hugly-bay in the East-Indies, and there died unmarried; 3. Harvey, who was a captain in the first regiment of guards, and died unmarried, in 1713; and 4. Sir William, of whom hereafter: the daughters were, Mary, Elizabeth, Rebecca, and Catherine, three of which died unmarried, and Rebecca married Michael Harvey, of Comb in Surry, Esq; member of parliament for Milbourn-port in Somersetshire. Sir John married to his second lady, Temperance, daughter to the lord Crew, relict of Sir Rowland Alston, of Odell in Bedfordshire, Bart. by whom he had no issue; he died in the year 1708, and lies buried at Endfield, by his first lady.

Sir Nicholas Wolstenholme, Bart. his eldest son, succeeded him in title and estate; he married Grace, daughter of Sir Edward Waldo, of Pinner in Middlesex, Knt. by whom he had no issue; he died Feb. 19, 1716, and was buried in the family vault at Endfield: she afterwards married the right honourable William-Ferdinando Carey, lord Hunsdon, by whom she had no issue, and died May 9, 1729, aged forty-six; he was succeeded in the dignity, by his next surviving brother, Sir William Wolstenholme, Bart. fourth son of Sir John, before-mentioned, by Mary, daughter and sole heir of Nicholas Rainton, Esq; who married Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. Benjamin Wheeler, by whom he had one son and four daughters; the son, and two daughters, died infants; the other two daughters were, Elizabeth; and Mary, married to Eliab Breton, of Notton in Northamptonshire, Esq; nephew to Michael Harvey, of Comb, near Kingston in Surry, Esq; before-mentioned.

Sir William dying Jan. 31, 1723, was buried in the church at Enfield, and leaving no issue-male, the title went to,

Sir Thomas Wolstenholme, Bart. second son of the first Sir Thomas Wolstenholme, Bart. by Elizabeth, daughter of Phineas Andrews, Esq; before-mentioned, which Sir Thomas married Mary, daughter of — Hatton, Esq; who had a considerable place in the revenue, in Ireland, by whom he had four sons and three daughters; 1. Henry, who died at Barcelona, in the Colchester man of war, captain Lake, commander, unmarried; 2. Thomas, who died unmarried; 3. Sir Francis, his successor; and 4. Edmund, who died young: of the daughters, the eldest whereof married captain White. Sir Thomas dying Sept. 1738, was succeeded in the title by his only son, 222. J A C O B, of Bromley, Middlesex.

Created BARONET, Jan. 11, 1664.

THE first we find of this family is, William Jacob, of Horseheath in Cambridgeshire, part of which parish, doth at this day retain the name of Jacob's manor. He died 23 Hen. VIII.

VIII. His son, Richard, was of the same place, and of Gamlingay, in the said county, where there is still in being, an ancient hospital, erected by the family. He married Winifrid, daughter of William Chambers, of Royston in Cambridgeshire, and had issue,

Robert Jacob, of Gamlingay, Esq; who married Catherine, daughter and heir of William Abraham, of London, merchant, (by Jane, his wife, daughter of Robert Bostock, of Cheshire) by whom he had issue, Abraham Jacob, of Gamlingay, and of Bromley, near Bow in Middlesex, Esq; whose wife was, Mary, daughter of Francis Rogers, of Dartford in Kent, by whom he had issue, seven sons and six daughters; though only two of the sons survived him, Sir John, of whom hereafter; and Robert, who, by his second wife, Margaret, daughter of Alexander Packer, of Kings-Charleton in Gloucestershire, Esq; had issue two sons, James, who left no issue; and Alexander Jacob, a Turkey-merchant, married Dec. 26, 1691, Elizabeth, second surviving daughter of James lord Chandos, and sister to James Brydges, first duke of Chandos. By this lady (who after his decease married, secondly, Thomas Dawson, D. D. vicar of Windsor, and at length died, Nov. 23, 1739, and was buried at the family vault belonging to her noble brother, at Whitchurch in Middlesex) he had issue two sons; Alexander, born Dec. 6, 1692; and Robert, born 1698. The father died ----, and was interred at Bromley in Kent. The youngest son, Robert Jacob, was brought up to the Turkey trade, and married, in 1717, Mary, daughter of ---- Chapman, of the parish of St. Clement Danes, in the city of Westminster; and by her, who died in 1742, had issue an only daughter, Elizabeth, born 1727, who died unmarried, July 12, 1763. Her father, Robert, deceased at Boston in New-England, 1732. The eldest son, Alexander Jacob, was educated at Eton, and from thence went to the university of Oxford, and was admitted gentleman commoner at Christ-church college. After which he served his Majesty in a military capacity, and early rose to the rank of lieutenant-colonel. In 1727, he was married at St. Margaret's church, Westminster, to Ann, eldest daughter of William Nokes, of Bowerscourt, in the county of Worcester; and by her, who is still living, had issue a son, Alexander, born Dec. 26, 1731; and a daughter, Elizabeth. He departed this life on the thirteenth day of April, 1746, and was interred at Whitchurch; at which time, his son of his own name, Alexander Jacob, the present presumptive heir to the title, was bred at Winchester college, from whence he removed to Merton college, Oxford; and having entered into holy orders, was, upon the accession of his present Majesty, admitted as one of the royal chaplains in ordinary.

In 1756, he married, at Blechingley in Surry, Mary, eldest daughter to Robert Clement, of that place, Esq; deceased; and by her, who departed this life, March 12, 1767, and was buried at the vault at Whitchurch, already mentioned, had issue three children; 1. Clement-Brydges Jacob, born 1759; 2. Margaret, born 1760; and 3. Charles Jacob, born 1761.

Sir John Jacob, (the eldest surviving son of Abraham Jacob, of Gamlingay, and of Bromley in Middlesex, Esq;) was knighted by King Charles I. 1633, being one of the farmers of his Majesty's customs, in the port of London, and possessed of a clear estate of 3000l. per ann. but adhering to the King, during the troubles, had his estate sequestered by the rebels, and by procuring, and lending large sums of money to the King, was a very great sufferer: Mr. Lloyd, in his Memoirs of eminent persons that suffered for their allegiance, has these particulars of this loyalist: 'We must not separate Sir Nicholas Crisp, from the worshipful Sir John Jacob, his partner, both in the farming of the custom-house, and his sufferings; a man, ever forward to assist his Majesty, saying, What! shall I keep my estate, and see the King want wherewithal to protect it? If it please God to bless the King, though I give him all I have, I can be no loser; if not, though I keep all, I can be no saver; and to relieve the clergy, valuing more their prayers, and God's blessing, than his own estate: employing under him only those honest cavaliers that suffered with him.' For his loyalty and zeal for the royal family, he was deservedly advanced to the dignity of a baronet, 17 Car. II. He was made a commissioner of the customs, at the restoration, as he had been under King Charles I. and was one of the farmers of the customs, temp. Car. II. and upon the restoration, was restored to his estate: he built the great house now standing in Bromley. He had three wives; first, Elizabeth, daughter of John, son and heir of Sir Leonard Holliday, Knt. lord-mayor of London, by whom he had two sons, Abraham, that died without issue, and Henry, married to Margaret, daughter of ----- Ashburnham, but died issueless; also a daughter, Susanna, married to Sir Richard Wingfield, of Letheringham in Suffolk, Bart.

His second wife was, Alice, daughter of Thomas Clowes, of London, relict of John Eaglesfield, of London, merchant, by whom he had three sons, Sir John, his successor, Francis, who died without issue, and Robert, killed in Scotland, S. P. and three daughters, Alice, wife of Henry West, of Woodham-court in Suffex, Esq; Mary, to Walter, son and heir of Sir Arnold Breams, of Bridge-court in Kent, Knt. and Hellen, to John, son of Sir John Hebdon, resident in Russia, 1664.

His third wife was, Elizabeth, eldest daughter and coheir of Sir John Ashburnham, Knt. by whom he had a daughter, Margaret, married to — Muschamp, of Row-Barnes in Surry, Esq; he died in February, or March, 1665-6. His lady surviving him, was re-married to Sir William Wogan, Knt. serjeant at law, and died April, 1697.

Sir John Jacob, Bart. his eldest son, succeeded him, and married Catherine, daughter of William lord Allington, of Horseheath in Cambridgeshire, and sister to Hildebrand lord Allington, and to Elizabeth lady Seymour, wife of Charles lord Seymour, of Trowbridge, mother to the late duke of Somerset. He died 1675, and was buried in the Savoy church, in the Strand, leaving issue, his son and successor,

Sir John Jacob, Bart. who went early into the army, almost all his father's estate being seized upon by the creditors of his grandfather, for money he had taken up to lend King Charles I. in the beginning of his troubles, and not repaid by the crown; and served for seventeen years, during the reigns of King James II. and King William III. in the latter, as colonel of an old regiment of foot, (commanded lately by colonel Cotton, in garrison at Gibraltar) which regiment he resigned to his brother-in-law, James, earl of Barrymore. Sir John was at the battle of the Boyne, sieges of Cork, and Kingsale, and sadly wounded at the battle of Killicranky, where Dundee was slain, and had colonel Hastings's regiment given him, by King William, who had a particular respect for him. He married the lady Dorothy Barry, daughter of Richard, earl of Barrymore, by whom he had a son, Hildebrand, born in 1693, and four daughters, Catherine, born in 1695, married to the reverend Dr. Oakes, rector of Withersfield in Suffolk; Elizabeth, born in 1696; Margaret, who died young; and Dorothy, born in 1703, married to captain Morley, of Halstead in Essex. Sir John died March 31, 1740.

223. YEAMANS, of Bristol, Somersetshire.

Created BARONET, Jan. 12, 1664.

ROBERT YEAMANS, or Yeomans, Esq; was high-sheriff of Bristol, 1642, an alderman of the said city, and a man of great reputation in it; and being zealously attached to the interest of his majesty King Charles I. had formed a design, with several citizens of Bristol, to have delivered that city into the hands of the King's forces, and appointed March 7, 1643, in the night, to be the time: but the same evening, colonel Nathaniel Fiennes, (second son to the lord Say) had notice thereof, and prevented it, seizing upon divers of the persons concerned in that design, of whom, the chief were, Mr. Robert Yeomans, and Mr. George Boucher, a citizen there, of good estate, who, for that purpose, held correspondence with the court at Oxford; and a commission was obtained and sent from his Majesty, to Mr. Yeomans, to raise forces, and to constitute commanders for the King's service, and Mr. Boucher contrived an oath, or protestation, to be taken by all that joined themselves in this association.

After communication of councils, and many messages interchanged between Oxford and Bristol, it was resolved, that upon Monday, the seventh of March, in the night, Prince Rupert, with a strong party of the King's forces, should advance to Durdon-down, not a full mile from the city, and those within the city were to seize two of the ports, viz. Froomgate and Newgate, and having secured the guards there, were to open the said gates, and let in Prince Rupert, and his troops, who were to have notice given them to approach, by the ringing of St. John's, and St. Michael's bells; the confederates were to be distinguished by white tape in their hats, and the word to be, Charles. According to which project, divers of them were met, armed, at Mr. Yeoman's house, and others, at Mr. Boucher's, and waiting the appointed hour (which was three in the morning) to fall upon their work. But that evening late, a little boy declared, that divers musquets were carried into Mr. Yeomans's house; whereupon, a more diligent eye was kept kept upon them, and, at last, a guard ordered to search the house, who were first denied entrance, but afterwards let in, where they found a considerable number of men and arms; there was some small offer of resistance, but the most were endeavouring an escape over the top of the house, and divers were taken, both there, and at Mr. Boucher's. Prince Rupert, with his forces, came that night to the Down, expecting, till five of the clock next morning, the signal and opening of the gates, but several pieces of ordnance being in the morning discharged that way, perceiving the design frustrated, his Highness drew off.

Whereupon, several were apprehended, and alderman Yeomans, and Mr. Boucher, were condemned by a council of war, for corresponding with Prince Rupert, and designing to deliver the city of Bristol into his hands.

Great endeavours were used by the King, and the generals of the royalists, to save the lives of these gentlemen, as appears by the following letters in Mr. Rushworth's Collections.

A letter from Patrick, earl of Forth, lord Etterick, and lord-lieutenant of all his Majesty's forces, sent by a drum, and directed to the commander in chief, and the council of war, in the city of Bristol.

' I HAVE been informed, that lately, at a council of war, you have condemned to death, Robert Yeomans, late sheriff of the city of Bristol, who hath his Majesty's commission for raising a regiment for his service, William Yeomans, his brother, George Boucher, and Edward Dacres, all for expressing their loyalty to his Majesty, and endeavouring his service, according to their allegiance, and that you intend to proceed speedily against divers others in the like manner; I do therefore signify unto you, that I intend speedily to put Mr. Stephens, Mr. George, captain Huntly, and others, taken in rebellion against his Majesty, at Cirencester, into the same condition; and do further advertise you, that if you offer by that unjust judgment, to execute any of them you have so condemned, that those now in custody here, especially Mr. George, Mr. Stephens, and captain Huntly, must expect no favour or mercy. Given under my hand, at Oxford, this sixteenth of May, 1643.'

CHARLES REX.

' TRUSTY and well-beloved, we greet you well: whereas we are informed, that by the power and authority of certain factious and rebellious persons of that our city of Bristol, divers of our good subjects, as namely, Robert Yeomans, George

‘ George Boucher, William Yeomans, Edward Dacres, and ‘ others of that our city, are imprisoned for preserving their ‘ duty and loyalty to us, and for refusing to join in, or assist
 ‘ this horrid and odious rebellion against us; and that the said ‘ wicked and traiterous persons have presumed to condemn the ‘ said innocent men to die, and upon such their sentence, noto‘ riously against the laws of God, and man, they intend to exe‘ cute and murder our said subjects; we have thought fit to ‘ signify to you, the mayor, aldermen, sheriffs, and the rest ‘ of the body of the council of that our city, that if you suffer
 ‘ this horrid and execrable murder to be committed upon the ‘ persons aforesaid, and thereby call down the just judgment of ‘ God, and bring perpetual infamy upon that our city, we shall ‘ look upon it as the most barbarous and inhuman act that hath ‘ been yet committed against us, and upon you, as the most ‘ desperate betrayers of us, and of the lives and liberties of your ‘ fellow-subjects. And we therefore will and command you,
 ‘ not to suffer any violence to be done upon the persons aforesaid,
 ‘ but that if any such be attempted against them, you raise all
 ‘ the power and strength of that our city, for their rescue. And ‘ to that purpose, we command all our good subjects of that our ‘ city, to aid and assist you upon their allegiance, and as they ‘ hope for any grace and favour at our hands, and that you and ‘ they kill and slay all such, who shall attempt or endeavour to ‘ take away the lives of our said subjects. And for so doing, ‘ this shall be your warrant, and hereof you may not fail at your ‘ utmost peril. Given at our court at Oxford, the twenty-sixth ‘ day of May, 1643.

‘ To our trusty and well-beloved, the mayor, aldermen,
 ‘ and sheriffs, and the rest of the common-council of our ‘ city of Bristol.’

But these letters could not hinder the execution, for, on Tuesday, the thirtieth of May, 1643, Mr. Yeomans, and Mr.
 Boucher, were brought from the castle, to the main court of guard, and there executed, by order of Nathaniel Fiennes, son to the lord Say, and then governor of Bristol, for the parliament.

Alderman Yeamans had two sons, John, of whom hereafter, and Sir Robert Yeamans, Knt. The great sufferings of the father, for the royal cause, did not unsettle the steady adherence of his sons to the interests of the lawful heir to the crown; for, besides the particular proofs of the loyalty of his son, Robert, his majesty, King Charles II. when he was restored to his kingdoms, advanced each of them to the dignity of a baronet, as a reward for the services and sufferings of the family for the crown. Sir

Robert

Robert Yeamans, of Redlands in Gloucestershire, Knt. second son, was advanced to the degree of a baronet, Dec. 31, 1666. How great a friend this gentleman was to the royal cause, appears from a letter of thanks, (now extant in the family) for his services, from King Charles II. under his hand and signet, in the following words.

‘ I HAVE received soe full an assurance from the person who ‘ will deliver this letter to you, of your affection to my ser‘ vice, and of your readynesse to engage your selfe in it, that I ‘ cannot but returne my hearty thanks, and assure you, that if ‘ it shall please God to blesse me, you shall find that I have a ‘ just sense of what you have done, and shall doe for me, and ‘ that I will reward the same to my power, and will alwaies be, Bruxelles, this 13th ‘ your affectionate frinde, of Jan. 1660. ‘ Charles R.’

Marked on the outside with a Y.

Another proof of his loyalty, and withal of his sufferings for his steady zeal, is a certificate and attestation under the hands of twenty-five of the common-council of Bristol, touching his adherence to, and imprisonment for his Majesty’s service before, and his loyalty after, the restoration.

It appears by three several original commissions, the first, dated March 14, 1670, that he was appointed by the then duke of Ormonde, one of his deputy-lieutenants for the city and county of Bristol.

By a second, dated April 10, 1674, that he was constituted a deputy-lieutenant for the same city and county, by the then marquis of Worcester.

And by a third, dated May 10, 1685, that he served in the same character, for the same place, under the then duke of Beaufort. Sir Robert married a daughter of Sir Edward Stafford, of Bradfield in Berkshire, Knt. but leaving no issue behind him, that title is extinct. But to return to the eldest branch :

John Yeamans, Esq; eldest son and heir, was advanced to the dignity of a baronet, 17 Car. II. but as the severity of the preceding times, which had deprived Sir John of a father, had likewise injured him in his private fortune, he thought proper to remove from his native country, to Barbadoes, an island belonging to the crown, in the West-Indies, at that time in a flourishing condition, and whither many gentlemen of good families, induced by the like motives, daily retired. Sir John married twice there, and had issue by both venters : by his first wife, who was the daughter of Mr. Limp, he had one son, Sir William,

liam, his successor, of whom hereafter; and by his second wife, Margaret, daughter of the reverend Mr. John Forster, of the said island, he had only one son, Robert Yeamans, Esq; who married Elizabeth, daughter of Elisha Mellows, Esq; by whom he had three sons; 1. Robert, who married Sarah, daughter of John Trent, of Barbadoes, Esq; by whom he left only one son, Robert, who died Nov. 7, 1740, æt. ten. His relict was afterwards married to the reverend Mr. William Dowding, late fellow of St. John's college, Oxford. 2. John, who married Mary, daughter of Alexander Walker, Esq; late judge of one of his Majesty's courts of Common-pleas, in the island of Barbadoes, by whom he had one son, Walker; 3. Philip, married to Mary, daughter of Joseph Gibbs, of the same island, Esq.

It would be an injustice to the memory of Sir John, the first baronet of this family, not to mention a circumstance of his life, that brought home to himself, real, as well as titular honour; which was, his voluntary quitting Barbadoes, where he had acquired a very considerable estate, and removing, with all his family, to South-Carolina, then in its infant state, to promote, by his example and presence, the noble work of settling that colony. The merit of so generous a design, did not pass long unrewarded, as appears by a patent, creating him a landgrave of that province, with four baronies annexed, consisting of twelve thousand acres of land each, to be enjoyed with the title, by him, and his heirs for ever. But the inconveniences and distempers that generally attend every new settlement, obliged him to quit the place whither he had been led by no private view to his interest, but by a laudable disposition to forward the settlement of it; for he made little or no advantage, which he might easily have done, of so very large a grant of land as forty-eight thousand acres, made to him so early by the said patent.

Sir William Yeamans, Bart. only son by the first venter, succeeded his father, Sir John, in dignity and estate; he married in Barbadoes, Willoughby, daughter of Sir James Brown, Knt. by whom he had one only son,

Sir John Yeamans, Bart. who married Margaret, daughter of Philip Gibbs, of the island of Barbadoes, Esq; by whom he had his son and successor,

Sir John Yeamans, Bart. who likewise married in Barbadoes, Anne, daughter of Mr. Scantlebury, by whom he left one only son, Sir John Yeamans, the present Baronet, who resides at Barbadoes.

He was son of a learned council in the law, of an ancient family, at Stoak-Prior in Worcestershire. He married Judith, daughter of Nicholas Walmesley, of Dunkenhalth in Lancashire, Esq; brother to the lord chief-justice of that name, by whom he had three sons; 1. Sir Robert, of whom hereafter; 2. THE first of this family in England was, Richard de Oke-landre, who came over from Caen in Normandy, with William the Conqueror, a marshalist, and settled at Nunwell, in the Isle of Wight; whose successors we find, by deeds and evidences, sans date, purchasing and disposing of lands, stiled, lords of Nunwell: it is plain, from records, that several of this family lived there, in the time of Hen. III. Edw. I. and Edw. II. and were seized of the same lands, as appears by inquisitions then taken: one of them, Robert Oglander, (the fifth from Richard) was married to Roberta, daughter of Sir Theobald Ruffel, of Yaverland, Knt. whose son, Henry, married Jane, the daughter of Sir John Glamorgan, of Brook, by whom he had issue, Henry, who married Mary, the daughter of Sir Bartholomew Lisse; he attended Edward III. in the wars in France, and was made a knight there; which title, several of his descendants had conferred on them, before Sir John Oglander, whom (after seventeen generations, from Richard de Oke-landre, in an uninterrupted succession in the male line) we find, in 1609, in possession of the manor of Nunwell, &c. in 1620, he was made deputy-governor of Portsmouth, by William,

liam, earl of Pembroke; which he quitted in 1624, when he was made deputy-governor of the Isle of Wight, by Edward lord Conway, in which post he was continued, by Richard lord Weston, (the then captain and governor) in 1630; and, in 1625, he was elected member of parliament for Yarmouth, in the Island of which he was deputy-governor. In the unhappy civil wars, from a zealous attachment to the royal cause, he was a great sufferer, both in person and fortune, being confined for some years in London, by the committee, and obliged to pay a large sum to procure his discharge. He married Frances, the daughter of Sir George More, of Lofely, in the county of Surry, Knt. by whom he had four sons; 1. George, who died abroad on his travels, V. P. 2. William; 3. John, fellow of New-college in Oxford; 4. Richard; and three daughters; 1. Anne, married to Sir Stephen Lennard, of West-Wickham in Kent, Bart. 2. Sir William Oglander, Bart. who was knighted by King Charles I. and, at the restoration, was elected member of parliament for Newport: in 1664, he was appointed deputy-governor of the Island, by Thomas lord Culpepper; and in consideration of his own loyalty, and his father's sufferings, was created a baronet by King Charles II. Dec. 12, 1665. He married Dorothy, the daughter of Sir Francis Clerke, of Hitcham in Buckinghamshire, Knt. and left issue, Dorothy, married to Sir Hugh Middleton, of Hackney in Middlesex, Bart. He was succeeded by,

(by his second wife, Anne lady Paulet, relict of John lord Paulet, of Hinton St. George in Somersetshire, and daughter of Sir Thomas Browne, of Walcot in Northamptonshire, Bart.) by whom he left issue,

Sir John Oglander, Bart. his successor, and two daughters; Elizabeth, married, first, to Robert Holmes, a captain in the East-India service, second son of Henry Holmes, of Yarmouth, Esq; and secondly, to Robert Haldane, Esq; of Glen-eagles in Perthshire, Scotland; and Frances, married to Henry Harris, Esq;

Esq; of Silkstead in Hampshire. Sir William dying August, 1734, was succeeded in dignity and estate by his only son,

Sir John Oglander, Bart. who, in right of his mother, the other children of Sir John Strode, her father, dying without issue, became heir of that ancient family in the county of Dorset. In 1729, he married Margaret, daughter of John Coxe, of Ston-Easton in Somersetshire, Esq; and had issue three sons, Sir William, his successor, John and Henry, both fellows of New-College in Oxford; and five daughters; 1. 233. D'OYLY, of Chislehampton, Oxfordshire;

Created BARONET; July 7, 1666.

THIS family is of very great antiquity, both in England and in France, from whence they first came with William the Conqueror; and the pedigree says, that the most ancient and honourable family of the D'Oyly's, were lords of Olgii, or Oyly in Normandy, long before the coming in of Duke William; that Robert, the eldest son, for his good services at the conquest, was by him rewarded with two baronies, and many goodly manors and lordships in England, but chiefly lying in Oxfordshire, as appears by Doomsday-book, and the abbey books of Osenay, by Oxford, and of Missenden in Buckinghamshire; of both which abbies, they were founders, temp. Hen. I. and were also great benefactors to the abbies of Abington, Eynsham, Godstow, Thame, and many others, both in England and France. They likewise built the castle and bridge of Oxford, 1071, which was their ancient seat, and new made the walls about the same city. Of which ancient and noble stock, that knightly family of the D'Oyly's, now remaining in Oxfordshire, are descended, (as learned Camden, Clarencieux King at arms, in his Britannia, p. 297, makes mention) Also, Mr. Thin, in his addition to Hollinhead's Chronicle, speaking of the great constables of England, has set down Nigellus D'Oyly, to be great constable of England, in King William Rufus his time. After the decease of the abovesaid lord Robert, brother to Nigellus, and that the lord Robert, his son, did succeed him therein, and after Robert, Henry, his son, and after him, the second Henry, &c. as you may read therein.

The succession from their pedigree, is as follows, of which, the present Sir John, is the twenty-sixth in a lineal descent.

I. The lord Robert D'Oyly, the King's constable, eldest son of the lord de Olgii in Normandy, was made baron of Hokenorton, or Hokenorton in Oxfordshire, &c. by William the Conqueror. He married Alghitha, daughter and heir of Wigot, or Wigotus, a noble Saxon, lord of Walingford, by whom he had the lady Maud, his daughter and heir; which lady Maud, inherited the valour of her ancestors, valiantly defended the empress, her name-sake, in her castle of Walingford. She married, first, Miles Crispin, and afterwards, Brian Fitz-Count, lord of Burgavenny. This lord Robert, and his lady, Alghitha, lie buried in the abbey of Abington, to which, as well as to St. Mary's church there, they were bountiful benefactors. He was succeeded by,

2. Nigell, or Nigellus D'Oyly, his brother, in his barony of Hocknorton, &c. who was the King's constable; temp. William Rufus, and married the lady Agnes. He came in with the Conqueror, with his two brothers, the aforesaid lord Robert, his elder, and Gilbert D'Oyly, his younger, which last had lands given him in Oxfordshire, by William the Conqueror. Nigell left two sons, Robert and Fulco, or Foulk; which said Foulk was buried at Ersham, 1126.

3. Robert, the eldest, succeeded his father as lord high-constable in the barony of Hocknorton, and married Editha, daughter of Foru, lord of Greystock. He built the abbey of Missenden, and richly endowed it; likewise built the famous abbey of Oseney, at the request of his wife, anno 1129, and gave great lands unto it, 29 Hen. I. of which, see more in Leland's Itinerary. This lord Robert had two sons and a daughter, viz. Henry, Gilbert, and Editha, and was succeeded by,

4. The lord Henry D'Oyly, baron of Hocknorton, the King's constable. He married Margery, daughter of Humphry Bohun, earl of Hereford, by which lady he had five children, Henry, and Robert, Margery, that at last was heir to her brothers; another daughter, married to Maurice de Gaunt, (from whom were descended the Gaunts, earls of Lincoln) and a third daughter married to Thomas, lord of Daventry.

5. He was succeeded by Henry, his son, the second of that name, constable of England, and baron of Hocknorton, who married two wives, first, Sibilla, secondly, Maud, or Martildis, (who, after his death, married William de Cantalupe.) He had issue only one daughter, Maud, sole heir to her father, who died young, unmarried. He went to Jerusalem with King Richard I. and died on his return, in Austria, where he was buried.

6. Robert D'Oyly, succeeded his brother, the second Henry, as the King's constable, and in the barony of Hocknorton, but died without issue, so that his eldest sister, Margery, by the King's favour, succeeded as heir, and married Henry de Newburgh, a great courtier, and earl of Warwick, by whom she had, Margaret, countess of Warwick, who married two husbands, first, John Marshal, in her right, earl of Warwick, &c. secondly, John de Plessetis, a great courtier, likewise in her right, earl of Warwick. She had issue, Thomas, earl of Warwick, &c. who married Ela, daughter of William Longspe, earl of Sarum.

7. Robert D'Oyly, the eldest son of Gilbert, brother to the first lord Henry, succeeded as eldest in blood, but not in the honours, or great offices, and was succeeded by his son;

8. John D'Oyly, whose seat was at Wrenham, whose eldest son was,

9. Roger D'Oyly, that removed to his seat at Pus-hall, or Pufhil, held of the crown by the tenure of yielding yearly to the King, a table-cloth, of 3s. price, or 3s. for all services, as mentioned in Dr. Holland's Additions to Camden's Britannia. He was succeeded by his eldest son, a second

234. PEYTON, of Doddington, Cambridgeshire.

Created BARONET, March 21, 1666.

THIS knightly family, so called by Mr. Cambden, from the many descendants of it, who have been distinguished, in successive reigns, with the honour of knighthood, owes its first settlement in England, to William de Mallet, a Norman baron, who came over with the Conqueror, and has flourished ever since, in various branches, and in different parts of the kingdom.

At different times, and in different places, it has taken the several names of Mallet, Ufford, and Peyton, from the places of its abode and settlement, as it was the custom for some ages after

after the conquest, to distinguish families by the christian name; and the respective places of their habitation: thus, William de Mallet, was so named; from Mallet in Normandy; Robert de Ufford, or Offord, from a village of that name in Suffolk; and; Robert de Peyton, from a seat called Peyton-hall, at Boxford in Suffolk; and by this last name, the surviving branches of the family are now known.

By continual intermarriages with many of the chief families of England; it has not so much increased the splendor of its own stock, as added a new lustre to theirs. The camp, the bar, the senate, the church, the court, and the country, owe to this family some of their great ornaments.

The founder of it died bravely, in defence of the city of York against the Danes; and two of his descendants, who were the first, and successively earls of Suffolk; Robert, and William de Ufford, were both of them lords high-admiral of England, in the reign of the victorious Edward III. and the former of them had the honour of being a knight-companion of the order of the garter; under the first instituter of it; as Dugdale observes; that Robert, the first earl of Suffolk, was seldom out of some eminent action. Robert, the father of the earl, was created knight of the Bath, in 31 Edw. I. and both he, and Ralph de Ufford, his second son, were justices of Ireland; the father, in 4 Edw. I. the son, in 20 Edw. III. So many of this family have been called to do their King and country service in parliament, some to the upper, and others to the lower house, that it would be tedious to mention the times and persons. John Ufford, son to the first, and brother to the second earl of Suffolk, received his education in Cambridge, and proceeded doctor of civil and canon law; afterwards, he was promoted to the deanery of Lincoln, but his talents were too large to be confined in a private church: his admirable eloquence, and profound knowledge in the law, demanded an higher sphere; and accordingly, he was called up to be a member of the King's council, and chancellor of England; and after he had for some time filled the highest station of the law, with great integrity, he was from thence advanced to the archiepiscopal see of Canterbury; after he had sat in this see but a short time, viz. six months and six days, he was swept away in that dreadful pestilence which raged in this kingdom, anno 1350. Dying intestate, Andrew Ufford, arch-deacon of Middlesex, took out letters of administration to his effects, as heir at law.

Thus, by discharging these great stations and offices with abilities and address, they did credit to the courts of those several Kings who employed them; and by being joined in the commission of the peace, and executing the office of sheriffs for their respective counties, which many of them frequently did, in successive reigns, with honour to themselves, and advantage to their country, they acquitted themselves as useful members of society.

For a particular account of the beginning and progress of this family, we refer the reader to Dugdale's Baronage, Vol. II. under the name, Ufford, and to No. 3. Vol. I. of this Work. In this place, we shall only give an account of that branch which first settled at Doddington, in the Isle of Ely, and county of Cambridge.

The first of these was,

Sir John Peyton, Knt. second son of Sir John Peyton, of Knowlton in Kent, and of Dorothy, his wife, daughter to Sir John Tindal, who was created knight of the Bath, at the coronation of Queen Anne Bullen.

Sir John Peyton, of Doddington, was the thirteenth in descent from William de Mallet, the Norman baron, and, in good and great qualifications, no ways inferior to any of his ancestors. He was educated after the politest manner of the age he lived in, by serving in the wars of Flanders, under the most able and experienced soldiers and politicians of that time. From hence he received all those advantages, which a good understanding can be supposed to reap, from a free and familiar conversation with the wisest and politest men of all nations, met together as upon a public theatre of action. The accomplishments which he brought home with him, recommended him to the favour of a princess, who was famed for a nice distinguisher of men: by Queen Elizabeth he was called to her privy-council, and made lieutenant of the Tower; and afterwards, in the reign of King James I. succeeded Sir Walter Raleigh, in the government of the isles of Jersey and Guernsey; in which post, by his prudent and steady management, he settled the English liturgy, in the former, where the Geneva discipline had prevailed; he made a good progress in bringing the other to the same standard of primitive piety. Amidst the sunshine of a court, and the affluence of a large fortune, his conduct was so regular and temperate, that his life was prolonged to the age of ninety-nine years, in so much health and vigour, that he is said to have rode a buck hunting three or four days before his death. He married Dorothy, daughter and heiress of Edward Beaupre, of Outwell in Norfolk, Esq; and widow of Sir Robert Bell, one of the barons of the exchequer, by whom he had issue only one son, viz.

Sir John Peyton, who was knighted in his father's life-time, and succeeded him in his estate. This gentleman was remarkable for being a polite scholar: he married Alice, the second daughter of Sir John Peyton, of Iselham, Bart. and by her had issue, three sons and six daughters; 1. Robert, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Richard Anderson, of Penley in Hertfordshire, Knt. and died without issue, April 26, 1659; 2. Algernon, who succeeded his brother in his estate, of whom hereafter; 3. Henry, who, in the grand rebellion, engaging in the royal cause, was unfortunately killed by his own soldiers, at Banbury, forgetting the watch-word. His daughters were married as follows; 1. Elizabeth, to Sir Anthony Chester, of Chichley in Buckinghamshire, Bart. 2. Alice, to ---- Lowe, Esq; 3. Dorothy, to Laurence Oxburgh, of Emneth in Norfolk, Esq; 4. Frances, to Francis Fortescue, Esq; barrister at law, solicitor to Queen Mary, consort of King Charles I. 5. Susanna, to John Richers, of Tring-hall in Norfolk, Esq; (she died 1706, in her ninetieth year, and was buried at Chesterford-Magna in Essex) 6. Anne, to ----- Brent, of Worcester-shire, Esq.

Algernon, second son of Sir John Peyton, was educated at Cambridge, entered into holy orders, and proceeded doctor of divinity in that university. He was heir to his brother, Robert, (that died without issue) and rector of Doddington, in the Isle of Ely. He married Elizabeth, daughter of John Cook, of Chiffell in Essex, Esq; by whom he had issue, three sons and three daughters; 1. John, created baronet, Dec. 10, 1660, 12 Car. II. who dying unmarried, the title expired with him; 2. Algernon, created baronet, March 21, 1666, 18 Car. II. of whom hereafter; 3. Henry, who embraced a military life from fourteen years of age, went gradually through the several posts of the army, and was, by Queen Anne, made a brigadier, and governor of Galloway in Ireland; he died unmarried, in 1724, and left behind him the character of having been a good christian, and a brave soldier. His daughters were; 1. Dorothy, who died young; 2. Elizabeth, married to Gregory Parlet, of Downham in Norfolk, Gent. 3. Alice, married, first, to John Nalson, LL.D. rector of Doddington, and prebendary of Ely, well known to the learned world, by his many useful and ingenious writings; and secondly, to John Cremer, of Norfolk, Gent. She died in 1717. Dr. Peyton lies buried in St. George's church, Southwark.

Sir Algernon Peyton, Bart. second son to the reverend Dr. Algernon Peyton, succeeded him in his estate, and married Frances, daughter and heir of Sir Robert Sewster, of Ravely in Huntingdonshire, Knt. (who surviving him, was re-married to colonel Skelton) by whom he had issue, one son and two daughters, viz. Sir Sewster, who succeeded him in his title and estate; Anne, married to Philip Bell, of Wallington, in the county of Norfolk, Esq; and Algerina, to George Dashwood, of Peyton-hall in Suffolk, Esq; who served as colonel in the army, and was the youngest son to George Dashwood, Esq; of London.

Sir Sewster Peyton, Bart. son and heir to Sir Algernon, was master of the buck-hounds to Queen Anne, during the life of his royal highness Prince George, of Denmark, in joint commission with another gentleman. He married Anne, second daughter to the last named George Dashwood, of London, Esq; sister to Sir Robert Dashwood, of Northbrook in Oxfordshire, Bart. and to Richard Dashwood, of Cley in Norfolk, Esq; and to the late colonel George Dashwood, of Peyton-hall in Suffolk, Esq; by this lady he had issue, two sons and three daughters, viz. Sir Thomas, heir to his estate and title, of whom hereafter; and Henry, who died of a fever, unmarried, Sept. 25, 1741, and was buried at Doddington, with his ancestors: the christian and the gentleman were happily united in him; and the liberal education which he had in St. John's college, Cambridge, added to each of those characters; the real grief which his friends and relations expressed at his death, was the best panegyrick that could be made upon him, and the sincerest proof of his many excellent and engaging good qualities. Sir Sewster's daughters were; 1. Anne, married to Richard Dashwood, of Cockly-Cley in Norfolk, Esq; 2. Margaret, married to George Dashwood, Esq; son of the before-mentioned George Dashwood, of Peyton-hall, Esq; 3. Henrietta, who died young. 235. MARTIN, of Long-Melford, Suffolk.

Created BARONET, March 28, 1667.

THIS ancient and knightly family, (as Mr. Harvy, in his Visitation of Suffolk, styles it) is certainly of very great antiquity. It claimed an alliance, in the time of the heptarchy, with the kingly race, by the marriage of Joan de la Piddle. Its ancient seat was, Admiston-hall in Dorsetshire, whose late possessor was, Nicholas Martin, who left only two daughters, his heirs. He being at last, though contrary to his inclinations, prevailed upon to dock the estate, and to settle it upon a brother, entered, with that design, upon a London journey, but died upon the road, without compleating either, and was buried with his ancestors, under a large tomb, with this inscription :

Good night Nicholas.’

Richard Martin, a younger brother of this family, removed to Long-Melford, temp. Rich. II. he died 1438. Laurence, his son, purchased lands, in 1449, of William, then abbot of St. Edmunds-Bury, and exchanged others. He died 1460, and lies buried in Long-Melford church, with the image of St. Laurence, and his grid-iron over him, in remembrance of his name. It was by his benevolence, that part of the church was built, 1484, and which ever since has been the burial-place of this family.

Richard, his son and heir, by Anne, daughter of Thomas Moriel, was father of Richard, who, by Elizabeth, daughter to Roger Hulfner, had issue, another Richard, and died 1463. Richard, his son, made an addition to the estate, by the purchase of several lands, temp. Edw. IV. He died 1510, leaving issue, by the daughter of John Allen, three sons; 1. Roger, his heir; 2. Laurence, who settled at London, and was father of Sir Roger Martin, sheriff of London, 1559, and lord-mayor of that city, 1567; and 3. John.

Roger, his eldest son, was eminently remarkable for his charity, and when he declined with age, and was not able to go far from home, had a whistle to his cane, by which he called the poor to him, to receive his charity. In 14 Hen. VIII. was appointed a commissioner for levying the subsidy granted to that King, was a lawyer, and benchor of Lincolns-Inn. Queen Mary offered him the high post of secretary of state, to whom he answered, ‘ That for himself, he was highly satisfied with ‘ the sufficiency God had bestowed on him, and with a private ‘ life ;

‘ life ; and, as for my son, he will inherit a competency sufficient, if he proves an honest man, and if he becomes otherwise, it will be far too much.’ He considerably augmented his estate by purchases, and left large charities to the poor. He lived to near one hundred years of age, and died the latter part of Queen Mary’s reign. Richard, his heir, added to the estate a noble lordship, which he bought of Sir William Cordell, 9 Eliz. In 2 Eliz. he was ordered to send a horse and man completely armed, to Newcastle, to rendezvous, and march against the French and Scots ; and married two wives ; first, Anne, daughter to — Eden, of London ; secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of John Crane, of Chilton ; by the first, he had Roger, his heir ; and by the second wife, he had Richard and William : he died 1572, and confirmed by will, all the charities left by his father.

Roger, his son and heir, by his first wife, Ursula, daughter of Sir Thomas Jermin, of Rushbrooke in Suffolk, Knt. left Richard, his son and heir, and other children ; and by his second wife, Margaret, daughter to Walter Bowles, of Pembroke-shire, Esq ; he had one son, Thomas, brought up at the Middle-Temple, but when about thirty-five, went abroad to spend some time in the wars, and took leave of his friends, but was never heard of afterwards ; also two daughters, Margaret and Elizabeth, the latter lived to a great age, and was for many years bed-ridden. He greatly improved the estate, and died Aug. 3, 1615, aged eighty-nine, and left considerably to the poor, and lies buried in the church of Melford.

Richard, his son and heir, added to the estate, and married three wives ; first, Eleanor, daughter to Francis Mannock, of Gifford’s-hall in Stoke, juxta Neyland, in Suffolk, Esq ; by whom he had two sons, Roger, who died young, and Roger, his heir, born 1584. His second wife was, Barbara, daughter of Thomas Daniel, of Acton in Suffolk, Esq ; by whom he had three sons, William, Laurence, and John ; and one daughter, Mary, married to John Digby, Esq ; son and heir of James Digby, of North-Luffingham in Rutlandshire, Esq. His third wife was, Alice, daughter of Edmund Smith, of Suffolk, Esq ; by whom he had only daughters, who all died S. P. He was buried with his ancestors at Melford, with his wives and children, under a large tomb, with this inscription :

238. SKIPWITH, of Newbold-Hall, Warwickshire.

Created BARONET, October 25, 1670.

THIS family, originally wrote, Schypwyc, and denominated from the town and lordship of Skipwith, in the East-riding of the county of York, is descended from Robert de Estotevill, baron of Cottingham, in the reign of William the Conqueror; of which Robert, and his descendants, barons of Cottingham, Sir William Dugdale has largely treated, in his Baronage of England.

Robert, son of the abovementioned Robert, became possessed of a great inheritance, by marriage with Eneburga, daughter and heir to Hugh, son of Baldrick, a great Saxon thane, and among other lands, had the lordship of Skipworth, or Skipwic (as anciently written) in Yorkshire; he left three sons; from Robert, the eldest, descended the barons of Cottingham, whose male line terminated, 17 Hen. III.

From Osmund, second son, who died at Joppa, in Palestine, the Estotvill's, of Gressing-hall, descended.

Patrick, the younger son, being possessed of the lordship of Skipwith, by gift of his father, his descendants assumed their name from that town, according to the custom of the age: by Beatrix, his wife, daughter and heir of Sir Pagan de Langtun, he had a son, Jeffrey, who succeeded to the said lordship, who, by Mariana, his wife, daughter and heir of William de Menithorp, had two sons; Reginald and Gerard; which Reginald, was an hostage to the King, for the lord Scales, in the barons wars, 9 Johan; and his son and heir, Sir William de Skipworth, Knt. lord of Skipwith, was living, temp. Hen. III. and marrying Alice, daughter of Sir John, cousin and heir to Sir William Thorp, Knts. became possessed of a great inheritance in the county of Lincoln, and was the last of the family that resided at Skipwith.

Sir John de Skipworth, Knt. his son and heir, residing at Thorp, in Lincolnshire, and, from his habitation, was sometimes stiled de Thorp, Thorp, he likewise possessed the manor of Beakby, in the right of his mother, and having married Isabel, daughter and heir of Sir Robert de Arches, Knt. of Wranby in Lincoln, had also possession of that manor and estate, and was succeeded therein by his son, John de Skipwith, who resided at Beakby, and increased his patrimony, by marriage with Margaret, daughter and coheir of Herbert de Flinton in Yorkshire (by a daughter and coheir of Walter de la Lynde, lord of Laseby in Lincolnshire, and of Bulbrook in Suffex, son of Sir William de la Lynde, Knt. seneschal of the city of London, temp. Hen. III.) by which wife he had issue, William de Skipwith, who married Margaret, daughter of Ralph Fitz-Simon, lord of Ormesby in Lincolnshire, and sister and sole heir of Simon Fitz-Ralph, whereby this family became possessed of that inheritance, which was the possession of Sir Ralph Fitz-Simon, Knt. temp. III. who, in several charters, was termed Nobilis, and had obtained that manor by his wife, the daughter and heir of Ormesby, of Ormesby; from this marriage with Margaret, aforesaid, proceeded three sons; 1. John Skipwith, eldest son and heir, who died without issue, 10 Ed. III. the same year wherein his father deceased; 2. Sir William Skipwith; 3. Sir Ralph, from whom descended the Skipwiths, of Heburgh in Lincolnshire, possessors of lands in Southlifton, Kernington, Heighburgh, Alesby, and Laseby, temp. Hen. IV.

Sir William Skipwith, before-mentioned, succeeded his brother in his estate; he was brought up in the study of the law, and grew to great eminency therein; he was first elected one of the King's serjeants, and 33 Edw. III. constituted one of the judges of the king's-bench, and sworn in trinity term, 36 Edw. III. lord chief-baron of exchequer, continuing therein till the 40th year of that King's reign, at which time he died. He married Alice, sole daughter and heir of Sir William de Hiltoft, lord of Ingoldmells, by Alice, his wife, sister and sole heir of Ralph de Muer, lord of Calthrop, and Covenham in Lincolnshire, which Sir William de Hiltoft, was son of another Sir William, by Agnes, his wife, daughter to Thomas, and one of the sisters and coheirs of William de Munby, a family extracted from the house of Willoughby; for, Sir William Willoughby, having two sons, Robert, and Thomas, by his wife, the heir of the baron Beke, of Eresby, Robert, the eldest, had the barony, and Thomas, his brother, having married Margaret, sister and coheir to Alun de Munby, William, his son, took the name of Munby, and dying without issue, Sir William Hiltoft (before-mentioned), by marrying his sister, became his heir. Sir William Skipwith had four sons, William, John, Patrick, and Stephen; with two daughters, Alice, wife of Robert, lord Willoughby, and Margaret, married to William Vavasor, Esq;

William, the eldest son, likewise studied the law, and made such proficiency therein, that he was constituted one of the justices of the king's-bench, 50 Edw. III. and his patent was renewed, 1 Rich. II. when he was senior judge of that court, and acted therein with that candor and integrity, that his name is transmitted to posterity, by all our historians, with great honour; in the same year his patent was renewed, he obtained free warren of all his demesnes at Ormesby, Ingoldmells, Carleton, Covenham, and Bekeby; and in the eleventh of that reign, had, at his own request, a quietus from his office of justice. Knighton, in his chronicle, says, that, notwithstanding the threats of great power of the duke of Ireland, he pretended an indisposition, and did not appear at the council at Nottingham, when all the judges were summoned to meet there, in order to subscribe to several questions, whereby they might take occasion to work the death of the duke of Gloucester: this judge therefore, wisely foreseeing the event, got his quietus, as was said before; and his brethren, who were all over-awed, that they gave their opinions illegally, and were afterwards, all of them, arrested on the bench, on the desire of the parliament, being charged with over-ruling the actions and determinations of the lords, by their advice and directions, upon assurance that all was done according to law; yet, afterwards, had given the King a contrary judgement, at Nottingham, and had delivered, as their opinion, that the actions of the said parliament were illegal and traitorous; on this foot, they were, all of them (except Sir William Skipwith), condemned by the lords temporal, with assent of the King, to be drawn and hanged, as traitors, their heirs disinherited, and their lands, &c. forfeited; but this sentence, as to their lives, was respited.

The collar of Esses, now worn by the judges, first introduced from the initial letters of Sanctus Simon Simplicius, an uncorrupted justicier in the primitive times, well suited this Sir William Skipwith, who died full of honour, without issue-male, leaving only one daughter, married to George, lord Monboucher, whereupon, the bulk of his estate descended to his brother and heir, John Skipwith, of Ormesby, Esq; high sheriff of Lincolnshire, 18 Rich. II. and one of the knights of the shire for the county in parliament, temp. Hen. V. he had issue, by Alice, his wife, daughter of Frederick Tilney, of Tilney in Norfolk, Knt. three sons, William, who died without issue, Thomas and Patrick; the Skipwiths, of Utterby in Lincolnshire, descended from the latter; and by a younger son of that line, those of the name at Snore in Norfolk.

Thomas, second son, succeeded to the estate of his father, 9 Hen. V. at which time he held lands at Skipwith, Menthorp, Southermesby, &c. He distinguished himself in the French wars, and was knighted by King Henry V. in France; it may be presumed, he lived some time at Hampstead, near London; the arms and portraitures of him, and Margaret, his wife, daughter to John, lord Willoughby, of Eresby, being finely painted in glass, in an ancient house in the same town; he died before the nineteenth of Henry VI. for in that year, William, his son and heir, was possessed of his estate.

The records in the Tower, stile this William Skipwith, son of the said Thomas, and that he was seized, by inheritance from his father, of Skipwith, and Menthorp in Yorkshire, South-Ormesby, Kettleby, Walmesfare, Calthorp, Covenham, Garnethorp, Wargholme, Laseby, Caldale, and Somercofe in Lincolnshire; he was knighted in France, temp. Hen. VI. and was high sheriff of Lincolnshire, the thirty-seventh of that King's reign, and in the first of Edw. IV. was constituted seneschal of the dominion or demesne of Borewell, in the said county; in a charter to Rich. III. he is mentioned to be possessed of Ingoldmells, and the advowson of the church of St. Peter; and departing this life, 1 Hen. VII. lies buried in the church of Ormesby (as appears from the manuscript now in the family). He married twice, but by his first wife, Joan, daughter to Sir Robert Mortimer, Knt. he had no issue: by Agnes, his second wife, daughter to Sir John Constable, of Burton-Constable in Yorkshire, Knt. widow of Sir — St. Quintyn, he had issue, a son, John, and a daughter, Alice, wife of Sir John Markham, Knt. This William died 1485.

Which John, his son and heir, stood firm to the interest of King Hen. VII. against the Yorkists, and assisted in defeating Perkin Warbeck, and when the lord Audley headed the Cornish, who had risen, under pretence of illegal taxes, and had marched thro' several counties, into Kent, he was with the King, when he gave them battle on Blackheath, 17 July, in the twelfth year of his reign, and, for his service therein, had the honour of knight-banneret conferred on him. He married Catherine, daughter to Richard Fitz-Williams, of Wadsworth, Esq; by whom he had issue, a son, William, and four daughters; 1. Catharine, married to Sir Thomas Heneage, of Heanton in Lincolnshire, Knt. 2. Mary, married to George Fitz-Williams, of Mablethorp; 3. Elizabeth, first married to Anthony Riggs; afterwards to Matthew Thimelby, Esq; 4. Margaret, wife to Richard Yarborough, Esq; William, only son and heir, succeeded to the estate, was high sheriff of Lincolnshire, 18 Hen. VIII. before which time he had received the honour of knighthood: he took to wife, first, Elizabeth, daughter to Sir William Tyrwit, of Kettleby in Lincolnshire, Knt. by whom he had four daughters, that married married, and four sons; 1. William; 2. Lyonell, from whom the Skipwith's, of Calthorp descended; 3. John, of Walmf-gare, whose son Lyonel, died without issue; the church at Walmf-gare, a handsome little pile, and vaulted underneath, was built by him, the said Lyonell, where he lies interred; 4. George Skipwith, of Cotes, or Cotenham: the daughters were, 1. Elizabeth, married to Thomas Clifford, of Brakenburgh in Lincolnshire, Esq; 2. Anne, to William Hatcliffe, of Hatcliffe, 36 Hen. VIII. 3. Bridget, one of the maids of honour, and bed-fellow to Queen Eliz. who afterwards married — Cave, of Leicestershire, Esq; and 4. Eleanor, wife to Richard Bolles, Esq; The said Sir William, by Alice, his second wife, daughter and heir to Sir Lyonell Dymock, of Scrivelsby in Lincolnshire, Knt. (with whom he had a great estate) left issue, a son, Henry, ancestor to the Skipwith's, of Prestwould, of whom we have already treated, vol. I.

William, his eldest son and heir by the first wife, succeeded to the estate at Ormesby, &c. He brought forces, and engaged in the expedition against Scotland, under the duke of Somerset, lord protector, 1 Edw. VI. and in the great battle of Muscledborough, wherein 14000 Scots were killed, and 1500 taken prisoners, with all their cannon and baggage, he had his full share of the action, and for his service therein, was knighted, with many more, under the royal standard, in the camp beside Roquesborough. In 6 Edw. VI. he was chosen one of the knights of the shire for the county of Lincoln, in the parliament then summoned to meet at Westminster, and in the fourth of Queen Elizabeth, was high sheriff. He departed this life, generally esteemed for his excellent qualifications, and was buried in the chancel of the church, at Ormesby, with his ancestors, March 7, 1587. He had likewise two wives; first, Elizabeth, sole daughter and heir to Sir Richard Page, of Beechwood in Hertfordshire, Knt. of the privy-council to King Henry VIII. by whom he had issue, Sir Richard, hereafter mentioned, and six daughters, 1. Frances, who married, first, Francis Constable, of Burstwick in Yorkshire, Esq; and secondly, to Ralph Ellerker, of Risby, in the same county, Esq; second son of Sir Ralph Ellerker, Knt. 2. Anne, married to Francis Kersey; 3. Mabella, to Thomas Skipwith, of Utterby in Lincolnshire; 4. Elizabeth, to Thomas Portington, of Portington; 5. Mary, to George Metham, and 6. Margaret, to John Try, of Hardwick in Gloucestershire, Esqrs. His second wife, was Anne, daughter to John Tothby, of Tothby in Lincolnshire, Esq; by whom he had a son, Edward, who was seated at Benyworth, in the said county, and was progenitor to the Skipwiths, of Grantham, and to Sir Thomas Skipwith, of Methringham, created Baronet by King Charles II. which title is now extinct.

Sir Richard Skipwith, of Ormesby, Knt. son and heir of Sir William, took to wife, Mary, daughter to Sir Ralph Chamberlain, of Gedding in Suffolk, Knt. and had issue, three sons, William, Edward, and Henry, with two daughters, Catherine, married to Charles Ayscough, and Susan, to William Skipwith, of Utterby, Esqrs.

William, the eldest son, succeeded to the estate at Ormesby, and married two wives; 1. Anne, relict of Sir Robert Constable, Knt. by whom he had no issue; secondly, Anne, daughter of Thomas Portington, of Portington in Yorkshire, Esq; by whom he had several children, but had no issue male that survived.

Edward, second son, married Christian, daughter to Robert Ask, of Aughton in Yorkshire, Esq; and likewise had posterity, now extinct; so that the seniority of blood, in this family, descended on the progeny of Henry, third son of Sir Richard Skipwith, which Henry took to arms in his youth, and rendered himself famous by many great and glorious actions, as we are informed from a monumental memorial, on a suspended tablet, in the middle isle of the church, at Lambeth in Surrey, where he lies interred, setting forth his descent, from Robert Estotevill, baron of Cotenham, and Knaresborough, and from Eneburga, &c. (as is already mentioned in this account). He was bred in the Netherlands, under the famous general, the old lord Willoughby, and afterwards went captain into Ireland, at the siege of Blackwater, where he did divers good services on the enemy, and at the siege of Kingsale, where he slew a Spanish commander, hand to hand; he was lieutenant-colonel to the earl of Totness, and at the fall by the Spaniards, out of Kingsale, he performed most special service, behaving himself right valiantly in his own person, where he received a wound, in beating the Spaniards out of the fort; for which valiant acts, his general, then lord Mountjoy, and his colonel, the then lord Carew, much prized him: after that remarkable siege, for his signal merit, it pleased Queen Elizabeth to give him the prime honour to build her the fort of Castlemarque, which commanded Kingsale, where, before, he had won renown; she gave him the constableness of that fort, and the ward therein, which was confirmed by King James, who bestowed a pension on him, having sundry times refused the order of knighthood: he was, for his wisdom, made a councillor of state for the province of Munster, being one of the oldest captains in his time, who, continuing loyal to his Prince, had his pension continued by his majesty King Charles, and departed this life March 7, A. D. 1629-30. This Henry, by Margaret, daughter of Richard Fulwar, of Copwood in Suffex, Esq; left issue, William, his only son and heir, who married Elizabeth, daughter and

coheir of Richard Redding, of Harrow on the Hill in Middlesex, Esq; by whom he was father of Fulwar Skipwith, Esq; the first Baronet of this family, so created 22 Car. II. who married twice, first, Dorothy, daughter of Thomas Parker, of Anglesey-Abbey, in Cambridgeshire, Esq; and by her had issue, Humberston, Fulwar, and Elizabeth. His second lady, was Elizabeth, daughter of Edward Skipwith, of Grantham in Lincolnshire, Esq; relict of Sir George Cony, Knt. by this latter marriage he had no issue.

Humberston Skipwith, Esq eldest son of Sir Fulwar, died before him, leaving issue by his wife, Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Sir George Cony, Knt. (by Elizabeth, daughter of Edward Skipwith, Esq;) one son, Sir Fulwar, and one daughter, Elizabeth, married to William, lord Craven.

Sir Fulwar Skipwith, Bart. successor to his grandfather in dignity and estate, was representative in parliament for the city of Coventry, 1713, and married Mary, daughter of Sir Francis Dashwood, of Wickham in Bucks, Bart. by whom he had five sons and three daughters; Sir Francis, his successor; Fulwar, and William, who died infants; Fulwar-Humberston; and, George, who died Dec. 1729, æt. 11. Mary, who died an infant, Elizabeth and Mary. Sir Fulwar, died at the Bath, May, 1728, (and his lady, Aug. 1738), and was succeeded in dignity and estate by his eldest son,

Sir Francis Skipwith, the present Baronet, who married, 1734, Ursula, youngest daughter of Thomas Cartwright, of Aynho, in the county of Northampton, Esq; one of the knights of the shire for that county, by whom he hath issue, three sons, Thomas-George, Francis-William, both living; and Fulwar, who died in 1747. In 1740, Sir Francis had likewise a daughter, who lived but a few days.

SEAT. At Newbold-Hall, in Warwickshire.

239. CROFT, of Croft-Castle, Herefordshire.

Created BARONET, Nov. 18, 1671.

THIS is a family of very great antiquity, having received the honour of knighthood, for many generations, successively, for their faithful services to the crown, and have inherited their ancient and noble seat of Croft-Castle, before the Norman invasion. It will not be from the purpose here to transcribe a passage, out of Mr. Camden's Britannia, in his description of Herefordshire, as translated by bishop Gibson, where, giving an account of Richard's castle, he adds, 'and not far off, stands Croft-castle, belonging to the famous, and very ancient, and knightly family of the Crofts,' of which was Sir Richard Croft, who was sheriff of Herefordshire, 10 and 11 Edw. IV. and after the battle of Tewksbury, took Prince Edward, the son of King Henry VI. prisoner: but upon a proclamation of a great reward, and a promise of safety for the Prince's person, Sir Richard, nothing suspecting the King's promise, brought forth his royal prisoner, who was presently murdered, in King Edward IV's presence, by his brothers, the dukes of Clarence and Gloucester.'

A descendant of which family, was Sir Hugh Croft, who had issue, William, father of Sir Richard, whose son, John, was father of William, who had issue, Sir Richard Croft, Knt. who married Eleanor, daughter to Edmund Cornwall, baron of Burford, by whom he had issue, Sir Edward Croft, Knt. who served the office of high sheriff of the county of Hereford, temp. Hen. VIII. as several of his ancestors had done before him: his wife was Joyce, daughter and heir of Walter Scull, Esq; and had issue, Richard, who, by Catherine, daughter of Richard Herbert, of Montgomery, Esq; (of the Pembroke family), had one son, Sir James; which Sir James Croft, Knt. was a privy-counsellor, and comptroller of the household to Queen Elizabeth, and some time lord-deputy of Ireland. 'This worthy knight (says Fuller) was accused for complying with Wyat, and, notwithstanding his most solemn oath, in his own defence, he was imprisoned by Queen Mary, convicted of high-treason, restored by Queen Elizabeth, and made governor of the town and castle of Barwick. At the siege of Leith, he behaved himself most valiantly in repelling the foe, and yet, when in a second assault, the English were worsted, the blame fell upon him (as if he favoured the French, and maligned the lord Gray, then general), so that he was outed of his government of Barwick. Yet he fell not so into the Queen's disfavour, but that she continued him privy-counsellor, and made him comptroller of her household. He was an able man to manage war, and yet an earnest desirer and advancer of peace, being one of the commissioners, in 1588, to treat with the Spaniards, in Flanders.' This Sir James, by Alice, daughter of Richard Warwick, Esq; had Edward Croft, Esq; who died in his father's life-time, leaving issue, by Anne, daughter and heir to ——— Browne, Esq; Sir Herbert Croft, Knt. 'who ' was educated in academicals, in Christ-church; Oxon, as ' his son, Sir William Croft, used to say, though his name

 ' occurs not in the Matricula, which makes me think that his ' stay was short there. Afterwards, he married, was a parlia' ment man, in the latter end of Queen Elizabeth; and in ' 1603, received the honour of knighthood from King James I.
 ' at Theobalds, being then a person of repute in his country.
 ' At length, being full weary of the vanities and fooleries of ' this world, did retire to Doway in Flanders, and there was,
 ' by letters of confraternity, dated in the beginning of Febru' ary, 1617, received among the brethren, in the college of ' English Benedictines; who appointing him a little cell, ' within the ambits of their house, he spent the remainder of ' his days therein in strict devotion, and religious exercise.
 ' After his settlement there, he wrote letters persuasive to his ' wife and children in England, to take upon them the catho' lic religion.—Arguments to shew, that the Romish church is ' a true church, written against Dr. R. Feild, his four books of ' the church;—A reply to the answer of his daughter, M. C.
 ' (Mary Croft) which she made to a paper of his, sent to her,
 ' concerning the Romish church: at the end of it, is a little ' thing, entitled, The four ministers of Charinton gagged by ' four propositions, made to the lord baron of Espicelliere, of ' the religion pretended; and presented, on St. Martin's day, to ' Du Moulin, in his house, and since, to Durand and Mestrezat.
 ' All these were published by Sir Herbert Croft, at ' Doway, about 1619, in twelves, containing 255 pages.
 ' There were but eight copies printed, viz. one for himself,
 ' now in the library of the English Benedictines, at that place,
 ' formerly sent to me, (A. Wood) by a brother of that order,
 ' (purposely to be perused for a time, and then to be returned)
 ' who, for religion sake, and in contempt of the world, hath ' denied the inheritance of an estate of at least 3000l. per ann.
 ' Another copy was printed for Sir Herbert's wife, and the rest ' of his children, with a short epistle before them, beginning
 ' thus; I would have you know, that although this ensuing discourse
 ' cometh to you in print, &c. The beginning of the book itself,
 ' is this; When it had pleased Almighty God, in his great mercy,
 ' even after above 53 years of my mispent life, &c. At length,
 ' after he had macerated his body with fasting, hardship, and ' devotion, surrendered up his pious soul to the Almighty, on
 ' the tenth of April, 1622, and was buried in the chapel, or ' church, belonging to the said English Benedictines at Doway.

He had three sons; 1. Sir William; 2. Sir James, both knights; 3. Herbert Croft, D. D. besides daughters, of which, Elizabeth, married Sir Thomas Cave, of Stanford in Northamptonshire, Knt. ‘ This Herbert, third son of Sir Herbert Croft, Knt. who was grandson of Sir James Croft, Knt. sometime comptroller of the house to Queen Elizabeth, and of her privy-council, and he, great grandson to Sir Richard Croft, Knt. treasurer of the house to King Edward IV. all of Croft-castle in Herefordshire, the possession of their ancient family, (mostly knights) who have there for a long time flourished, in great and good esteem, was born at Great-Milton, near Thame in Oxfordshire, in the manor-house, near the church, belonging then to Sir William Green, on the eighteenth day of October, anno 1603, his mother named Mary, (daughter and coheir of Anthony Bourne, of Holt-castle in Worcestershire, Esq;) being then in her journey towards London; educated in grammar-learning, in Herefordshire, and afterwards sent to the university of Oxford, about 1616, but to what house of learning therein, unless Christ-church, I cannot tell, for I do not find him then matriculated. Soon after, his father sent for him to Doway in Flanders, where he then was, and sent him to the English college of jesuits at St. Omers, where, by the authority of his father, and especially by the persuasions of father John Floyde, a jesuit, (the same who wrote himself, Daniel à Jesu, and fell foully upon William Chillingworth, for his apostacy, (as he calls it) that is, for his returning to the church of England) he was brought to the Roman obedience, and made a perfect Catholic. And although his father was a good man, yet he counselled his son, though bred among jesuits, not to turn jesuit; yet, notwithstanding, some of the society found out a way to draw him unto them, (as an author of little or no note, tells us) which was a subtle and crafty one indeed, viz. to entice him to take the spiritual exercise, which he refused not, being a matter of honour amongst the Catholics to enter into, &c. After he had ran through the several classes of logic and philosophy, his father sent him into England, to do for him some business relating to his estate, but before he returned, his father died; whereupon, he travelled into several countries, promoted his studies in the sacred faculty, and became many ways accomplished, whether you took him as a gentleman, or as a scholar. At length, returning into England, to look after his concerns, he was, by the prevailing advice and arguments of Dr. Thomas Morton, bishop of Durham, reconciled to the church of England. Soon after, upon the desire of Dr. Laud, he went to Oxon, was admitted into Christ-church, and as a member thereof, matriculated in the university. On the twenty-first of November, 1635, he, by his dean, did supplicate, as a student in divinity, in a con-

' vocation then held, that it might be graciously dispensed with ' him, that the ten years time which he had spent in the study ' of divinity, in foreign nations, might be reckoned to him as ' if he had studied in this university, and that after he had per' formed his exercise, requisite by the statutes, for the degree
 ' of batchelor of divinity, he might (though he had not taken
 ' the degree of master, or entered into holy orders in due time)
 ' have his grace proposed in congregation, to be admitted to the ' reading of the epistles of St. Paul, or of the sentences.—This ' being granted, he did perform his exercise very accurately and ' learnedly, as Dr. Thomas Washbourne, sometime preben-
 ' dary of Gloucester, who was one of his opponents, did usually ' report. In 1636, he was admitted to the reading of the sen' tences, that is, to the degree of batchelor of divinity; be' came, about that time, minister of a church in Gloucester-
 ' shire, and rector of Harding in Oxfordshire. In the be' ginning of the year 1639, he was appointed chaplain
 ' to the earl of Northumberland, in the Scotch expedition,
 ' and on the first of August, the same year, he was collated,
 ' (on the resignation of William Townson) to the prebendship
 ' of Minor pars Altaris, in the church of Salisbury. In the ' beginning of the year 1640, he was admitted doctor of divi' nity, being about that time, chaplain to his majesty King
 ' Charles I. who was so well satisfied with his integrity and ' loyalty, that he afterwards entrusted him with his secret com' mands, to several of the great officers in his army, to the ' hazard of his life; and in the same year, he became the eighth
 ' prebend of the seventh stall, in the church of Worcester,
 ' on the death of John Charlet. In the year 1641, July 10,
 ' he was installed canon of Windsor, in the place of Dr. John
 ' Pocklington, then lately deprived of all his spiritualities, by ' order of parliament; and in the latter end of 1644, he became ' dean of Hereford, in the place of Dr. Jonathan Browne, de' ceased.' Soon after the taking of Hereford, this excellent ' doctor, preaching at the cathedral there, inveighed boldly and ' sharply against sacrilege; at which some of the officers then pre' sent, (so little doth a guilty conscience need no accuser) began ' to mutter amongst themselves, and a guard of musqueteers in ' the church, were preparing their pieces, and asked whether they ' should fire at him; but colonel Birch, the governor, prevented ' them. The confusions at that time were such, that he received ' little or no profit from his deanery, betwixt his nomination, and
 ' the dissolution of the cathedrals; and afterwards, must have ' been constrained to have lived upon a narrow fortune, had not ' the fair estate of the family devolved upon him, by the death of ' his brother, Sir William Croft. During great part (at least) of the usurpation, he resided with Sir Rowland Berkley, at Cotheridge in Worcester-shire. ‘ In which condition remaining, till his Majesty’s return to his kingdoms, anno 1660, he was then restored to his deanery, and other spiritualities which before he had left. On the twenty-seventh of December, 1661, he was nominated by his Majesty, bishop of Hereford, in the place of Dr. Nicholas Monke, deceased; to which see being consecrated, on the ninth of February following, (Shrove-Sunday) in the archbishop’s chapel at Lambeth, (Dr. Jasper Mayne, of Christ-church, preaching then the consecration-sermon) he became afterwards much venerated by the gentry and commonality of that diocese, for his learning, doctrine, conversation, and good hospitality; which rendered him a person, in their esteem, fitted and set apart by God, for his honourable and sacred function. Which preferment, being in his time scarce worth 800l. per ann. yet it being the country of his ancestors, and of very many of his relations, he was so well satisfied with it, that he refused the offer of greater preferment, by King Charles II. as it was well known by most of his contemporaries at court, where he served as dean of his Majesty’s chapel-royal, from the eighth of February, 1667, to the beginning of March, 1669; when, being weary of a court-life, or, (in truth) finding but little good effect of his pious endeavours there, he retired to his episcopal see, where, by his strict rules in admission to holy orders, especially that of priesthood, and in conferring the dignities of the church, he dissatisfied many more of the clergy than he obliged, for no solicitations could prevail with him to admit any to be prebendaries of that church, but such that lived within his diocese, that the duty of the church might not be neglected, and the small livings augmented. He would often please himself with the effecting this pious design, of having all the dignitaries and prebendaries to live within his own diocese, (which he lived to accomplish) hoping that this example would influence his successors to take the same course. He made but little publick shew of his charity, as many that are truly prudent and pious do not, but they that were privy to his concerns, know it was very ample, in augmenting small livings, and relieving many in distress, besides a weekly dole to sixty poor people, at his palace gate in Hereford, whether resident there, or not; for, his country-house being situated in the center of his diocese, he spent much time there, where he was no less charitable, in relieving the poor, and visiting the sick, in the neighbouring parishes, as it is very well known. He was very friendly and loving to his clergy, a tender father, and the best of husbands: and, as for his learning, which was not common, the books that he wrote do shew, that he was not altogether conversant in divinity, but other parts of learning.' He was the author of, Naked Truth, or, the True State of the Primitive Church, which made a great noise at the time of its publication; he likewise published several sermons on various occasions; also, Animadversions on Burnet's Theory of the Earth, and other pieces. 'At length, after this most worthy and godly bishop had lived to a great age, partly in adversity, but mostly in prosperity, he surrendered up his soul to the Almighty, in his palace at Hereford, on the eighteenth day of May, 1691, whereupon his body was buried in the cathedral church there, and Dr. Gilbert Ironside, bishop of Bristol, was soon after translated to the said see of Hereford. In the preface to the last will and testament of the said bishop Croft, I find these words: And I do in all humble manner most heartily thank God, that he hath been most graciously pleased, by the light of his most holy gospel, to recall me from the darkness of popish errors, and gross superstitions, into which I was seduced in my younger days, and to settle me again in the true ancient catholic and apostolic faith, professed by our church of England, in which I was born and baptized, and in which I joyfully die, with full assurance, by the merits of my most blessed Saviour, Jesus, to enjoy eternal happiness, &c. By his said will, he settled 1200l. and the product thereof, for ever, for several charitable uses, as therein are directed; of which, 14l. per ann. he appointed for an augmentation to the church of Yarpoll in Herefordshire; upon which also he settled lands to the value of 10l. per ann. and upon the church of Croft, in the said county, 12l. per ann. for ever. All which were constantly paid by him for several years aforegoing. He had three brothers, named William, James, and Robert, who all lived to serve their King and country, in the wars during the reign of King Charles I. under whom they all served as colonels, and for their stout and faithful service, the two eldest were knighted by him. The first (Sir William) was killed at Stoke-castle, near Ludlow in Shropshire, on the ninth of June, 1645, and the second, Sir James, lived to the year 1659, after he had suffered much for his loyalty to his King.' The bishop married Anne, daughter of Dr. Jonathan Browne, dean of Hereford, (his predecessor) and left behind him only one son, Herbert, of whom hereafter: Mr. Browne Willis, in his Survey of Cathedrals, gives this character of him: 'He was a man of exemplary charity, and had so strict a regard to his cathedral, that no solicitations could ever prevail on him to admit any person whatever to be prebendary thereof, but what lived within his diocese;

‘ cefe; which having accomplished and compleated himself, by ‘ introducing a set of prebendaries, all of his diocese, he hoped ‘ his successors would follow his example; which certainly,
 ‘ had they done, would have been of extraordinary benefit, and ‘ beyond any thing kept up the dignity of the mother church,
 ‘ by spreading the interest of its members, to influence the gen‘ try, &c. to support the fabrick, as well as encouraged the ‘ clergy to live hospitably, and exemplary in their cures, to ‘ recommend themselves to their bishops to prefer them. He ‘ died at Hereford, May 18, 1691, and was buried, May 28,
 ‘ following, in his own cathedral.’

Herbert Croft, Esq; only son and heir to the bishop, was educated in Magdalen college, Oxford, and was advanced to the dignity of a baronet, 24 Car. II. being a gentleman of good parts and judgment, and a zealous protestant, and of good esteem in his own country, which he represented in parliament, 1678, as also in several parliaments in the reign of King William; and married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Archer, of Umberslade in Warwickshire, Esq; and had issue by her, several sons and daughters; Elizabeth, married to Acton Moseley, of the Mear in Staffordshire, Esq; Margaret, to Richard Oakley, of Oakley in Shropshire, Esq; and Frances, to Robert Dyer, of Aberglasney in Carmarthenshire, Esq. Sir Herbert died 1720, and was succeeded by his only surviving son,

Sir Archer Croft, Bart. who served for the borough of Leominster in Herefordshire, in the sixth parliament, and for Beeralston in Devonshire, in the parliament which was summoned to meet, Nov. 28, 1727; and, upon his appointment as one of the commissioners of trade and plantations, in 1730, was re-elected. He married, June 10, 1723, Frances, daughter of the honourable brigadier-general Waring, by whom he had issue three sons; 1. Sir Archer, his successor; 2. Herbert, who married the sole daughter and heir of Richard Young, of Midhurst in Sussex, Esq; 3. John; and a daughter, Elizabeth, who married, first, a Mr. Brookes, and, secondly, to the reverend Mr. Tompson, of Kennington. Sir Archer died Dec. 10, 1753, when the title descended to,

Sir Archer Croft, his eldest son, who is the present baronet, and one of the vice-presidents of the Asylum. He married, April 24, 1759, the daughter of William Cooper, Esq; one of the clerks to the right honourable house of lords, and had a daughter, born March 4, 1761.

SEAT. Croft-Castle in Herefordshire.

240. ST. AUBYN, of Clowance, Cornwall.

Created BARONET, Dec. 11, 1671.

LELAND says, St. Albin came out of Britany; and that there is another house of St. Albyn's in Somersetshire, where this family were primitively seated; and, St. Aubin du Cormier, (Fanum S. Albini, V. Moreri) is a town in Britany, so called, from St. Aubin, who was a saint and bishop of France, and not from St. Alban, the protomartyr of England.

An. 1 Edw. I. John de St. Aubyn, was witness to a charter of Gregory, son of Gilbert de Southole, of lands, to Philip, son of Gilbert; and probably, of as high antiquity, was, Walter de St. Albino, a witness to a charter, sans date, of Thomas Stabescot, and others, of lands in Southole. In ann. 31 Edw. I. upon an assessment of scutage, for the county of Devon, Isabel de St. Albin, held in Paracombe, half a knight's fee, also she held Huberton, at half a knight's fee, of the honour of Huberton. The heirs of Gilbert de St. Albin, held in Mattingho, two parts of a fee, of Braneis; and Mauger de St. Albino, held in Churchill, half a knight's fee, of Blagdon, and in Little Bray, half a knight's fee, of the honour of Barnstaple; the fourth part of a knight's fee, in Lobbe, of Plimpton; and in Churchill, half a knight's fee, of Dartington: Mauger, held also three parts of a fee in Kylweton, of Barnstaple, afterwards possessed by John de Penrifs; and half a knight's fee in Pideknill, Gratham, Spreyton, and Hele, of Barnstaple, possessed afterwards by John de Vautort, in the book intituled, Chivarton: Eleanor, the wife of Ralph Blomnister, June 22, 1341, is called daughter of Mauger St. Aubyn, Knt. de villa de St. Aubyn; cotemporary with Mauger, was Philip de St. Albino, both of them being witnesses to a charter of Reginald de Clifford, to John de Vautort; and Anne, his wife, and stiled therein, together with Hugh Courtney, Domini. And not long after, Baldwin de St. Albin, of St. Aubyn, paid for half a knight's fee in Parracombe, held of Barnstaple, which the heirs of Gilbert de St. Albyn, formerly held.

Anno 11 Edw. III. John de St. Albino, was a witness to a charter of John de Champernon, likewise to a charter of Ellen, daughter and heir of William Chamberlayne, of lands in Ywifford; to John Bampfild, (he was afterwards called, Sir John de St. Aubyn) whose wife was, Joan, daughter to Sir James Chuddeleigh. She living 10 Rich. II. as mentioned in a deed of Sir James, her father, and married, secondly, to Philip de Brien. But this John, was son and heir of Thomas de St. Aubyn, chivaler, and his daughter, (viz. of John) Joan, died Aug. 12, 1358, having been the wife of Aches Devick.

From Guy de St. Aubyn, the line of this ancient family is more perspicuous, between whom, and Alice de Knovile, late wife to Sir John Knovile, chivaler, by agreement, (dated May 3, 13 Edward, son of King Edward) the said Guy was to marry Eleanor, one of the daughters and heirs of the said John, when she should be of age dowable, and to receive lands, &c. and that the said Guy was to enfeoffe one or two more certain persons, at the pleasure of the said parties, of all his lands of inheritance, or purchase, in the realms of England, dated at Donuden in Somersetsshire, the day aforesaid; but whether it had effect, I am not certain; for, anno 6 Edw. III. I find that to one of that name, and to Margaret, his wife, and their heirs, John, the son of Adam de Langford, released lands in Boracots, and Boradoner. She is elsewhere called Margery, and both were living 6 Edw. III.

Guy, son and heir to him, I presume, was another Guy St. Aubyn, who had in marriage, Alice, daughter and coheir to Sir Richard Serjeaux, Knt. about the time of Richard II. which, after Guy's death, enjoying by an assignment in dower, the manors of Argalles, Trewynyan, and Broungolow, she brought to her second husband, Richard, earl of Oxford, who, in her right, was seized thereof before his death, which happened anno 4 Hen. V. leaving her again a widow.

To him succeeded, John St. Aubyn, Esq; who was knight of the shire for the county of Devon, and died not long after, viz. 7 Hen. V. He died, leaving only two daughters, his coheirs, which were, Joan and Margaret; the first married to Otes Bodrugan, and the other, to Reginald Trethurf, Esqrs.

Another son of Guy, and brother to John, was, Geffry St. Aubyn, anno 22 Rich. II. high-sheriff of Cornwall, and living 1 Hen. IV. from whence, downwards, we look upon this family as Cornish. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Piers Kemyel, of Clowance in Cornwall, (and of Sybill, his wife, daughter and coheir to Richard Hillogan) and left issue, a son,

Geffry, who enjoyed his father's inheritance, anno .5 Hen. VI. and anno 7 Hen. VI. together with Sir John Trelawney, witnessed a charter of Sir John Arundel, to his son, Reinfrid Arundel, and likewise, that year witnessed a feoffment made by Thomas Carminow, to the prior of Launceston, and others; anno 10 Hen. VI. he is written of Clowance, (at the same time, Peter St. Aubyn, Gent. so denominated) and having married Alice, daughter and coheir of John Tremere, left issue by her, Thomas, his son and heir.

Which Thomas flourished, anno 3 Edw. IV. and married Matilda, second daughter and coheir to John Trenowith, of Fentongalleth in Cornwall, Esq.

Their son and heir was, another Thomas, who was high-sheriff of Cornwall, 37 Hen. VIII. and had issue by Mary, his wife, daughter to Sir Thomas Grenville, of Stow in Cornwall, Knt. a daughter, Anne, wife to John Moyle, Esq; and John.

Which John St. Aubyn, Esq; was high-sheriff of his county, 9 Eliz. and, by Blanch, his wife, daughter and coheir to Thomas Whittington, Esq; had issue, Thomas. The said Blanch died Oct. 13, 17 Hen. VIII.

Thomas, his son and heir, succeeded him, and was living, very aged, 1620, and having had to wife, Zenobia, daughter to John Mallet, of Woolley in Devonshire, Esq; left issue by her two sons, John and Thomas, of Helston. Mr. Carew, in his Survey of Cornwall, speaking of Clowance, says, ‘ is the possession and dwelling of M. Saintabin, whose very name, (besides the conquest roll) deduceth his first ancestours out of Fraunce. His grandfather married Greinvile; his father, one of Whittington’s coheirs; which later couple, in a long and peaceable date of yeeres, exercised a kinde, liberal, and never discontinued hospitality. Himself took to wife, the daughter of Mallet, and with ripe knowledge, and sound judgment, dischargeth the place which he beareth in his countrey.’

John St. Aubyn, Esq; the eldest son and heir, was aged ten years, 1620. In 10 Car. I. he was high-sheriff of Cornwall; and having married Catherine, daughter to John Arundel, of Trerice, Esq; had issue five sons; 1. John; 2. Thomas, a colonel for the King, in the civil wars; 3. William; 4. Henry, rector of Crowan; and 5. Nicholas: also six daughters; Gertrude, married to — Pendarvis, of Restro in Cornwall, Esq; Anne, Zenobia, Blanch, Catherine, and Mary.

John St. Aubyn, of Clowance, Esq; the eldest son and heir, was a representative in parliament for Helston, in 1688 and 1690, and for St. Michael in Cornwall, 31 Car. II. (as several of his ancestors had been, for other boroughs in this county. Vide Notitia Parliamentaria) and by Catherine, daughter and heir of Francis Godolphin, of Trevenege in Cornwall, Esq; had four sons; 1. John; 2. Francis, who married a daughter and coheir of Francis Arundel, of Tregur in Cornwall, Esq; 3. Guy; 4. Gorrigan; besides daughters, of which, one married — Martin, and another, — Harris, of Hayne in Devonshire, Esqrs.

John St. Aubyn, Esq; his eldest son and heir, was advanced to the dignity of a baronet, 24 Car. II. and by Anne, his wife, daughter and coheir of James Jenkyn, of Treffeny, (or Trekinen) in Cornwall, Esq; had Sir John, his successor; and a daughter, Anne, married, first, to George Killebrew, Esq; son and heir of Sir Peter Killebrew, of Arwenack in Cornwall, Bart. and secondly, to Thomas Goslyn, of Westminster, Esq; master of the signet-office.

Sir John St. Aubyn, his son and successor, married Mary, daughter and coheir of ----- De la Hay, of St. Margaret's, Westminster, Esq; and had issue, several sons and daughters.

Sir John St. Aubyn, Bart. his eldest son, was elected one of the knights of the shire for Cornwall, in the last parliament of King George I. summoned to meet, May 10, 1722, for which county he has served till his death; he married, 1725, Catherine, daughter of Sir Nicholas Morice, of Werrington in Devonshire, Bart. by which lady, who died June 16, 1740, he had issue,

244. CLARGES, of St. Martin's in the Fields, Middlesex.

Created BARONET, Oct. 30, 1674.

THIS family is descended from De Glarges, in the province of Hanault, of which was, Thomas de Glarges, who had issue, John de Glarges, who came into England in the reign of King Edward IV. John de Glarges, his only son, had issue, Robert de Glarges, his only son, who lived and died in the university of Cambridge; he had two sons, John and Robert, who died unmarried, and three daughters.

John de Glarges, or Clarges, the eldest son, by Anne, his wife, daughter of ----- Leaver, had issue a son, Sir Thomas Clarges, Knt. and a daughter, Anne, married to George Monk, duke of Albemarle, that valiant and experienced commander, who crowned all his former actions, by becoming so instrumental in the glorious restoration of King Charles II. to his just rights; and was father of Christopher, the late duke of Albemarle, knight of the most noble order of the garter.

This Sir Thomas Clarges, Knt. his son and heir, was one of the chief persons concerned in bringing about the restoration; therefore, we shall here give some account of him, from that edition (of 1670) of Sir Richard Baker's Chronicle, 'wherein the first thirteen years of King Charles II. as also the occurrences of his restoration, by George, duke of Albemarle, are added, and said to be extracted from his excellency's papers, &c.' which, says Ant. Wood, as I have been informed, were for the most part done by Sir Thomas Clarges, and put into the hands of Mr. Philips, the editor.

'Upon Richard Cromwell's advancement to the protectorship, he sent for Mr. Thomas Clarges, brother-in-law to general Monk, to prevail with him to go immediately into Scotland, with his letters to Monk, to know how he stood affected to his advancement: this Clarges was pitched upon as one who had great interest in the general, and had been lately chosen, by his procurement, upon the death of one Rowe, to be agent for the armies, and council of Scotland and Ireland, an employment of good value; whereby he became acquainted with the affections of the officers of the army, in England, Scotland, and Ireland; and although, at first, his having been in the late King's service, at Oxford, made them at Whitehall unwilling to employ him, yet, he was esteemed of a moderate behaviour, and had so demeaned himself in the pretended parliament, in the year 1656, by his acting against the kingship of Cromwell, that they would not then disoblige him, lest it should seem for that reason; besides, all of the contrary faction (of which were the chief of the army), professed a great esteem of him, not so much in respect of himself, but because it was believed Monk engaged him in those councils; and the opinion of that, contributed more than any thing to divert Oliver from accepting the crown; Clarges willingly accepted of this occasion to go to General Monk, to be able to inform himself particularly of his inclinations: for altho' he had a relation to him by marriage, the General's so far distant residence, gave him little opportunity of other converse with him, than by letters. In Scotland, by private advice of some of the officers of the army, things were so prepared, that when Mr. Clarges came thither, he found them all prepossessed, and doubting one the other, they liked, or seemed not to dislike all that was done at London; but the General himself, and he, had many secret conferences, and the General then declared himself weary of the uncertain condition wherein he found both himself and the nation intralled by the over-ruling tyranny of the soldiers (who made themselves a divided interest from the rest of the people), so that they consulted of a paper to be drawn up, to be presented to the new protector, the heads whereof were, to advise him to suppress the division in the church, by countenancing a sober and orthodox ministry, to permit no councils of officers, and to model, and put the army into the hands of the qualified nobility and gentry of the nation (such as had never been against the parliament, to prevent the jealousy of the action), as such whom the people might best trust: from this conference, which was managed by both with such a reservedness, Clarges began to perceive the General was, in his principles, well fixed to restore his country to its ancient government, whenever a fit occasion should present itself for the attempt. With this paper, and a letter of approbation of the choice of the protector, Clarges returned to London to him; the letter he delivered publicly, but the paper was privately communicated, and well liked of by him, and the prosecution of the advice thereof, in his attempts to model the army, was the main cause of all the divisions which happened in them, and the happy consequences thereof.

A little after this, about the time of Sir George Booth's rising, Mr. Nicholas Monk, a reverend Minister, a person of most firm loyalty to the King, and only brother to General Monk, came to London, in his way to Scotland, from Sir Hugh Pollard, Sir Thomas Stukely, and others, his majesty's friends, in the west of England. His business was to engage his his brother, in his majesty's cause, to promote the present design, being directed to receive further instructions from Sir J. Greenvil. He came directly to Mr. Clarges, before he saw any one, and communicated his business to him, and afterwards to Greenvil, who much encouraged his undertaking; Greenvil earnestly pressed to have Clarges engaged, and Mr. Monk moved it to him, with a promise of great advantage from his majesty, upon his restoration; Clarges replied, That he needed not these temptations to oblige him to his duty; and refused to have any discourse concerning those matters, with Sir John Greenvil, at that time, well knowing, that the least jealousy of his actions from those in power, might make him useless for the future service, which could not be done without him.

And as all the ways to Scotland were obstructed, Clarges took care to provide a frigate for the carrying of Mr. Nicholas Monk thither, and conveyed him safe on shipboard, fully instructed how to manage his negociation with caution, and to communicate with none but the General, except Dr. Samuel Barrow, physician to the army, a very discreet gentleman, and Mr. John Price, his chaplain; the first of which was ejected out of Trinity college in Cambridge, for his affection to his majesty; and the latter, the son of a sequestered minister, always educated in principles of loyalty, a good scholar, and an honest man, both recommended by Clarges to the General, at his first going into Scotland, to be near his person.

Soon after this, letters came from General Monk, in Scotland, to Fleetwood and Lambert, wherein he complained of their violation of faith to the parliament, and declared his resolution to endeavour to restore them, against all opposition: on this, Fleetwood, Lambert, Desborow, and others, immediately met at Whitehall, in much confusion, and about twelve at night, they sent Major Haynes, to desire Mr. Clarges, to come to them, who, when he came, after some questions of his knowledge of the General's proceedings (to which he made very wary answers), they desired him to go to Scotland, with Colonel Talbot (whose regiment was then at Edinburgh), to prevail with Monk, for a treaty of mediation, to prevent effusion of blood; they said, they chose Talbot, to accompany him, because he was very grateful to the General.

Clarges, was very glad of this opportunity to get away (for he feared to be much worse treated), and they were so pressing for his departure, that they allowed him but three hours preparation for his journey.

In the mean time, Monk, in Scotland, had by an express from Clarges, which came to him the 17th of October, received ex-

‘ act information of the interruption of the parliament, and at ‘ several times he had notice of all their proceedings, which made ‘ him expect no less, and gave him time to prepare for what ‘ happened.

‘ Colonel Talbot and Mr. Clarges, came not to Edinburgh, ‘ till Nov. 2, they were both well received by Monk, but espe‘ cially Clarges, his brother-in-law, with whom he had that ‘ night much conference in private ; the General wondered that ‘ Fleetwood and Lambert would send him, and thought it a ‘ good omen to his success, that he had him to assist his designs :
 ‘ Clarges frankly asked him, what was the true end he aimed at
 ‘ in this enterprize ; telling him, that it was impossible for him ‘ to be ever trusted, after this rupture, if he patched up a peace ‘ with the English army, and withal acquainting him, that he ‘ observed a great consternation in the officers and soldiers, as he ‘ passed, and that he believed, many of them would fall off to ‘ him.

‘ The General (tho’ the most reserved man then living) was ‘ in some trouble to be pressed to discover his intentions, and at ‘ that time, opened himself no further, than to let him know, he ‘ was resolved to endeavour to free his native country from the ‘ slavery it was under, and to effect it, he thought, one of the ‘ best expedients would be, to restore the parliament, but in their ‘ admission to sit (if it were by his arms), he would make no ‘ difference betwixt them ; but let in, as well the secluded mem‘ bers, as others : having said this, he conjured Clarges to se‘ crecy, being very sensible, that the jealousy the army had of ‘ him was so great (it having been often flung at him by some of ‘ his ill wishers, that the King was at the bottom of his designs), ‘ that all he could contrive, would be little enough to beget a ‘ confidence, even in his own party, to engage with him.

‘ Monk’s army was in very good condition, tho’ inferior to ‘ Lambert’s, but better paid ; Monk having 70,000*l.* in bank,
 ‘ and Clarges acquainted the General, the great straits and diffi‘ culties Lambert’s army were in ; however, Monk, to disguise
 ‘ his real intentions, appointed commissioners to treat with Lam‘ bert and Fleetwood ; mean time, Major-general Morgan came ‘ from York to General Monk at Edinburgh, and assured him,
 ‘ that lord Fairfax, and others of note in that country, approved
 ‘ of his designs in general, and that he had brought a letter from ‘ lord Fairfax, purporting, That he, and many others of good inter- ‘ est in Yorkshire, were willing to join with the General, but they ‘ disapproved of his declaration, which was restrained to the restoring
 ‘ of that part of the parliament only, which sat after the seclusion of ‘ the rest, and was filled with many protestations for the asserting of
 ‘ no other than a commonwealth government. To this the General answered; That Clarges could witness his intentions in those particulars, that what was printed in his name, was not (at that conjuncture) to be regarded as the result of his own reason, because his writings were drawn up by other hands; and till his affairs had a firmer consistency, and he more power in his hands, it was unreasonable for him to contradict what was done, since all that was writ could scarce prevail with the army to believe he had not a design to set up the King in his government.

The conclusion of this was, to send Clarges, who was consulted in the whole business, to Fairfax, Rossiter, and several others, to engage; it being thought expedient, at the same time, to employ all possible care to amuse the parliament and army, till the General could get a power in his hands to justify other councils; Clarges was dispatched to Bowles, a minister at York, a man eminent in those parts, with a letter of credit to him, to cause a belief in him of what he should acquaint him, on the part of the General; and another letter, to the same purpose, to my lord Fairfax, from whom he was to have an address to Rossiter, in Lincolnshire.

Fleetwood could not conceal his fears of what was doing at Edinburgh, and the same week that Talbot and Clarges were sent to endeavour a reconciliation, he sent captain Dean, and soon after, Mr. Caryll, the minister, with colonel Goff and Whaley, on the same errand, and Mr. Hammond, and Mr. Barker, were deputed by the independent congregations in London, to mediate a peace between the two armies.

Mean while, Clarges and Talbot, took their leaves of the General to return home: when they came to York, Lambert complained that Major-general Morgan had deserted him, and said, he looked upon it as a kind of breach of faith, but was quickly better satisfied by Clarges, for he assured him, he heard him move General Monk to a peace with him: but being major-general of that army, he could not refuse his duty.

Upon Clarges's arrival at York, he secretly conferred with Bowles, to whom he delivered the letter of credit, and Bowles desired to be fully informed of the General's intentions, and was, by Clarges, so well satisfied with them, that he undertook to negotiate with lord Fairfax, colonel Bethel, and several others, in Monk's behalf; and desired Clarges to stay in York till he went to confer with lord Fairfax, at Nun-Appleton, that he might know what advice to send to Scotland, which he accordingly did, and, at his return, acquainted him, that Fairfax would rise by the middle of January, and that he might be confident, Bethel and Smithson would join with him, who were men of good interest, and well beloved of the soldiers of Lambert's army; on the other side, Bowles pressed Clarges, to know

‘ know what expectations the General had from other places, and was, by Clarges, informed, and was satisfied.

‘ Then Clarges set out for Lincolnshire, to pursue his negotiations ; but about Doncaster, he had so grievous a fall from his horse, as he was riding post, that his life was despaired of ; but after a little stay, he was brought to a village between Tuxford, and Newark, where he was forced to stay ten days ere he was able to travel. Nevertheless, he sent expresses several ways, and, by the means of one Bristow, a confidant of colonel Rossiter's, he had an opportunity to send to him, and had his answer, That he would join with Fairfax, and do what he should direct.

‘ After this, Clarges came to London, and dealt with many of the council of state, to assist Monk's designs against Lambert, and brought many over to support him : tho' others of the council of state met, and drew up an oath of abjuration to King Charles II. which was opposed by the house, and even a third part of them refused to take it, and therefore, were not admitted to sit and act. The leading members of the house sent Scot and Robinson, two of their members, to engage Monk to take this oath, as soon as he came to London, before he took his place in the council of state. Clarges, having timely notice of their intentions, was resolved to be with the General before them, and went and met him at Nottingham, and there communicated to him in what condition affairs stood at London, what regiments and officers were well affected to him, and what were not ; and that the major part of the parliament were against the oath of abjuration, and therefore, in all his affairs, he was to apply to them ; and after settling how his troops were to be quartered and dispersed in London, Clarges drew a letter to the parliament, which the General signed, and sent from St. Albans.

‘ At this time, the city refused to pay any taxes till the house was filled with an equal number of representatives, and they, in common council, ran very high in their debates about the government ; on this the council of state ordered General Monk to go into London the next morning, with good part of his army, and seize eleven of the most active of the common council, and commit them to the Tower, and also to pull down the posts and chains, and take down the gates and portcullices of the city, and quarter his soldiers there, till they were reduced to obedience ; the General was surprised at this command, and obeyed their orders, though unwillingly, for he knew he must either do it, or quit his command. The city was much alarmed at this proceeding, and the lord-mayor, aldermen, and several of the chief citizens, applied themselves * to him to moderate his actions ; all the city seemed as people

 * confounded, and several of the General's own officers were so
 * troubled, that they came to offer up their commissions, rather * than be employed in such an action : he was sorry he was forced * to it, and told several of them privately his dislike to it, and
 * conjured them to continue their confidence in him, and exe* cute what he had given them in charge, for that probably
 * some good effects would ensue from it ; in the evening, Clarges
 * went privately to the General, and represented the ill conse* quences of his proceedings in London, and advised him how, and
 * in what manner, to recover the good opinion of the city ; the * General was sensible of the contempt they at Westminster had * put upon him, and resolved to do something to regain their * esteem. Whereupon Clarges was sent to the lord-mayor, to * dispose him and the city, to have a favourable opinion of Monk
 * and his proceedings ; and that the General would quarter in * the city for their safety. Whereupon, the General marched * to Finsbury, and waited till he heard from Clarges, who, find* ing my lord-mayor very reserved, and averse to the General's
 * coming, being terrified at his actions the day before, had ap* plied himself to alderman Robinson, and some others that he * dare trust, and acquainted them privately, that the General's
 * coming was for the good of the city and the kingdom : upon
 * this, Robinson, at the request of Clarges, goes with him and
 * some other aldermen, to my lord-mayor, to mollify him, but * without effect for the present ; nevertheless Clarges told him,
 * the General was resolved, though he quartered not in the city,
 * at least to be his guest at dinner ; and accordingly he sent to
 * the General, to desire him to march, with his men, to Leaden-
 * hall-street, the lord-mayor's door, which he did, and excused * himself to the city for the late proceedings against them. Soon
 * after, when the army agreed to the sitting of the secluded mem* bers in the house, on certain conditions, Mr. Clarges was one * that was appointed, with others, to treat with the secluded
 * members on that head ; and was the chief that managed the * conference, wherein they agreed on the admitting of them ;
 * when they were restored, Mr. Nicholas Monk, the General's * brother, wrote to Mr. Clarges, to put the General in mind of * sending for Mr. Morrice, as a person that would be of service * to him ; and Mr. Clarges wrote to him, and inclosed a letter * from the General, to desire Mr. Morrice's attendance, who
 * immediately came to town, and was of great service in pro* moting and carrying on the General's affairs, in relation to his * Majesty's interest.

* About this time, the General gave his commission to Mr.
 * Clarges, to be commissary-general of the musters in England,
 * and

and appointed Mr. Morrice governor of Plymouth, and major-general Morgan, to be commander in chief of the army in Scotland. After this, the parliament gave commissary Clarges the Hanaper-office, and tampered with him to persuade the General, rather to take the government upon him, than bring in the King; on which, Clarges acquainted the General, and when the commonwealth faction proposed it to the General himself, he refused it absolutely; and when Okey proposed in the council of officers, to send to the parliament, to oblige them to declare for a free state, and commonwealth, without a King, or house of lords; and if they refused to do it, to take such a remedy as God should put into their hearts, to save the nation from destruction; for if great care was not taken, Charles Stuart would be introduced. To which Mr. Clarges answered, that he saw no cause for those fears, and that if they sent to the parliament in such a manner, they would find no pleasing return from them; for if these men would have been terrified by the army, there would not have been fourteen of them impeached at one time of treason, and two hundred secluded at another; and the first thing they would probably do, upon the receipt of such a message, would be, to dissolve themselves, and then there would be no government; but instead of the single person they were so much afraid of, they must necessarily have recourse to Richard Cromwell, and expose themselves to his revenge, for the indignities they had lately, with so much scorn, put upon him and his family; and as for the General, he said, he knew he would not assume the government, having heard him profess, on occasion of these alterations, he would rather be drawn in pieces with wild horses, than be so treacherous to the nation.

Clarges being so intimate with the General, and in all his secrets, and having great power with him, Mr. Bordeaux, the French ambassador, sent to Clarges, to desire him to move the General, to give him leave to confer with him; on this, Mr. Clarges went to the ambassador, and told him, he would acquaint the General with his desire; but the ambassador, who tried, by all methods, to get out of Mr. Clarges the General's designs, could make nothing of him; Clarges told all that had passed between the ambassador and him to the General and Mr. Morrice; but the General refused to have afterwards any conference with him; but that he might not appear uncivil, consented to receive a visit from him. After this, the General and Mr. Clarges, conferred about the preventing tumults and disturbances that might happen, as well among the people, as the army, and commissary Clarges drew up an engagement, to be subscribed by the army, for acquiescing in the determination tion of the next parliament, which was done by the whole army, a few excepted, and those that were disaffected, were displaced, and others put in their rooms. Soon after this, commissary Clarges was appointed by the General, to wait upon his majesty, with the address of the officers of the army; Clarges set out with General Monk's instructions, on May 5, and made such haste, that he arrived at Bergen ap Zonne, in Holland, on Tuesday, the 8th of May, in the morning; there the governor gave him a very honourable reception, and accommodated him with his coach and six to Breda, and a league before he came to the town, the lord Gerard met him with two coaches and six horses, and accompanied him to his majesty, who received him with the most gracious expressions of satisfaction, as well that he was the first authorized messenger that came to him, with the news of the intire submission of his kingdoms and army to his obedience; as for his relation to that most renowned General, from whose prudent conduct and courage, all that happiness was derived to his majesty and his people.

He presented to his majesty, a letter from the General, in answer to his majesty's, sent before to him, and in it was inclosed the address of the officers of the army; this letter was dictated by his excellency, in the presence of many officers of the army, but he writ another short letter with his own hand, wherein he acquainted his majesty, That he chose to send Mr. Clarges to him, because he was the only person he trusted in the nearest concerns and consultations for his restoration, as one, to whom he desired his majesty to give credit to what he should say on that behalf.

After the reading these letters, and the address, his majesty knighted him, and by many kind expressions, demonstrated his sense of his merit and service to him: after staying an hour with his majesty, he attended their royal highnesses the duke of York and the duke of Gloucester, who received him with great affability; from them he waited on the princess of Orange, who expressed great joy at his relation of the news he brought, and at his parting from her, she gave orders, that he should, with his whole retinue, be entertained at her charge, whilst he staid at Breda, and have her highness's coach and six to attend him, with equipage suitable: afterwards, he went to visit the lord chancellor, and the marquis of Ormond, as those deservedly in greatest credit with his majesty, both of them receiving him with that respect, as the import and relation of his message and person did deserve.

On Thursday morning early, Sir Thomas Clarges, set out on his return, and attempted, by boat, from Scheveling, to get on board the admiral, but the weather being stormy, he could not do it till towards night, and then General Montague ordered

' the Norwich frigate to carry him; the winds were so contrary;
 ' and the weather so stormy, that the pilot could not make any ' land in England till Monday morning, when he landed at ' Aldbro' in Suffolk, and immediately sent an express to the ' General and the speaker of the house of commons, of his ma' jesty's resolution: whereupon his excellency, with a very ' great appearance of the nobility and gentry, set forward, on ' May 22, to meet his majesty at Rochester. Sir Thomas
 ' Clarges met the General, and presented to him his majesty's ' letter, &c.'

247. MORE, of More-Hall, Lancashire.

Created BARONET, Nov. 22, 1675.

THIS family of More, or, De la More, is of great antiquity, having been possessed of More and Bank-Hall, for upwards of twenty generations, as appeas, as well by divers ancient deeds remaining in the family, as by the atchievements and inscriptions engraven on the walls of the said houses. Whereof was Sir William de la More, who was made knight-banneret by Edward the Black Prince, at the battle of Poictiers in France. He was a very considerable man at that time, and wrote the life and death of Edward II. and III. which is made much use of by Barnes and other historians, who wrote of those times. 249. R I C H, of London.

Created BARONET, January 24, 1675.

THE Rich's are originally of Hampshire, where John Le Rich, of Rich's-place, flourished about the reign of Edward II. Robert le Rich, was his son and heir, living in the reign of Edw. III. and left issue, John le Rich, of Rich's-place, who was alive the 13th of Hen. IV. he had two sons, Richard and William. Richard Rich, of London, Esq; was his son and heir; he was buried in St. Lawrence's church, London, 2 Hen. V. His son and heir was, Richard Rich, of London, mercer, who was a person of note in his time, being one of the sheriffs of the city in 1441. 20 Hen. VI. he founded alms-houses at Hodsdon in Hertfordshire, in 1442; he was likewise executor to the will of Richard Aldres, Esq; of Newhall, in Boreham in Essex, dated 1446. He made his will in 1463, and bequeathed his body to be buried in the chapel of St. Mary, within the church of St. Lawrence, in veteri Judaismo. He appointed for Catherine, his wife, and Thomas, his son, and Robert Lone, chaplain, and William Marewe, John Walden, and Thomas Urswick, (who had married his daughters) to be clothed, the day of his burial, in black cloth. And that all the sons of his said daughters, and one servant of Marewe, Waldon, and Urswick, and all his servants in London, be clothed in black cloth; and that the aforesaid Thomas Urswick, have for himself, and his wife, and all his children, to the buying of this vesture, forty shillings. This Richard had issue two sons, John and Thomas, of whom hereafter; and dying, 1469, was interred by his father in St. Lawrence-Jury church.

John, the eldest son, dying in his father's life-time, was buried in Mercers-chapel in London, and left issue, John, citizen and mercer of London, father of Thomas, who married a daughter and coheir of Sir Edward Shaw, Knt. lord-mayor of London, and had issue, Richard Rich, of Weld, or Burntwood, in Essex, who married Rachael, daughter of Thomas Newborough, of Berkley in Somersetshire, Esq; and left two sons, Edward Rich, of Horndon, and Robert, who was a master in chancery, in 1620.

Edward Rich, of Horndon, Esq; son and heir, died in 1599; leaving issue by Joan, daughter and heir of Edward Sanders, of London, Robert Rich, of Stondon in Essex, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Thomas Dutton, Knt. and had issue, Nathaniel Rich, of Stondon, Esq; who had two wives; 1. Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Edmund Hampden, of Hampden in Buckinghamshire, Knt. and sister to John Hampden, Esq; and secondly, Anne, daughter of Charles, earl of Ancram, of the kingdom of Scotland; by the last wife he had no issue, but by the first, he had two sons; 1. Nathaniel Rich, Esq; receiver-general of the King's tax for Essex, in 1694, who married Mary, daughter of Matthew Rudd, of Little-Baddow in Essex, and had several children; 2. Sir Robert Rich, Bart. successor to Sir Charles Rich, Bart. as will be mentioned hereafter.

But to return :

Thomas Rich, before-mentioned, second son of Richard Rich, mercer of London, married Elizabeth, daughter of one Meyne, of London, and had issue, Richard Rich, who married Joan, daughter of ——— Dingley, and had issue, Richard, his eldest son, who married Elizabeth, daughter of ——— Colwell.

Another Richard was his second son and heir, who was one of the most considerable persons of this family, as well as of the age he lived in. It does not appear what university he was bred at, but he was an industrious student of the laws many years, in the Middle-Temple. In the 21st of Henry VIII. he was chosen autumn reader, in that honourable society. Shortly after, having by degrees passed through several eminent employments, he arrived to great wealth and honour. For in the 24th of Hen. VIII. he obtained the office of attorney-general in Wales, and the marches thereof, for life. The next year, he was made the King's solicitor-general, and two years after, had a grant of the office of chirographer, in the court of Common-pleas.

About this time, he was sent by the King, with Sir Richard Southwell, and Mr. Palmer, to take away Sir Thomas More's books, then prisoner in the Tower, for refusing the oath of succession and supremacy. Mr. Rich, pretending friendship to him, and protesting he had no commission to talk with him about the affair of the supremacy, put a case to him, thus : if it were enacted by parliament, that Richard Rich should be King, and that it should be treason in any body to deny it, what offence were it to contravene that act? Sir Thomas More answered, he should offend if he said so, because he was bound by the act; but that this was a case of little moment. Whereupon Sir Thomas said, he would propose a higher case; suppose it were enacted by parliament that God should not be God, whether it were not an offence to say it according to the act, Mr. Rich replied, yes; but said withal, I will propose a middle case; the King, you know, is constituted supreme head of the church; why should not you, Master More, accept him for such, as you would me, if I were made King? More answered, the case is not the same; because, said he, a parliament can make a King, and depose him, and that every parliament-man may give his consent thereto, but that a subject cannot be bound so in the case of supremacy.

Mr. Rich, swearing this against him at his trial, was a great means of his being condemned. When he gave evidence in open court, upon oath, Sir Thomas made answer, 'If I were a man, my lords, that had no regard to my oath, I had no occasion to be here as a criminal; and if this oath, Mr. Rich, you have taken be true, then I pray I may never see God's face; which, were it otherwise, is an imprecation I would not be guilty of, to gain the whole world.' Then he proceeded to charge him with being light of tongue, a great gamester, and of no good character in the parish where they had lived together, or in the Temple, where he was educated. After which he shewed, how unlikely it was, he should impart the secrets of his conscience, especially in so nice a point as the King's supremacy, to a man he had always so mean an opinion of.

This touched Mr. Rich's reputation to the quick, and was a slur which he could not efface, by producing Sir Richard Southwell, and Mr. Palmer, who were in the room with him and Sir Thomas, when they conferred together; for they both swore, 'they were so busy in conveying away his books, that they took no notice of their discourse.' More was condemned, and beheaded the sixth of July, 1535.

Mr. Solicitor, however, remained still in high favour at court; for, upon the erecting the court of augmentation, by act of parliament, in 1536, he was made the first chancellor of the same. The business of this court was, to collect the King's revenues, arising from the lands and effects of such religious houses, (not exceeding 200l. a year) as were then dissolved. During this office, he had a fair opportunity of enriching himself with the spoils of the monasteries: accordingly, he soon after obtained a grant of the site of the priory, and the manor of Leighs, in the county of Essex, with other lands belonging to the same monastery.

Some years after, we find him appointed by King Henry VIII. at the siege of Bologne, to be one of the commissioners to treat with the French, about peace. He was at that time treasurer of the King's wars, both there, and in Scotland.

King Henry had so great a value for him, and such an opinion of his parts, that he made him one of the assistants to his executors, in matters of consequence.

Four days before the coronation of Edward VI. he (being then a knight) was advanced to the degree of a baron, by the title of lord Rich. Several others were created with him, pursuant to the intentions of King Henry himself, a little before his death.

The same year, on the thirtieth of November, he was made lord-chancellor of England, in the room of Wriothesly, earl of Southampton, who was removed for exceeding his commission.

The lord Rich was a fast friend to the great duke of Somerset, King Edward's uncle, and by endeavouring to serve him, ruined himself. The duke, who had been protector of the kingdom, being now in the Tower, was using means to have the King better informed, and disposed towards him; and to that end engaged lord-chancellor Rich to be his friend; who, thereupon, sent him notice of somewhat designed against him by the council; and being in haste, writ only on the back of the letter, To the Duke, bidding one of his servants carry it to the Tower, without giving him particular directions to the duke of Somerset. The servant, knowing of the familiarities between his master and the duke of Norfolk, who was also in the Tower, but of none between him and the duke of Somerset, carried the letter to the duke of Norfolk. When the chancellor found the mistake at night, he knew the duke of Norfolk would certainly discover him, and therefore he went in all haste to the King, and desired to be discharged of his office, and thereby prevented the malice of his enemies: upon this, he fell sick, either pretending he was ill, that he might raise the more pity for him, or perhaps, the fright in which he was, did really cast him into sickness. The seal was sent for, and delivered up by him, on the twenty-first of December, 1551, in the fifth year of Edward VI. and put into the hands of Thomas Goodrick, bishop of Ely, who was made keeper, during pleasure.

After this, the lord Rich retired to his seat at Leighs, where he lived many years.

Though he had a great hand in pulling down the abbies, he appeared a zealous papist; and during the reign of Queen Mary, was a principal person in the commission for trying hereticks. He was present at the burning of several protestants, in this county, particularly, Mr. Thomas Watts, of Billericai, who was burnt at Chelmsford, June 20, 1555. At the stake, Watts told him, 'he acted against his conscience, and charged him with being the cause of his death.'

In the first year of Queen Elizabeth's reign, he, with others, opposed the bill for uniformity of common-prayers. At the same time, he, with the lords Darcy and Wentworth, being possessed of a good share of lands, belonging to the bishoprick of London, brought in a bill, to confirm bishop Ridley's leases, and grants, which, passing the lower house, was thrown out in the upper.

Against the time of chusing Queen Elizabeth's first parliament, the lord Rich, being a great man in the country, had hired one Scot's house, in Chelmsford. Afterwards, Scot let his house to Sir John Rainesford, but, on lord Rich's complaint, Rainesford was ordered to appear before the council, and a letter was sent him, requiring him to give place to the lord Rich, seeing he had first hired it, and for avoiding all inconveniences that might arise.

This Richard lord Rich, married Elizabeth, sister of William Jenks, of London, grocer, who died before him, and was, on Dec. 16, 1558, carried from St. Bartholomew's in a chariot, and then to Leighs, or Rochford, and buried on the eighteenth, in great state. This lord Rich, at his own charge, built the tower-steeple of Rochford in Essex; also, in 1564, (6 Eliz.) he founded a free grammar-school, at Felsted, near Leighs in Essex, settling 20*l.* per ann. on the master, and 10*l.* per ann. on the usher; which stipend, Robert, the second of that name, earl of Warwick, did, in anno 1638, augment to 50*l.* per ann. to the master, and 25*l.* per ann. to the usher. The said Richard also founded an alms-house at Felsted, for six poor people; and gave, to be distributed to the poor of Felsted, Little-Leighs, and Great-Waltham, adjoining, on the several Sundays in Lent, eleven cades of red, and eleven barrels of white herrings. His last will bears date, 12 Maii, 9 Eliz. whereby he bequeathed his body to be buried at Felsted in Essex; and to Sir Robert Rich, his son and heir, as much of his plate as he should chuse, to the value of 200*l.* and all the furniture of his houses at Leighs, Rochford, and St. Bartholomew's; and orders his executors to give 100 marks to poor people coming to his burial. And by a codicil, dated the tenth of June, 1567, he gave one of his manors in Rochford hundred, for building and endowing an alms-house at Rochford; and departed this life at Rochford, the year after, as should seem by the probate of his will, which bears date, Junii 3, 1568, leaving issue by Elizabeth, his wife, before-mentioned,

Robert, his son and heir; also Edward, Richard, and William, who died all three without children; and nine daughters, Frances, married to John lord Darcy, of Chiche in Essex; Margaret, to Henry Pigot, of Abington, Esq; Etheldreda, to Robert,

Robert, son and heir of William Drury, Esq; Agnès, to Edward Mordant, of Hempsted in Essex, Esq; Mary, to Sir Thomas Wrothe, of Enfield, Middlesex, Knt. Dorothy, to Francis Barley, Esq; Elizabeth, to Robert Peyton, of Helont, son and heir of Sir Robert Peyton, of Cambridgeshire; Winifride, to Sir Henry Dudley, Knt. son of John Dudley, duke of Northumberland, and afterwards, to Roger lord North; Anne, to Thomas Pigot, of Stratton in Bedfordshire; Barbara, a nun of Sion.

Besides these, he had several natural children, namely, Mary, wife of — Frank, of Hatfield in Essex, Gent. another daughter, wife of Richard Barley, of Essenham in Essex, Esq; a third, married to one Draper, of Braintree; and a son, called Richard Rich, who had issue, Sir Nathaniel Rich, Knt. and Margery.

Robert lord Rich succeeded his father in his honour, being then thirty years of age. In the fifteenth of Elizabeth, he was one of the peers upon the trial of Thomas, duke of Norfolk; and afterwards sent into France, with the earl of Lincoln, lord-admiral, and others, to conclude a league with the French at Blois. The next year, he was employed in Ireland, with the lord Darcy, but returned on occasion of private business, within a month.

He accompanied likewise the earl of Essex, into Ireland, the same year, says Hollingshead.

He died, Feb. 27, 1581, in the 23d year of Elizabeth, leaving issue by Elizabeth, daughter and heir of George Baldry, of Hadley, Esq; son and heir of Sir Thomas Baldry, of London, Knt. mercer, and alderman of the said city, three sons and two daughters; namely,

Robert, his second son and heir, was twenty-one years, two months, and two days old, when his father died. This Robert lord Rich was, by letters patent, dated Aug. 6, 1618, 16 Jac. He married Jane, daughter of ----- Reeve, Esq; reliēt of Sir John Suckling, Knt. comptroller of the household to King James I. and King Charles I. and died without issue, Nov. 16, 1675; 3. Richard, who died S. P. 4. Sir Charles, of whom hereafter: of the daughters; Frances, married Nathaniel Acton, Esq; Margaret, and Honora, (of whom I find no mention). For Sir Edwin, the father, and his son, Sir Edwin, a monument is erected in Mulberton church in Norfolk.

II. with remainder, in case of failure of issue male of his own body, to Robert Rich, of Stondon in Essex, Esq; second son of colonel Nathaniel Rich, of Stondon, before-mentioned, by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter of Sir Edmund Hampden, Knt.

251. PENNINGTON, of Muncaster, Cumberland.

Created BARONET, June 21, 1676.

THIS family derive their pedigree from Gamel de Pennington, who was a very considerable person before, and at the conquest, as appears by several ancient rolls, registers, and records; from whom, the present Sir Joseph Pennington is derived, in a lineal descent of numerous ancestors of note. And to instance some of them; in 20 Edw. I. lived Sir William de Pennington, Knt. who was succeeded by Sir John de Pennington, Knt. in 17 Edw. II. Sir Allen de Pennington, Knt. lived 4 Hen. IV. and married D. Preston, by whom he had issue, Sir John (the second) de Pennington, Knt. who succeeded his father in 4 Hen. VI. to which unfortunate prince, this Sir John was much attached, and gave him a secret reception at Mealcaster, or Mulcaster, now Muncaster, for some time, when in his flight from his enemies. In return, that King gave him a curiously-wrought glass cup, and a blessing to the family, so long as they should reserve it unbroke, which the superstition of those times imagined to carry good fortune, and called it, the Luck of Muncaster, and the family have the glass still, as a testimony of that prince's goodwill to them. This Sir John de Pennington, is likewise reported in a book, intituled, Historia Anglo-Scotica, printed 1703, to have been a skilful warrior, as may be seen, p. 227, octavo edit. in the reigns of Henry VI. of England, and James II. of Scotland, and that he commanded the left wing of the English army, in one of our expeditions into Scotland, when the earl of Northumberland led the main body.

The next knight of this house was, Sir John (the third) de Pennington, grandson of the last Sir John, who is also mentioned in the aforesaid book, p. 265, in the reigns of Hen. VII. of England, and James IV. of Scotland, to have gone with the bishop of Durham, and the earl of Surry, to the relief of Northham-castle, which they accomplished, and afterwards invaded Scotland, with success. The same Sir John had likewise a command, about sixteen years after, at the battle of Flodden-field, in 4 Hen. VIII. where James IV. was killed, and the flower of the nobility and gentry of Scotland, either slain, or taken prisoners; and Sir John, and his followers, brought some booty back with them. The next knight was, Sir William de Pennington, in 38 Hen. VIII.

The next was, Sir John Pennington, admiral to King Charles I. of whoſe integrity the King was ſo confident, that on his judgment he principally relied, in all his maritime actions, and whoſe memory is celebrated by the hiſtorians of thoſe unhappy times.

Mr. Le Neve, in his MSS. mentions this as a very ancient family, and after citing ſeveral records to prove their antiquity, goes on to Joſeph Pennington, of Pennington in Lancaſhire, and Muncaſter in Cumberland, Eſq; who died about 1640, leaving iſſue by Iſabel, daughter of Alverey Copley, of Batley in Yorkſhire, Eſq; widow of Sir Robert Savile, of Howley in Yorkſhire, Knt. a ſon, William, and a daughter, Bridget, married to Sir William Huddleſtone, of Millum-caſtle in Cumberland, Knt.

Joſeph, of whom hereafter; 2. Alan Pennington, M. D. living at Cheſter, 1665, who married Bridget, daughter of John Aleworth, of Somerſetſhire, and had a ſon, William, four years old, 1663; 3. Richard Pennington, of Salford in Lancaſhire, barrifter at law, and of Greys-Inn, who married Anne, daughter of Robert Blundell, of Ince Blundell in Lancaſhire, Eſq; and 4. William. Of the daughters; Iſabel was unmarried, 1695; Catherine, married Sir Jeffrey Shakerley, of Shakerley in Lancaſhire, Knt. governor of Cheſter; Elizabeth, was wife to Sir Roger Bradſhaigh, of Haigh in Lancaſhire, Bart. and Bridget, married Thomas Heber, of Stainton in Yorkſhire, Eſq.

Joſeph Pennington, Eſq; eldeſt ſon and heir, died about 1659, leaving iſſue by Margaret, daughter to John Fleetwood, of Penwortham in Lancaſhire, Eſq.

Sir William Pennington, the firſt baronet of this family, ſo created, 29 Car. II. P. and two daughters, Elizabeth, married, firſt, to John Archer, of Oxenholm, near Kendal in Weſtmoreland, Eſq; and ſecondly, to Thomas Strickland, of Sizergh, in the ſame county, Eſq; and Margaret. 253. STANDISH, of Duxbury, Lancashire, Created BARONET, Feb. 8, 1676.

THIS family is of good antiquity and note, being denominated from the lordship of Standish, in Lancashire, in their possession for many ages. But many of the ancient records, and evidences of this family, are so worn out by time, and wrote in such strange hands, that no more can be gathered from them, than what follows :

Hugh Standish, Esq; married Alice, daughter of Sir Richard Molineux, of Sephton in Lancashire, 34 Edw. I. and had issue, William, who died young; and Richard, who lived 9 Ed. III. and was father of Hugh and John. Hugh had to wife, Alice, daughter of Henry Standish, of Standish, the patron of the church of Standish, 43 Edw. III. His sons were, William, Alexander; and Christopher; whereof, the two first died young. He had also a daughter, named Clemence.

Christopher married (9 Rich. II.) Margaret, daughter of Sir Thomas Fleming, by whom he had, Ralph, Rowland, and James. Ralph Standish espoused (7 Hen. V.) Joan, daughter of Sir Thomas Gerrard, Knt: but died issueless; as did also his next brother, Rowland, who had been knighted, 19 Hen. VI. He brought the relict of St. Lawrance out of Normandy, to Chorley church.

James, the next brother, (6 Edw. IV.) married Alice ---, and was father of Christopher, who, by Elizabeth, daughter of William Bradshaigh, of Haigh, Esq; had issue, James, who, by his wife, Alice, daughter of ---, was father of Christopher, whose son, Christopher, was knighted, 1 Rich. III.

This Sir Christopher married Alice, daughter of Sir Alexander Standish, 6 Hen. VII. by whom he had issue, Thomas, James, Hugh, Alexander, Rowland, Anne, and Maud, married to William Bradshaigh, of Haigh in Lancashire, Esq.

Thomas had to wife, (9 Hen. VIII.) Catherine, daughter of ----, by whom he had, James Standish, his son and heir, who married, first, Elizabeth, daughter of Evan Hadock; and secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of John Butler, of Rawcliffe in Lancashire, (28 Hen. VIII.) His sons were, Thomas and Christopher.

Thomas, eldest son, married Margaret, daughter of Sir Thomas Hoghton, of Hoghton Tower in Lancashire, Knt. and had issue, Alexander, Lennard, &c.

Alex-

Alexander had issue, by Margaret, daughter of Sir Ralph Asheton, of Whaley-abbey, Knt. and Bart. Thomas, Richard, Ralph, Alexander, Joan, Alice, Anne, &c.

Thomas, the eldest son, had two wives; first, Anne, daughter of Sir Thomas Wingfield, of Suffolk, Knt. secondly, Anne, daughter of Christopher Wittingham, in Suffolk, Esq. By the former he had, Thomas, Alexander, Richard, Anne, and Ratelyffe; and by the latter, Ralph, Catherine, Gilbert, Margaret, Henry, and Dorothy.

Thomas, the eldest son, married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Vaux, of Dotchet, Esq; and had a daughter, who died young at Exford. He was slain at Manchester, by the rump party: his wife (not long surviving) died at London.

Alexander, his next brother, had two wives; first, Anne, daughter of ——— Farrington, and relict of ——— Banaster, of Bank in Lancashire, Esq; and secondly, Margaret, daughter of ——— Ireland, of Ireland in Lancashire, Esq; and widow of colonel Clifton; but by neither had issue. Wherefore, Richard, his next brother, continued the line, having issue by Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Peter Legh, of Lime in Cheshire, Knt. Thomas, Richard, Peter, Alexander, Ralph, John, Hugh, Elizabeth, Anne, and Frances; whereof, Thomas, and Elizabeth, died young.

Richard Standish, of Duxbury, Esq; son and heir, was, by King Charles II. advanced to the degree of a baronet. He married Margaret, daughter of Thomas Holcroft, of Holcroft in Lancashire, Esq; (she afterwards married Sir Thomas Stanley, of Bickerstaff in Lancashire, Bart. and died Oct. 1735, aged near an hundred) and was by her, father of Sir Thomas, Richard, Elizabeth, Peter, Charles, Margaret, and Frances; whereof, Richard died young.

Sir Thomas Standish, of Duxbury, Bart. son and heir of Sir Richard, took to wife, Jane, daughter of Charles Turnor, of Cleveland in Yorkshire, Esq; by whom he had issue, Thomas, who married Catherine, daughter of ——— Frank, of Pontefract in Yorkshire, Esq; and widow of John Smith, of Heath, in the same county, Esq; by whom he had issue, Thomas, Margaret, John, Frank, and Jane, who all died infants, except Sir Frank, the present baronet. The other children of Sir Thomas were, Catherine, Margaret, Richard, Cholmley, Charles, John, Turner, William, Jane, and Cholmley. Of these Cholmley and John died young. 256. NEWDIGATE, of Arbury, Warwickshire.

Created BARONET, July 24, 1677.

THIS ancient family, though the name be variously spelt in old charters and monuments, viz. Niwudgate, Niwodegate, &c. yet doubtless derived its name from Newdigate, a town in the hundred of Rygate and county of Surrey.

In a MS. of great antiquity, the intermarriages of this family with others, are set forth in this order, viz. Newdigate and Warren; Newdigate and Pugeys; Newdigate and Montfitchet; Newdigate and Roan; Newdigate and Sudley; Newdigate and Ashburnham; Newdigate and Wintershal; Newdigate and Clare; Newdigate and Malmains.

But the first, of any note, was John de Newdigate, who lived in the reign of King John, whose wife was Agnes, by whom he had issue, Richard, William, and Robert.

To which Richard, as appears by a deed now in the family, William Young gives and grants, for homage and service, half a yard of land, and by another dareless charter of William Tescardus, unto him, he held the same lands in the parish of Niudigate, as his father did. This Richard took to wife, Alice, the daughter of Walter de Horley, as is evident from another deed of

Wil-

William de Longo Ponte, whereby he grants to him all that land which Walter de Horleia gave to the said Richard, with Alice, his daughter, in free marriage; by whom he had issue, John, William, and Peter.

To which John, Richard, the son of Roger le Balch, gave twenty acres of land in Newdigate, called Lamputts fields. And by a grant from Normannus de la Bere, he held two other fields of land in Newdigate, known by the names of Southheye and Northheye. Which fields John bought of Norman; for Mabilia de la Bere, de Newdigate, in her pure widowhood, confirms the same to him, specifying it to be purchased of her husband Norman.

He lived in the time of King Henry III. and had issue by his wife, Agnes, William, and Richard.

His eldest son, William, succeeded him, and added to the estate several lands, which he obtained by grants from Henry Kymer and William Eglaff, situate in the parishes of Newdigate and Cherlewode.

William was living 17 Edw. I. at which time Thomas de la Lynd assigned him and others, to sell an hundred loads of timber, in his wood of Lynd. After which, Gilbert Wytecrofte, of the parish of Cherlewode, granted to him all his land, called the Berland, in the parish of Newdigate. He left issue,

Sir Henry de Newdigate, Knt. living temp. Edw. I. who married Catherine, daughter and coheir of Sir Nicholas Mailmains, Knt. (whose other sisters were Beatrix, married to Otho de Grandison, brother to the lord Grandison; Petronilla, to Sir Thomas St. Omer; Elizabeth and Joan) by whom he had issue, John and William.

The eldest of whom, John, for he is first named, in a charter of Reginald ate Wytecrofte, granting unto William, his brother, a croft, in Newdigate, commonly known by the name of Edwardscroft, left no issue; and so

William succeeded, who had to wife the daughter and heir of Eclingham, by whom he had issue four sons, John, Richard, Robert, and William.

John, the eldest, married Agnes —, about the beginning of Edward III. by whom he had three sons, William; John (of whom hereafter), and Thomas; to which last his father gave his tenement called Hallond, for life, the remainder to John, his brother, for life, and the remainder to William, the elder brother, his heirs and assigns for ever, by a deed dated 27 Ed. III.

To this William, John de Montfort sold all his wood in Berland, in the parish of Newdigate for 20l. sterling, together with free ingress and egress, from the feast of Easter, temp. Edw. III. for two years. And John Egelaf granted him other lands in the reign reign of King Edward, son of King Edward; and that he lived in the reign of Ed. III. appears by a grant from Simon le Rolff, son of Adam Rolff, to him and his wife, Amicia, and John, their son, and their heirs, of four fields in Sherlewode and Newdigate, bearing date 33 Edw. III. and to them, the said Simon made a concession of a garden in the parish of Rowesparr, and of a croft in Newdigate. He died about 1 Ric. II. having been high sheriff for the counties of Surrey and Suffex, 45 Edw. III.

From his son John, descended the Newdigates, of Newdigate, lords of that manor, and of lands in Cherlewode and Horlee in Surrey, and of Rowesparr in Suffex, which terminated in two daughters and coheirs of Thomas Newdigate, of Newdigate, Esq; about the beginning of the reign of King Charles I. viz. Mary, married to William Steper, and Anne to William Smithyman.

But of longer continuance was this family in the younger branch; for John Newdigate, second brother of William, and Thomas, by Agnes abovementioned, raised himself above them both, obtained the honour of knighthood, and the lordship of Harefield in Middlesex, temp. Ed. III. in right of his wife, Joan, sister and coheir of William Swanland, Esq; (who, with his brothers, Simon, Thomas, and John, died without issue); which match was no little advancement to this branch of the Newdigates. This Joan afterwards was married to Edward Salle; but her issue by her first husband succeeded, who was

John Newdigate, of Harefield, Esq; son and heir of John, who lived in the reigns of Henry V. and Henry VI. in which last reign, a fine was levied at Westminster, 10 Hen. VI. between John Bracy and others, Quer. and him Def. of two messuages, 260 acres of land in Surrey; which Edmund Salle, then defunct, and Joan, his relict, then possessed for term of life, and of the inheritance of the said John Newdigate.

This John, married, first, Elizabeth, daughter and heir of — Knolles and of Margery, his wife, by whom he had issue William and Thomas, as appears by a deed of entail, whereby the manor of Downe is settled upon Margery Knolles for her life, the remainder to Elizabeth, her daughter, for term of life, the remainder to William Newdigate, son of the said Elizabeth, and his heirs. To his second wife, he had Catherine, daughter and heir of Roger Chamber, by whom he had one daughter, Margaret, wife of Castleman.

William Newdigate, Esq; succeeded his father in the inheritance of Harefield, who took to wife Edith, daughter of John Bowett, of — in Surrey, Esq; who brought him a son and heir, John, and then died, Sept. 10, 1444, and lies buried in Brackenbury chapel, in Harefield church.

John, his son, succeeded, being the third of that name, who was lord of Harefield. His wife was Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Young, Esq; one of the justices of the common-pleas, 5 Ed. IV. sister to Thomas Young, of Bristol, Esq; She died about the 4th of Hen. VII. and left him a son, John, fourth of the name, but fifth of the race that inherited. He was bred to the study of the laws in Gray's-Inn, and so well profited therein, that, 18 Nov. 2 Hen. VIII. he received the dignity of the coif. Soon after which (5 Hen. VIII.) he impleaded John, earl of Oxon, for the manor of Baclesworth, which he claimed as his right, by descent from the Swanlands; and had the honour to be the King's serjeant, 12 Hen. VIII.

He married Amphilicia, daughter and heir of John Nevill, of Sutton in Lincolnshire, Esq; and their issue were, John, who follows next in the lineal descent; Silvester and Dunstan, knights hospitallers of the order of St. John of Jerusalem; and Sebastian, who was at first a courtier, but, upon his wife's death, 1524, he turned a Carthusian monk, and suffered 18 June, 27 Hen. VIII. for opposing the King's supremacy: the daughters were, 1. Barbara, married to John Clogg, of Exon, who were both interred in the aforesaid chapel, under a flat marble grave-stone, with their portraitures in brass, and vested in long robes: a second daughter was Jane, who was married to Sir Robert Dormer, of Wenge in Bucks, from whom descended the earls of Carnarvon and barons Dormer, of Wenge, and by a sister of the first baron, the dukes of Feria in Spain; 3. Mary, a nun at Sion in Middlesex; 4. Dorothy, wife of Leonard Chamberlain, of Sherborne in Oxon, Esq; 5. Sybil, who veiled herself at Halywel in Middlesex.

John Newdigate, of Harefield, Esq; succeeded his father, and having married Ann, daughter and heir of Nicholas Hilton, departed this life, 37 Hen. VIII. and she did not long survive him; and in memory of them, there is a tomb erected in Harefield church. It is altar-like, of grey marble, with a canopy of the same, and within the arching, against the wall, the effigies, in brass, of a man and woman kneeling: behind him are eight sons, behind her as many daughters.

Of the sons; 1. John, born 5 Hen. VIII. 2. George, born 2 Hen. VIII. and afterwards a monk at Chertsey; 3. Anthony, born 8 Hen. VIII. 5. Francis Newdigate, of Hanworth in Middlesex, born 11 Hen. VIII. Unus Generosus. Hostiarior. to the duke of Somerset, whose dutchess's dowager, the daughter of Sir Edward Stanhope, of Shelford, he had in marriage; 6. Nicholas Newdigate, of London, Gent. born 12 Hen. VIII. 7. Robert, born 20 Hen. VIII. of the fourth and youngest there is no mention: of the daughters, Amphilicia was born 3 Hen. VIII. and and died an infant; a second Amphilicia, born 10 Hen. VIII. Ann, born 15 Hen. VIII. who was married to William Gardiner, of Grove; Joan, born 17 Hen. VIII. but did not live long; of the rest I find no mention.

John, the eldest, succeeded his father and had two wives; 1. Mary, daughter of Sir Robert Cheney, of Chesham Boys, in Bucks, Knt. 34 Hen. VIII. 2. Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Lovett, of Aftwell in Northamptonshire, Gent. he died about the year 1565, and was buried at Harefield.

And to him succeeded John, his son and heir, born 1541, who exchanged the manor of Harefield for that of Arbury in Warwickshire, 20 Nov. 28 Eliz. on which stands a fair structure, built out of the ruins of the priory and church of — by Sir Edmund Anderson, Knt. chief-justice of the common-pleas in the time of Queen Elizabeth.

This John first took to wife Martha, daughter and coheir of Anthony Cave, of Chicheley in Warwickshire, Esq; by whom he had issue eight sons, John, Francis, Henry, Robert, Charles, Carew, William, and another; and three daughters, Elizabeth, Grifolda, and Mary.

His second wife was Mary, the daughter of ——— Smith, by whom he had issue Henry, who seated himself at Hampton in Middlesex.

Sir John Newdigate, of Arbury, Knt. the eldest son and heir, was born 1570, and had to wife Ann, the eldest daughter of Sir Edward Fitton, of Gawsforth in Cheshire, Bart. Sir John was buried April 12, 1610. Their issue were John and Richard; Mary, Lettice, and Ann; which Ann was married to Sir Richard Skeffington, in Staffordshire, Bart. by whom she had John Skeffington, viscount Mazareen, in the kingdom of Ireland.

Sir Richard, by Juliana, his wife, third daughter of Sir Francis Leigh, of King's Newnham in Warwickshire, knight of the Bath, and sister to Francis, earl of Chichester, had issue six sons and five daughters, of which only three sons and two daughters survived him, viz. 1. Sir Richard, his successor; 2. Robert, who was of Ealing and Hillingdon in Middlesex, and had two wives, (1. Frances, daughter of Thomas Harrison, of North-Mims in Hertfordshire, Esq; 2. Julian, daughter of Robert Beale, of Harefield in Middlesex, Esq; He died Nov. 26, 1695, aged forty-seven, and lies buried at Harefield.) The third son of Sir Richard, the serjeant, was Thomas, of Lewes in Suffex, who, by Charity, daughter and coheir of — French, of Lewes, had issue Richard Newdigate, of Lewes, Esq; one of the benchers of the Middle-Temple, and John Newdigate, late of the fix clerks office, who died unmarried.

257. CUST, of Stamford, Lincolnshire.

Created BARONET, Sept. 29, 1677.

THIS family was anciently seated in Yorkshire, and removed to Pinchbeck in Lincolnshire, about four hundred years ago (as appears by the records), where Sir Peter Cust, Knt. died, whose will bears date Nov. 17, in the twelfth year of Edward III. anno 1338.

The succession of this family, from father to son, runs thus, viz. Sir Peter, Henry, Peter, Robert, Henry, Peter, Hugo, Richard, and Henry, who, dying without issue, was succeeded by his nephew, Richard, son of his brother Samuel, who was father of Richard, the father of Henry, who was the father of Henry, Joshua, and Samuel; Henry died a bachelor, and was succeeded by his brother Joshua, who was succeeded by his brother Samuel; this Samuel married a daughter of Sir John Burrell, of Dowesby, in the said county, Knt. and by her had one son, named Richard, great-grandfather to the late Sir John; Samuel was buried in the parish church of St. George, in Stamford.

This Richard Cust, Esq; in the beginning of the troubles, anno 1641, was sent at the head of a deputation, from the county of Lincoln, to his majesty King Charles I. most humbly to intreat his majesty to agree with his parliament. In the year 1653 he was member of parliament for the county of Lincoln; but, being a zealous asserter of liberty and the constitution of England, as governed by king, lords, and commons, he was excluded from his seat there by Cromwell.

But, after the restoration, was again twice elected for the borough of Stamford in the said county, and created a Baronet by King Charles II. by letters patent, bearing date Sept. 29, 1677, being the first of this family dignified with that title. He married Beatrix, daughter and heir of Thomas Purey, of Kirton in the said county, Esq; by whom he had only one son, who lived to have children, viz. Purey Cust, Esq; and two daughters; Elizabeth married to John Cokayn, of Cokayn-Hatley, in the county of Bedford, Esq; and Jane married to John Proby, of Elton, in the county of Huntingdon, Esq; (who frequently represented it in parliament) and both buried with their husbands at the places aforesaid.

This Purey Cust, Esq; treading in the steps of his father, at the time of the late happy revolution, raised a troop of horse at his own expence, and, joining with other gentlemen who did the same, formed themselves into a regiment, and having chosen William, late earl of Devonshire, for their colonel (who was one of the first noblemen who appeared in the interest of the Prince of Orange), marched under his command, to receive that Prince soon after his landing in the West. This regiment had the honour of attending his majesty King William III. into Ireland, to assist in reducing that kingdom, and, on his return with the king to England, Mr. Cust received the honour of knighthood.

Sir Purey had two wives, first, Ursula, daughter and heir of Edward Woodcock, of Newtimber in Suffex, Esq; by Mary, the daughter of Thomas Barker, of Chiswick; in the county of Middlesex, Esq; and niece to Sir Thomas Woodcock (who, as he was entrusted with secrets of the highest importance by King Charles II. both before and after his exile, was imprisoned and closely confined by Cromwell for several years; but neither the terrors of death on one side, or offers of great rewards on the other, could, in the least, shake his loyalty; for which reasons he was knighted at Breda, and was the first person on whom his majesty conferred that honour). By this lady Sir Purey had several children, who all died young, except one son, Sir Richard, his successor; and two daughters, Mary, married to Robert Thompson, of Standground, in the county of Huntingdon, Esq; who who is since dead, and was buried at Standground, aforesaid; and Ursula, married to Richard Newton, Esq; late treasurer of the Middle-Temple, who died Feb. 20, 1736, without any issue.

Sir Purey's second wife was Alice, one of the daughters and coheirs of William Savile, of Newton in the county of Lincoln, Esq; by whom he had likewise several children, but they all died in their infancy, except the youngest, viz. Savile-Cokayn Cust, Esq; now living and unmarried, who is clerk of the cheque to the yeomen of the guards of his majesty's body.

Sir Purey died in his father's life-time, so that Richard, Sir Purey's eldest son, succeeded his grandfather, Sir Richard, in his estate and title.

This Sir Richard Cust, Bart. married Anne, daughter of Sir William Brownlow, Bart. and sister to the right honourable John, lord viscount Tyrconnel, of the kingdom of Ireland, knight of the Bath, and member of parliament for Grantham. Sir Richard's parts and learning would have made him as useful to the publick, as he was well known to have been to his family, friends, and neighbours, could he have been prevailed upon to have served in parliament, for which no man was better qualified; but he rather chose a studious life. He steadily adhered to his father's and grandfather's principles, and had a good interest in his country, and died July 25, 1734, and was buried in the family vault in St. George's church, Stamford, having had issue by his said lady five sons; 1. Sir John, his successor; 2. William, who died unmarried; 3. Francis, a counsellor at law, and recorder of Grantham; 4. Peregrine, an eminent merchant in the city of London, who was member for Bishopscastle in the last, and is elected for Shoreham in Suffex to the present parliament; 5. Richard, who is canon of Christ-church, Oxford. The daughters were two Anne's, who died young; Elizabeth; Jane, first married to Francis Fane, of Fulbeck in Lincolnshire, Esq; secondly, to James Evelyn, Esq; Dorothy and Lucy, unmarried. Sir Richard was succeeded by his eldest son,

Sir John Cust, Bart. who was elected representative for Grantham in 1743, which he continued to represent till his death, and was chosen speaker of the house of commons in the two last parliaments: he was appointed clerk of the household to his royal highness Frederick, late Prince of Wales, in Feb. 1747, and as such attended in the funeral procession of that Prince. Upon the establishment of the household of his present majesty, when Prince of Wales, he was continued in the same office; and was appointed steward of the household to the Princess Dowager of Wales in July, 1751; in 1759, he was appointed colonel of the Southern battalion of the militia for the county of Lincoln; and sworn one of his majesty's most honourable privy-council in July, 1762. Sir John married, Dec. 8, 1743, Etheldreda, daughter and coheir of the late Thomas Payne, of Houghton on the Hill, in the county of Lincoln, Esq; by whom he had issue one son, Sir Brownlow, his successor, born Dec. 3, 1744, and two daughters, Anne and Elizabeth, both unmarried. Sir John died Jan. 24, 1770, and was succeeded by his only son,

Sir Brownlow Cust, the present Baronet, who is representative in parliament for Ilchester in Somersetshire, and unmarried.

261. BRADSHAIGH, of Haigh, Lancashire.

Created BARONET, Nov. 17, 1679.

THIS ancient family is lineally descended from Sir John Bradshaw, of Bradshaw, Knt. of the race of the Saxons, living at the Norman conquest, when he was re-possessed of his estate by the Conqueror, and his posterity are twenty-two descents; whereof, eleven in lineal descent were knighted, as appears by ancient charters, and other authentick evidences.

This Sir John married the daughter and sole heir of Sir Robert Remington, of Remington, Knt. and had issue,

Sir Robert, whose lady was the daughter of Sir William Fitz-John, a Norman, by whom he had two sons, Sir John, and Sir George, who seated himself in the county of Warwick, and married the daughter and heir of Humphry Atherston, of Atherston, Esq; and had issue, John, from whom the Bradshaws of Atherston, and elsewhere, in the county of Warwick, derived themselves; and by William, a younger son of the said John, who settled in Gloucestershire, by means of his wife, the daughter and heir of ----- Boulter, the Bradshaws of Boulter, in that county, descended; which line, after four generations, terminated in two daughters; Jane, who died a nun, and Margaret, married to Sir William Randolph, Knt. who thereupon obtained that inheritance.

Sir John, the eldest son and heir of Sir Robert, was living 13 Hen. I. and married a daughter of Sir John Molineux, of Sephton in Lancashire, Knt. (ancestor to the present lord Molineux) and had issue, John, living 8 King Stephen. He married a daughter of Brackenbury, of Brackenbury, and had issue, William, who took to wife the daughter of Sir William Trollope, of Thornly, Knt. 6 Hen. II. His son, Sir John, in 2 Rich. I. married the daughter of Sir Walter Harcourt, of Stanton, Knt. whose eldest son and heir, Sir John, married a daughter of Sir Ralph Musgrave, Knt. and had issue, Thomas, living 23 Hen. III. whose wife was a daughter of Adam Hoghton, of Hoghton-Tower in Lancashire, Esq; of which match proceeded Sir John, who married the daughter and heir of Sir John Bromley, of Bromley in Staffordshire, Knt. 10 Edw. I. by whom he had three sons; the first, Sir Thomas, progenitor to the Bradshaw's, of Bradshaw; 2. Sir William; and 3. Sir John, who married the daughter and heir of ----- Langton, of Langton,

Langton, Esq; in Lancashire; but having no issue, gave his estate to his elder brother,

Sir William, who was a great traveller, and a military man; for about 8 Edw. II. he went to the holy wars, and was absent above ten years from his lady, who was Mabel, the daughter and coheir of Hugh Norris, lord of Sutton, Raynhill, Whiston, Haigh, Blackrode, and West-Leigh, six manors; Sir William possessed, as his purparty, Haigh, and Blackrode, by a twelfth part of a knight's fee, as Hugh le Norres held the same, and as Mabel Braidshaigh, his wife, held the same as heir of Hugh, for which they paid 3s. 8d. aid, temp. Edw. III. for making the King's eldest son a knight, as by the accounts of John Cockayne, late sheriff of that county, is apparent; at which time, he made an alteration in the spelling of his name, which has been continued to this day, with the addition of the two martlets, in his coat of arms, and a vine to his crest; of this Mabel, wife to Sir William, is a story well attested; that whilst Sir William was abroad in the holy wars, and believed to be slain, she married a Welsh knight, Sir Osmund Nevil; but Sir William returning, came in a palmer's habit amongst the poor to Haigh, whom as soon as she beheld, transported with the resembling idea of her former husband, she fell a weeping, for which Sir Osmund gave her correction; Sir William, thereupon, withdrew, and made himself known to his tenants; and upon intelligence of the discovery, Sir Osmund fled towards Wales, but near to Newton-Park in Lancashire, Sir William overtook him, and slew him; Mabel was enjoined by her confessor to do penance whilst she lived, by going once every week bare-foot, and bare-legged, from Haigh, to a cross near Wigan, which is called Mab's cross to this day, from that occasion. They now both lie buried in Wigan church, under a fair stone tomb, adorned with two prostrate figures; the man in antique mail, cross-legged, unsheathing his sword, which hangs on his left side, and on his shoulder his shield, with two bends thereon; she is in a long robe, and veiled, her hands elated, and conjoined, in a praying posture; though they were formerly placed in a chapel, on the south-side of the chancel, belonging to this family, which chancel was in being in Mabel's time, as appears by antient deeds. This Sir William, in 19 Ed. II. with John de Hornby, were returned knights of the shire for the county of Lancaster, to serve in the parliament then to be held at Westminster, having allowance of 7l. 14s. for twenty-two days attendance; to the said Sir William, 4s. per day, and to John de Horneby, 3s. Sir William also served again for the said county, 2 and 4 Ed. III. He had issue two sons, Richard, and Thomas, who, marrying the daughter and

James Bradshaigh, lord of Haigh, &c. in 3 Hen. VI. married a daughter of Sir Richard Prescot, Knt. and had issue, William, living 1 Rich. III. who had issue,

James, who died 20 Hen. VII. leaving three sons; 1. Sir Roger; 2. Sir Ralph, who both died without issue; and 3. William, who continued the line, and married Maud, daughter of Sir Christopher Standish, of Duxbury in Lancashire, Knt. and had issue, temp. Hen. VIII. his son and heir,

Roger Bradshaigh, of Haigh, Esq; who, in the year 1567, married Jane, daughter of Ralph Standish, of Standish in Lancashire, Esq; and had issue eight sons and five daughters; 1. James, of whom hereafter; 2. Edward, surnamed the Deaf; 3. Richard, serjeant at arms to Queen Elizabeth; 4. Thomas, serjeant at arms to that Queen, and King James I. 5. Roger; 6. William; 7. Miles; and 8. John, who all died S. P. the daughters were; 1. Anne, married to Richard Grosvenor, of Eaton, in the county of Chester, Esq; 2. Mary, married to Robert Berkenhead, of Cheshire, Esq; 3. His second wife was, Dorothy, daughter of Robert Tatton, of Weteneshaw, in the county of Chester, Esq; and had issue by her five children; William, the eldest son, died without issue;

James, of whom hereafter; 2. Thomas, who died young; 3. Richard, a great scholar, living at Paris, 1647; 4. Edward, a scholar also in France; 5. Sir William Bradshaigh, who was knighted by King Charles I. for his good services. He married two wives; the first was, Dorothy lady Butler, of Hampshire, by whom he had no issue. He married for his second wife, Margaret, daughter to Sir Francis Englefield, of Berkshire, Knt. relict of Hatton Berners, of Whittlebury in Northamptonshire, Esq; by whom he had, William, who, by Troath, daughter of John Kennet, of Cockshaw in Durham, Esq; had two daughters; 6. Thomas, a student at Naples; 7. Roger, who followed the wars; 8. Peter, living at St. Omers, 1647; 9. Christopher, living then in Italy. The daughters were; 1. He died in the year 1631, before his father; but having married Anne, daughter of Sir William Norris, of Speak, in the county of Lancaster, knight of the Bath, left issue six children, three sons and three daughters; 1. Roger; 2. William, who both died young; 3. Sir Roger Bradshaigh, of Haigh, knight and baronet, the third son of James, before-mentioned, (his elder brothers dying young) born anno 1627, was knighted, 12 Car. II. and created a baronet in the 31st of the same reign. In the twentieth year of his age, 1647, he married Elizabeth, daughter of William Pennington, of Moncaster, in the county of Cumberland, Esq; by whom he had issue four sons and three daughters; 1. Sir

Roger, his successor, of whom hereafter; 2. William; 3. James; 4. Richard, which three last died young; Anne, his eldest daughter, and Catherine, his second daughter, both died young; Elizabeth, his third daughter, married Thomas Preston, of Holker, in the county palatine of Lancaster, Esq; and left issue only one daughter, who became heir to her father, and married Sir William Lowther, of Marfk in Yorkshire, Bart.

Sir Roger was the first Protestant of this family, which, in a great measure, was owing to James, earl of Derby, with whom he was educated; and, at the time of the civil wars, when that noble lord was beheaded at Bolton in Lancashire, he was taken prisoner by the rebels, and confined in the castle of Chester; but nothing could alter his unshaken loyalty to his prince, from whom he received many marks of favour. He was so well esteemed in his country, that he either served them in parliament, as one of their representatives for the county, or, as a burgess for the corporation of Wigan, most part of his life. He died at Chester, March 31, 1684, but was brought to the burial-place of his family, in Wigan church, where his lady erected a marble monument to his memory.

Dr. Wroe, who knew him well, gives this character of him: ‘ He was remarkable for the chasteness of his conjugal love, the goodness of a father’s care, and the sweetness of a master’s rule. ‘ Plenty and welcome were never wanting at his table no man ‘ entertained, both acquaintance and strangers, with greater ‘ freedom and affability. His charity was extended to all ‘ who stood in need of it, and he had not only a chearful heart, ‘ but a liberal hand; which I never knew contracted or shut ‘ up, when any just occasion called to stretch it out; but I ‘ have often been a witness of his forward bounty, that he might ‘ provoke others by the example of his own chearful liberality. ‘ For two things he is to be honoured; his religion to God, ‘ and his unshaken loyalty to his prince. His religion was true ‘ Protestant, in which he was happily educated and instructed ‘ in his greener years, by the care and direction of the right ‘ honourable, James, earl of Derby, to whom he was entrusted ‘ by his faithful guardian, John Fleetwood, of Penwortham, ‘ Esq; to whose religious designs, and the joint endeavours of ‘ his virtuous consort, he owed the early impressions of piety, ‘ and in that family first commenced Protestant, and was thence ‘ sent into the Isle of Man, where the principles he had already ‘ imbibed, were soon cultivated and improved under the um- ‘ brage of that religious, loyal, and great man, who was so ‘ great a patriot both of religion and loyalty, that he died for ‘ both. He being hereby seasonably retrieved from the errors of ‘ Popery, (in which the rest of his relations were trained up) ‘ revived

' revived the religion of his ancestors, and restored new lustre
 ' to his family by the choice of a better profession. An happi' ness, which he thankfully acknowledged, and frequently
 ' blessed God for, and always owned a great veneration for it, ' to the memory of that excellent person, and a true value for ' his honourable family. Nor did he only take up his religion
 ' upon trust, but understood the constitution of it, and ac' quainted himself with its principles, and studied to defend it ;
 ' was zealous to maintain it, and true to it. Next to his reli' gion, his loyalty was most dear to him ; and, indeed, where ' should we hope to find true and steady loyalty, but in a genuine
 ' son of the church of England ? In him both commenced toge' ther, and he gave early proofs of his loyalty, in an age wherein
 ' it was judged a crime ; when rebellion looked gay with suc' cess, and sacrilege had providence to gild it over ; yet, even ' then, he judged not the cause by its success, but by the ' righteousness of it, and durst be honest in spite of bad times.
 ' And since God in his mercy turned the captivity of our Sion, ' how firm and unshaken his fidelity and allegiance have been,
 ' how loyal his endeavours, in all relations of his publick qua' lifications, or private capacity, is too well known to need
 ' either a description or enlargement. The King was well ' acquainted with his worth, and entrusted him with those ' offices, which witnessed the esteem he had both of his faith' fulness and ability, and received so good an account of the ' discharge of his trust in each respect, and such undeniable ' assurances of his affection, both to his person and government,
 ' that he not only honoured him with a peculiar respect, but
 ' was pleased to bestow those marks of his royal favour on him' self and family, which testified the sense he had of his deserts
 ' and honesty. His country judged him a true patriot, no less ' than a good subject, and therefore made choice of him for their ' representative in parliament, in which station he served many ' years, with great diligence and faithfulness ; and, in the re' cesses of that publick employ, was not less serviceable to his ' country at home, than faithful to their interest abroad. For
 ' he was a constant attender on all publick business, and ever
 ' active and industrious in the service of his King and country,
 ' which he always preferred before any diversions of his own,
 ' or (what was most grateful to him) the chearful entertain' ment of his friend. Not like those, who live only to them' selves, but grudge the publick any benefit of the talents which ' God has put into their hands ; who contrive how to spend ' their time, health, and wealth, wholly to their own ease and ' satisfaction ; who, as if they were born to great estates, mere' ly to gratify themselves, not to do good withal, shuffle off all ‘ offices of trust and service, whereby men of estates and interest may promote the good of the place they live in. But he was ready to spend, and be spent, for the common good, which he both rightly understood, and truly valued; making all his designs subservient to the great end of government, the peace and welfare both of church and state, and directing all his actions thereunto, by the constant measures of loyalty and allegiance. For he was none of those who seemed, of late, to have unlearned their allegiance, and repented of their former loyalty; nor none of them, who, when we were ready to be overwhelmed with the torrent of popular madness, were willing to swim with the stream. But he was still the same man, and the same good subject; one immoveably honest, unalterably loyal: for which he shall live in the memories of all that knew him, and long be had in honour and remembrance.’

Sir Roger Bradshaigh, of Haigh, knight and baronet, eldest son of Sir Roger, before-mentioned, was knighted by King Charles II. in the life-time of his father. He married, April 7, anno 1673, Mary, daughter and coheirefs of Henry Murray, Esq; gentleman of the bed-chamber to King Charles I. (by his lady, Anne, viscountess Bayning, so created, for her life, by King Charles II. being daughter to Paul, lord viscount Bayning) by whom he had issue six sons and two daughters; Sir Roger, his successor, Henry, James, William, Richard, and Thomas; Anne, and Elizabeth. He was elected a representative in parliament for the corporation of Wigan, in the county palatine of Lancaster, in the year 1695, before he had arrived to the age of twenty-one years, (there being, at that time, no act of parliament to exclude non-age) and sat in parliament, as a member for that place, about fifty years. SEAT. At Haigh, one mile north from Wigan, in the county palatine of Lancaster.---A large and handsome building, with fine gardens and plantations about it, and is reckoned one of the best situations in the North of England, where, from the top of a large mount in the park, are seen thirteen counties, and the Isle of Man; yet the house and gardens lie so well sheltered, by large groves, on the side of a pleasant and fruitful hill, that all sorts of trees and plants thrive as well as in most gardens in the Southern part of England. In this lordship are the finest works of coals, called Cannel, in England, which is so much admired for its heat and brightness, as well as the extraordinary curiosities made of it, no-wise inferior to jett, in colour, and height of polish. They are inexhaustible mines, and produce a very considerable yearly income to this family.

262. STAPLETON, of the Leeward-Islands,

Created BARONET, Dec. 20, 1679.

THIS family, so well known by its name, (formerly derived from the town of Stapleton, in the county of York) is no less famous, by the great and renowned men it produced in the wars they were engaged in, at different times, with France, Ireland, and the Saracens, than by the dignities and honours conferred on them by the Kings, in whose reigns they lived; and, among those, on whom the knighthood of the garter was first bestowed, we find some of the family of the Stapletons.

They afterwards transplanted themselves into Ireland with the first English, and enjoyed a considerable estate in Tipperary, which was held by them, till John-Edmund Stapleton, of Thorlesbegg, in that county, Esq; who lived in the reign of King Charles I. suffered considerably by adhering to the royal cause. This family, being then dispossessed of their estates, dispersed: some of them went into Spain, where they were raised to high posts in the army; others of them to France, where they bore arms, and were likewise honoured with considerable military employments. In that country, one gentleman of this family and name, now bears the title of Count de Trèves, and possesses a considerable estate at Dervalieres, near Nantes in Bretagne.

The following account of this family is taken from a pedigree lately entered in the Heralds Office, which begins with Sir John Stapleton, Knt. temp. Henry II. and John. He went from England to Ireland in the reign of Henry, and had issue, Edmund, whose son was, Richard. To him succeeded Thomas Stapleton, surnamed Bellagh, or Black. His son, Theobald, had had a son, William, whose issue, Patrick, was succeeded by Walter Stapleton, surnamed Roe, or Red. He married and had issue three sons; Richard; William, who settled in the county of Cork; and John, who settled in the county of Kerry.

Richard, the eldest son, had issue Wilkins, his son and heir, who was succeeded by John, and he by Redmund; Walter, his son, was succeeded by William, and he by Thomas, whose son and heir, Richard, lived temp. Elizabeth. This Richard obtained, May 14, 1566, 9 Eliz. an exemplification of a grant, from King John, of some rebel lands in Ireland, to John Stapleton, of which the following is an abstract.

‘ Elizabeth, by the grace of God, of England, France, and Ireland, Queen, defender of the faith, &c. to all people to whom these present letters shall come, greeting.

‘ We have inspected the deed of the lord John, formerly King of England, our predecessor, in these words: John, by the grace of God, King of England, and lord of Ireland, to all the archbishops, bishops, abbots, counts, barons, justices, viscounts, scheneshalls, provosts, and all his ministers and faithful subjects, We would have it known unto you all by this deed, confirmed by our seal,

‘ That, whereas one Roderigg Mac Warren, and other Irish dwellings in Font-forte, commonly called Drom Mac Warren, in the county of Cassell, and the rest of the Irish of that part of the county, in our land of Ireland, have run out into rebellion, and by no means would return to their allegiance: so that one of our liege subjects, John Stapleton, Knt. since the coming of our lord Henry the Second, late King of England, our most renowned father, into Ireland, held these lands in his Demesne, until that he hath now surrendered the same into our hands, to the intent that we would vouchsafe to grant and confirm unto him this our deed of the said lands herein-after specified, in form following, which surrender we likewise accept of by these presents:

‘ Know ye, therefore, that We, by this our Deed, confirmed with our seal, have granted and confirmed unto our said liege subject, John Stapleton, Knt. all the land of Font-forte, or otherwise called, Drom Mac Warren, aforesaid, with its appurtenances, by the name of the manor of Font-forte, in the said county of Cassell, together with all the towns and lands that lately belonged to those Irish, so fleeing off, and afterwards to the said John Stapleton;---that is to say, Dunbollogh, Balliskehayne, Rathod-arren, Castlehill, Le Bearnane, Monocradoke, Rathernane, Knocknecagh, Kennans, Graga, Downochill, Rathcarmine, Killahegayne, Kildub, Killehous, Loghleass, Rorodestown, Lissinegihe, Kil-

 ‘ Drom Mac Warren aforesaid, being in the cantred of Ellis‘ girt, within the said county; together with all the towns and ‘ lands of Corkahenny, Atheny, Clontybroke, Rathtullen, ‘ Athind, Graige-friochane, Railstown, Graigard, and Cer-‘ tiana; with their appurtenances in Ellisgirt aforesaid, Tulle‘ nyerin, and Clonmore; with their appurtenances in the can‘ tred of Harrine, in the said county, Rathclisse, and Kurefbegg, ‘ with their appurtenances near the city of Cassell aforesaid, in ‘ the said county, and all the towns and lands of Le Macha,
 ‘ with their appurtenances, lying in Ormond, in the said coun‘ ty of Cassell, with all their rents and reversions whatsoever;
 ‘ to have and to hold the aforesaid manor, demesne, towns, ‘ lands, and all other the premises above-mentioned, with all ‘ their profits, liberties, and free customs unto the same belong‘ ing, unto the aforesaid John Stapleton, and his heirs for ‘ ever: to be held of us and of our heirs, the Kings of Eng‘ land, for finding and rendering unto us, and our heirs, as ‘ often as we shall happen to come into our land of Ireland, in ‘ person, to resist the malice of the Irish, one lance, in lieu ‘ of all other rents, services, and demands, whatsoever, from ‘ thenceforth to be paid or performed to us, our heir or assigns;
 ‘ and for this our grant, he, John Stapleton, hath given us,
 ‘ for our use, one thousand two hundred marks of silver,

‘ Wherefore we will, and by these presents, firmly enjoyed ‘ for us and our heirs, that the said John Stapleton, and his ‘ heirs, do for ever have and hold, the manor, demesne, and ‘ all other the aforesaid grants, granted them, well and peace‘ ably, freely and quietly, compleatly and creditably, with all ‘ their profits, freedoms, and free customs, whatsoever, unto ‘ them belonging, from thenceforth ensuing; so that none may ‘ disturb them, or any of them; but that this our deed, or grant,
 ‘ may thenceforth always remain firm without any molestation,
 ‘ or examination, of us our aforesaid heirs, or any of the officers ‘ or ministers of ourselves, or our heirs whatsoever.

‘ We farther grant, by these presents, for ourselves and our ‘ heirs, that the aforesaid John Stapleton, and his heirs, shall,
 ‘ at all times hereafter, judge and govern all the dwellers residing ‘ under him, and every of them, within the aforesaid manor, ‘ demesne, towns, and lands, living and abiding; and that ‘ they have the correction and punishing of them, and every of ‘ them, as often as they shall see it needful.

‘ Witness myself, at the city of York, before W. archbishop
 Wil-

‘ William, earl of Winton ; Richard Parra ; Warrin, the son of Gerald Geoffrey, the son of Peter Peter, the son of Hewbert, and many others, the last day of August, the first year of our reign, and the year of grace, 1199.

‘ We, therefore, according to the tenor of all and singular the premisses, at the request of Richard Stapleton, Gent. have thought fit to exemplify. And these presents on record ; in witness whereof, we have commanded these our letters to be made patents ; witness our well-beloved and trusty counsellor, Henry Sidney, knight of the most noble order of the garter, president and counsellor of our Marches of Wales, and our deputy-general of our kingdom of Ireland. At Dublin, the fourteenth day of May, in the ninth year of our reign.

Created BARONET, April 15, 1681.

THIS family is descended from Hugo de Malebisse, pater Ricardi, testis anno 3 Stephani R. 1138. He married two wives; Emma de Percy, daughter and coheir of William de Percy, and of Adalid de Tonbridge. His second wife was Maud, daughter of ---- Knyveton, of Knyveton: by this last he had no issue; but by his first wife he had three sons; 1. Hugo de Malebisse, anno 3 Ric. I. 1 Joh. Justiciarius ad Assisas. 1 Hen. III. 1216. 14 K. John, he paid twenty marks composition for the plea of the forest. He married two wives, but had no issue. The second son of Hugo, father of Hugo, last mentioned, was Richard, Justiciarius ad Assisas, anno 4 Joh. R. 1203. 2 Rich. I. he paid twenty pounds to be forester, as he had been in the time of King Henry. 1 K. John, he paid five pounds for the farm of Galtres. This Richard founded the abbey of Newbo in Lincolnshire, of the order of Præmonstratensis, and gave to God, St. Mary, and the canons of Newbo, all his lands in the village of Newbo, with the churches of Acastor and Knyveton, &c. This Richard married, and had a numerous issue, which extended itself to many generations. The third son of Hugo, first mentioned, was William de Malebisse, 8 Joh. 1201. He had two sons, Richard and Hugh. Hugh does not appear to have had issue; but Richard left a son, Sir Simon Malby, or Malbifs, Knt. lord of of Cowton in Craven, who married the daughter of John lord Methley, and had issue three sons, John, Roger, and Hercules; John, the eldest son and heir, married a daughter of Sir Allen Zouche, Knt. and had issue, Sir John Malbie, lord of Cowton, who married the daughter of Sir John Audbrow; of Audbrow, and had issue, John lord Malbie, who married the daughter of Sir Edmund Wolfstrobe; lord of Wolfstrobe; and had issue three daughters; from the eldest, Margaret, 7 Ed. III. 1226, to change his name to Beckwith. He left issue one son and heir, Nicholas, who married a daughter of Sir John Chaworth, Knt. by whom he had issue one son, Hamond, who was obliged to take the name of Beckwith, by virtue of the marriage contract, between his grandfather, Sir Hercules, and Dame Beckwith Bruce, his wife; when it was agreed, he should either do that, or else his coat of armour; but he chose to retain the latter, as appears by what follows.

‘ Be it known to all nobles where this present writing shall ‘ come, be seen, or heard: Whereas Hammon Beckwith, ‘ Esq; son and heir of Nicholas Beckwith, was warned by the

‘ And the said orator did appear, at the said day appointed, and did bring with him such evidence; whereof one piece, bearing date from the tenth year of Hen. III. which was in the year of our Lord, 1226, from one Hercules Malbie, the third son of Sir Symon Malbie, Knt. which married the lady dame Beckwith Bruce, one of the daughters of Sir William Bruce, lord of Uglebarby, and certain lands in Pickering, that the said Hercules should change his name, or else his coat, and his posterity for ever; and so it was that the said Hercules changed his name from Malbie to Beckwith, and did hold his coat: whereof I, the said earl-marshal, Peter Mawlam, lord of de Luke, lord-chamberlain to our sovereign lord King Edward III. and Henry lord Percy, Sir Robert Boynton, Knt. and Sir William Acton, did see and allow of it in due proof, and the aforesaid coat, to be his own, lineally descended; whereof we have set our hands and seals to the aforesaid teste, the day and year above-written, in the presence of many.’

Which Sir Thomas, married Anne, sole daughter and heir of Thomas Cressey, of Berkyn in Yorkshire, Esq; whose ancestors came in with William the Conqueror, (and Elizabeth, his wife, sole daughter of Sir Henry Glemham, of Glemham-Hall, in Suffolk, Knt.) and had issue five children, viz. The said Sir Thomas was educated at Westminster-school, under Dr. Busby and Dr. Knype, was two years and a half of Trinity college, Cambridge, and afterwards of the inns of court, and constantly performed his mootings, as a student for eight years.

He had the perpetual advowsons of the rectories of Cortlingstock and Keyworth, and the vicarage of Bunny; he being impropriator of the latter: the first thing he did after his father's death, death, (being then come of age) willing to begin with God's house, he new roofed the chancel at Bunny, which is a very large one, being fifty-eight feet in length, and twenty-four feet wide, within the walls : he built the free-school, and four alms-houses, which cost 400l. and which his mother endowed with 16l. per ann. also built the vicarage-house, and gave the two treble bells to the church, with this motto on them, Cantate Domino novum canticum, which make the peal six : and jointly with his mother, advanced 200l. to obtain as much more of the late Queen's bounty, for augmenting the vicarage of Bunny, as is recorded on monuments erected by himself, to the memories of himself and mother, in the said chancel, at the east end of which, he hath built a large vault for himself and family : he also gave five pounds four shillings per ann. to the poor widows, and widowers of Bunny and Bradmore, to be distributed in bread, every Sunday, in Bunny church, to such only that constantly frequent the same, as long as able. He also erected the manor-houses in Bunny, and East-Leak ; likewise, a very large house, called Highfield-Grange, in the parish of Cortlingstock. He built a park wall of brick, three miles in compass, in three years, in the liberty of Bunny, all on arches, being the first that was built in England, after that method ; and since followed by most eminent builders of houses, and park-walls ; but especially gardeners, for the advantage of trees, shooting, and spreading their roots under the said arches, and yielding the bigger head for the benefit of the fruit ; for it is observable, that the head is bigger, proportionable to the root. He built all the farm houses, &c. in Bunny and Bradmore. He was the first that brought that noble science of Wrestling into a method, as appears by a book he wrote upon that subject. He studied physick for the good and benefit of his neighbours ; and had not only a competent, but a perfect and complete knowledge of all parts of the mathematics, of which he was a great lover, especially architecture and hydraulics, contriving and drawing all his plans without an architect. He acted as justice of the peace in King Charles II's reign, and ever since, till his death, for the counties of Nottingham and

Leicester, being never out of commission, but one month, in King James II's reign.

He had issue by his first lady, Elizabeth, two sons, Sampson and Thomas: Sampson married Alice, sole daughter and heiress of ----- Middlemore, of Lusby in Lincolnshire, Esq; and had issue four children; viz. Sir Thomas, his successor, and George, who is an officer in General Elliot's light-horse, and one daughter, Anne, married to colonel Miles. Lady Parkyns died Aug. 1740; and Sir Thomas in March, 1740-1, and was buried under a handsome monument in Bunny church, which he had erected many years ago, whereon is his own statue, in a wrestling posture with Time.

His son, Riride Myddelton, was father of Robert Myddelton, whose son, Riride, was father of David Myddelton, of Gwynenoge, in the county of Denbigh, receiver of North-Wales, to King Edw. IV. who married Ellen, daughter of Sir John Done, of Utkington in Cheshire, Knt. His third son, Fulke Myddelton, Esq; by Margaret, daughter of Thomas Smith, alderman of Chester, had several children; Richard Myddelton, of Denbigh, Esq; his fourth son, married Jane, daughter of Hugh Dryhurst, of Denbigh, (and Lucy, his wife, daughter of Robert Greensdyke) by whom he had several children; Sir Thomas, his eldest surviving son, was sheriff of London, alderman, and lord-mayor of the said city, 1613, and gave 500l. to the grocers company; and his grandson was,

Sir Thomas Middleton, of Chirk-castle in Denbighshire, created baronet, July 4, 1660, whose grandson, Sir William Myddleton, was the last baronet of this branch who died unmarried, Jan. 5, 1717-18, at his house in Ormond-street in Middlesex, æt. 24, leaving Robert Myddleton, Esq; recorder of Shrewsbury, his heir, who dying without issue, that estate came to his brother, John Myddleton, Esq; member of parliament for the county of Denbigh. The sixth son of Richard Myddleton, of Denbigh, Esq; by Jane Dryhurst, before-mentioned, was,

Sir Hugh Middleton, of London, goldsmith, and of Ruthin in Denbighshire, created baronet, Oct. 22, 1622. He found out the silver-mines in North-Wales; but what renders his name famous to posterity is, the undertaking to draw a trench, or cut of water, from the springs of Amwell, and Chadwell, near Ware in Hertfordshire, to the north part of the city of London, (now called the New-River) but consuming a fair estate in the charge and expence of this great work, whereby he was disabled to accomplish the same (a), the mayor, commonality, and citizens of London, attempted it; and, in order thereto, obtained an act of parliament, anno 1605, which since has been confirmed, with new powers, by other acts of parliament; and the same brings in a vast sum, annually, to the present proprietors, and is of vast use to the city and suburbs of London, who are chiefly served with this water, at an annual rent.

(a) Chauncy's Herif. p. 5. but Stow, in his Survey, vol. I. b. 1. p. 25, says, that famous (and never to be forgotten) New-river, brought from Chadwell, and Amwell, by the only care, cost, and liberal expences of one worthy man, Sir Hugh Middleton, Knt. and Bart: citizen and goldsmith of London, deserveth to be recorded in everlasting memory.

rent. Sir Hugh gave a share in the New-river water, to the company of goldsmiths, for the benefit of the poor members of it, which is greatly advanced since his death; the dividend of one half year, in 1704, amounted to 134l. which dividends are customarily bestowed upon the said poor, at 26s. each. This Sir Hugh married Elizabeth, daughter and sole heir of John Olmestead, of Ingerstone in Essex, by whom he had five sons, and a daughter, Jane, married to Peter Chamberlain, of London, M. D. Of the sons; John and Hugh, the two eldest, both died S. P. the third son, and successor to his father, was, Sir William, who married Elianor, daughter of Sir Thomas Harris, of Shrewsbury, Bart. but the title, in the Ruthian branch, became extinct (as I take it) in his grandson, Sir Hugh Myddleton, Bart. The fourth son of Sir Hugh, was Simon, of whom we are now to treat; and 5. Henry.

Simon Middleton, Esq; fourth son of Sir Hugh, the undertaker of the New-river, was of Hurst-hill, in Edmonton parish, in Middlesex, and had four wives; by the first, he had no issue; by his second, Mary, daughter of John Soame, of Burnham-market in Norfolk, Esq; he had two sons, Sir Hugh, and Simon, who died unmarried; and four daughters; Mary, married to Edmund Soame, of London, woollen-draper, eighth son of Sir William Soame, of Thurlow in Suffolk, Knt. Sarah, to Robert, earl of Oxford, and Mortimer, son of Sir Edward Harley, of Brampton-brian in Hertfordshire, Knt. Hannah, to John Matthew, of London, merchant; and Anne, to Bennet Swayne, of London, merchant; besides two other children, who (it is supposed) died young: his third wife was, Elizabeth, daughter of — Smitheby, by whom he had two sons, Benjamin, and Ezekiah, who died unmarried; and two daughters; Elizabeth, married to John Lane, of London, merchant; and Rebecca, wife of William Barham, of Norwich, merchant; his fourth wife was, Mary, daughter of Sir Samuel Luke, of Bedfordshire, Knt. relict of — Ellis, (who surviving him, was re-married to her third husband, — Barrington, of London, and Hoxton; and to her fourth, — Blackerby.)

Sir Hugh Myddelton, eldest son of Simon, was of Hackney in Middlesex, and advanced to the dignity of a baronet, 33 Car. II. He married Dorothy, daughter of Sir William Oglander, of Nunwell, in the Isle of Wight, Bart. by whom he had a daughter, Dorothy, (who died Nov. 1735) married to Henry Berkley, of the Middle-Temple, Esq. This lady Myddleton lies buried in Long-Melford church, in Suffolk.

Sir Hugh Middleton, the present baronet, is said to be a captain of a man of war. Not being able to obtain any account from this family, we cannot take upon us to say, whether this Sir Hugh is son of the last Sir Hugh, or grandson, or nephew. If the last, it must be by a special limitation in the patent. It is probable this title is extinct; but we think it more respectful to admit it into this work, than to suppress it through mere conjecture.

ARMS. Argent, on a Pile, Vert, three Wolves Heads, erased, of the Field, which alteration, from a Bend, to a Pile, was made by William Camden, Clarencieux King at Arms, 1622, on application of Sir Hugh Myddleton, of Ruthin, Bart.

CREST. On a Helmet, a Dexter Hand, proper, out of a Crown, Or.

268. ALSTON, of Chelsea, Middlesex.

Created BARONET, Jan. 20, 1681.

* THIS Sir Joseph Alston, Bart. (the person of whom we are now principally to treat, second son of Edward Alston, of Edwardston in Suffolk, Esq;) married Mary, one of the daughters and coheirs of Mr. Crookenberg, of Bergen-op-Zoom, in the province of Brabant, a Dutch merchant, with whom he had about 12000*l.* fortune; at the time of his creation, he resided at Chelsea, though he purchased Bradwell-abbey, in Buckinghamshire, for the future residence of his family. He died May, 1688, leaving issue three sons and two daughters, (eight having died young in his life-time) viz. 1. Sir Joseph. 2. Edward, who married Mary, daughter of captain Thompson, by whom he had one son, Joseph, and several daughters; 3. Isaac, who was born at Edwardston, 1688, who had a design of building a house upon an estate, about two miles from Edwardston; and, in pursuance of that design, had laid down great quantities of timber upon the place; but his father would have the timber removed to Edwardston, and build the house where the old one stood, and would have this branch of the family settle there, because it was the place of his nativity; and, accordingly, he did remove the timber, and built his house at Edwardston, though both he, and his father, died before the house was finished. He married Mary, one of the daughters and coheirs of Henry Seile, of London, by whom he had one son, Joseph, which Joseph was seated at Edwardston, and a very ingenious gentleman, and a collector of medals: he married Laurentia, sole daughter and heir of the reverend Charles Trumball, LL.D. brother to Sir William Trumball, Knt. secretary of state to King William, by whom he left one son, Joseph, and three daughters; viz. Sir Joseph Alston, Bart. eldest son and heir of Sir Joseph, before-mentioned, was seated at Bradwell-abbey, in the county of Bucks, and died March 14, 1688-9, and was buried in the chancel of the church, at Bradwell, aged forty-nine. He was succeeded in title and estate by his eldest son,

Sir Joseph Alston, Bart. who married Penelope, one of the daughters and coheirs of Sir Edward Evelyn, of Long-Ditton in Surry, Knt. by whom he left two sons, Sir Joseph, and Sir Evelyn; also several daughters; Penelope, Elizabeth, Theodosia, and Die-Patris, a name given her, because she was born on her father's birth-day.

Sir Joseph, the eldest son, succeeded his father, and took to wife, ----- Thursby, and died without issue; whereupon, the title devolved upon his brother,

Sir Evelyn Alston, the late baronet, who married -----, by whom he had two sons, Evelyn, and William; and one daughter. He was succeeded in dignity and estate by his eldest son, 269. MAYNARD, of Walthamstow, Essex.

Created BARONET, Feb. 1, 1681.

IT appears from the roll of Battle-abbey, wherein the names of those are inserted, who accompanied William, duke of Normandy, in his victorious expedition into this kingdom, that Mainard, (as Hollinshed writes the name) and Maignard, (as Stow) was one of them. And our genealogists agree, that the present lord Maynard, and Sir William Maynard, Bart. are descended from him.

It is evident from our records, that in the reign of King Hen. III. Edward Mainard sold, to the monastery of Shepey, lands in Milsed in Kent. And that John Mainard, of Axminster in Devonshire, served under Edward, prince of Wales, in his victorious expeditions in France. And on the 28th of July, 1352, 26 Edw. III. was constituted governor of Brest castle, in Britany.

After whom, in 2 Rich. II. was William Mainard, one of the witnesses to that grant of William Eggecumbe, of Cotehele in Devonshire, of lands in Midelton, in the said county, to the convent of Tavistock: but John Mainard is said to be the son and heir of the before-mentioned John, and that he died in the second year of King Henry IV. leaving issue, Nicholas Mainard, Esq; who left this world in 8 Hen. V. and was father of John Mainard, Esq; who departed this life in the first year of King Edward IV. and was succeeded by Nicholas, his son and heir, who died in 14 Henry VII. and left issue a son of his own name.

Which last Nicholas Mainard, Esq; had two wives; Margaret, daughter to John Ellys, of Ellys in Devonshire, Esq; and Dorothy, daughter to Edmund Mundy, of the county of Derby: he had issue, by each wife, a son, John.

The son, by the second venter, made his will, December 4, 38 Hen. VIII.

His elder brother, John Maynard, Esq; son and heir of Nicholas, in the seventh year of King Edward VI. was steward of the borough of St. Alban's for life, in which year they were first incorporated. He died on the 21st of October, in 3 and 4 Phil. and Mary, leaving Ralph, his son and heir, twenty years of age, as is evident from the inquisition after his death, taken at St. Alban's the fourteenth of January following. He made his his will (writing himself, John Maynard, of St. Alban's, Esq;) on the eighteenth of October, in 3 and 4 Phil. and Mary, ordering his body to be buried in the parish church of St. Michael, in St. Alban's, and bequeaths to his son, Ralph, 10l. yearly, for his education in the law, (but if he withdrew from that study, the annuity to cease) as also all his goods in his dwelling-house at St. Alban's. He mentions his son's wife, the daughter of John Bridge, Anne Bridge, his wife's daughter, Henry and Robert Maynard, his sons, and Dorothy, Mary, and Awdry, his daughters; constituting Dorothy, his wife, executrix, and his brother, Thomas Skipwith, overseer.

The said John Maynard was chose one of the members for St. Alban's, in the parliament called in the first year of Queen Mary, and was one of those thirty-nine members, who are recorded in my lord chief-justice Coke's Institutes, to absent themselves from the parliament, rather than join in receiving the Pope's authority into this realm; for which they were indicted in the King's-bench; 'For that they appeared in the parliament, and were there present: yet notwithstanding, lightly esteeming the inhibition of the King and Queen, and having no regard of the commonweal of this realm of England, afterwards, namely, 12 Jan. 1 and 2 of the King and Queen, and during the parliament, departed without licence, in manifest contempt of the said King and Queen's command and injunction, and to the great detriment of the commonweal of the kingdom, and to the pernicious example of all other.'

But to this they pleaded, That the high court of parliament subfisted by its own laws and customs, and that the King cannot take notice of any thing said or done in the house of commons, but by the report of the said house, &c.

This John Maynard had to his first wife, Mary, daughter of Sir Ralph Rowlet, of St. Alban's, and Sandridge, in the county of Hertford, (and coheir to her brother, Sir Ralph Rowlet) by whom he had issue, Ralph Maynard, of St. Alban's, Esq; father of Robert Maynard, of St. Alban's, Esq. The second wife of the said John Maynard, was Dorothy, daughter of Robert Perrot, Esq; and widow of John Bridge, by whom he had issue, Henry Maynard, his son and heir, and other children.

Which Henry, was secretary to the famous William Cecil, lord Burghley, lord-treasurer of England, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth; and served in three several parliaments for the borough of St. Alban's, viz. in 28, 30, and 39th years of Queen Elizabeth. Also in the forty-third of that reign, was elected one of the knights for the county of Essex; and was sheriff of the said county in the last year of Queen Elizabeth, who conferred ferred the honour of knighthood on him. He married Susan, second daughter and coheir of William Peirson, Esq; gentleman-usher of the star-chamber, by whom he had eight sons; (though few married) and two daughters; Elizabeth, married to Sir Edward Bainton, of Bromham in Wiltshire, Knt. and Mary, who died unmarried, and lies buried at Eastains ad Turrim, in Essex, otherwise called, Little Easton.

Of his sons; William, the eldest, was knighted, and created a baronet, and afterwards dignified with the title of lord Maynard, of Wicklow in Ireland, and baron Maynard, of Eastains, alias Easton Parva, in Essex, and was ancestor to the present lord Maynard.

Sir John Maynard, the second son, was of Tooting in Surry, and made knight of the Bath, and died July 29, 1658. He married Mary, daughter of Sir Thomas Middleton, of Chirk-castle in Denbighshire, Knt. and had issue three sons and two daughters, four of which died without issue; Sir John Maynard, Knt. only surviving son, was of Tooting in Surry, and of Iselham in Cambridgeshire, and married Catherine, daughter of John Rushout, Esq; (who was re-married to Francis Buller, of Shillingham in Cornwall, Esq;) by whom he left one daughter and heir, Mary, married, first, to William Adams, Esq; son and heir of Sir William Adams, of Sprowston in Norfolk, Bart. secondly, to Sir Rushout Cullen, of Upton in Warwickshire, Bart. and thirdly, to — Buller, of Shillingham in Cornwall, Esq.

But the third son of Sir Henry, the secretary, was, Charles Maynard, Esq; auditor of the Exchequer, who settled at Walthamstow, A. D. 1635, and having married Mary, the daughter of Zeger Corfellis, of London, merchant, died Nov. 19, 1665, having had issue, (besides two daughters, Mary and Anne) Charles Maynard, Esq; who deceased a little before his father, unmarried; Henry, who died an infant; Sir William; and another Henry, who was an eminent Spanish merchant, and a principal benefactor to the parish of Walthamstow. But the third son, and him in whom this line was continued, was,

Sir William Maynard, of Walthamstow in Essex, third, but eldest surviving son and heir, who was created a baronet, 33 Car. II. and was sometime representative of that county in parliament; and by his wife, Mary, the daughter of William Baynbrigg, Esq; citizen and merchant-taylor, of London, he had issue (besides three daughters, Mary, married to Sir William Scawen, of Cashalton in Surry, Knt. and died Aug. 30, 1700, aged 32; Jane, and Elizabeth, who died unmarried) four sons; 1. William; 2. Charles, who both died infants;

3. Sir

3. Sir William, his successor; and 4. Sir Henry, successor to his brother.

Sir William Maynard, of Walthamstow, Bart. eldest surviving son, and successor to his father, died a bachelor, Dec. 25, 1715, and was succeeded by his brother, the fourth son, then resident at Aleppo in Turkey,

Sir Henry Maynard, of Walthamstow in Essex, Bart. where he had a fair seat and manor of High-hall, alias Walthamstow-Tony, in the forest of Waltham, of which he was, 1725, unanimously chosen verdurer. He married Catherine, the daughter of George Guntur, of Racton in Suffex, Esq; (March 22, 1719-20) sister to the late Sir Charles Guntur Nicholl, knight of the Bath. This lady died in Nov. 1744, and left issue one son, Sir William, his successor, born April 19, 1721. Sir Henry died at Walthamstow, Nov. 16, 1738, and was succeeded in dignity and estate by his only son,

Sir William Maynard, the present baronet, who married, Aug. 13, 1751, Charlotte, second daughter of Sir Cecil Bishopp, of Parham, Suffex, Bart. by whom he had issue; 1. Charles, born Aug. 9, 1752; 2. Anne; 3. William, born Feb. 14, 1756; 4. Henry, born Oct. 30, 1758, all living. Lady Charlotte Maynard died May 16, 1762; Sir William was knight of the shire in the two last parliaments, as he is in the present, for the county of Essex, and is recorder of Saffron-Walden.

The right honourable Charles lord Maynard was advanced, Oct. 28, 1766, to the dignity of a viscount of the kingdom of England; and in default of male-issue in him, then in remainder to the above baronet, and his heirs male.

270. NAPIER, of Punknoll, Dorsetshire.

Created BARONET, Feb. 25, 1681.

SEVERAL pedigrees, and the following certificate of Sir Archibald Naper, of Merchiston in Scotland, Knt. deputy-treasurer of that kingdom, and of the privy-council to King Charles I. declare this family to be descended from the ancient earls of Lenox, created to that title in the reign of Malcolm III. about the year 1057.

To all and singular as well noble and gentlemen, both English, French, and Scotch, as others, to whom these presents shall come : know, that I, Sir William Segar, Knt. als. Garter, principal herald and king of arms of this realm of England, send greeting, in our Lord God Everlasting. Whereas anciently, from the beginning, the valiant and virtuous acts of worthy persons have been commended to the world, with sundry monuments and remembrances of their good deserts, amongst which, the chiefest and most usual hath been the bearing of signs in shields called arms, which are evident demonstrations of prowess and valour diversly distributed, according to the qualities and deserts of the persons meriting the same ; which order, as it was prudently devised in the beginning, to stir up and kindle the hearts of men to the imitation of virtue and nobleness, even so hath the same been, and as yet is continually observed, to the end that such as have done commendable service to their prince or country, either in war or peace, may both receive due honour in their lives, and also derive the same successively to their posterity after them, for ever. Among which, I find Sir Robert Naper, of Luton-Hoo, in the county of Bedford, Knt. and Bart. to be nobly descended from the ancient earls of Lenox in Scotland ; and being desired by him, the said Sir Robert Naper, to make entry of his descent and genealogy in the office of arms, and because the ancient records of those countries remain not with us, and the said Sir Robert Naper, and others, being so descended as aforesaid, and now remaining within the realm of England, I, to satisfy his just and laudable request, herein have entered the same in the office of arms, as they were delivered unto me by the said Sir Robert, with certificate under the hand and seal of Sir Archibald Naper, of Merchiston, in the realm of Scotland, in these words, viz. To all and singular person or persons, to whom these presents shall come, greeting. Know ye, that I, Sir Archibald Naper, of Merchiston, in the kingdom of Scotland, Knt. deputy-treasurer, and one of his majesty's privy-council there, for as much as my entirely beloved kinsman Sir Robert Naper, of Luton-

ten-Hoo, in the county of Bedford, Knt. and Bart. being desirous to be informed of his pedigree and descent from my house, I have, to satisfy his lawful and laudable request, herein declared the truth thereof, and the original of our name, as by tradition from father to son, we have generally, and without any doubt, received the same. That one of the ancient earls of Lenox in Scotland had issue three sons; the eldest succeeded him in the earldom of Lenox; the second, whose name was Donald, and the third, named Sillcrist. —, the then king of Scots, having wars, did convocate his leiges to the battle, amongst whom that was commanded was the earl of Lenox, who, keeping his eldest son at home, sent his second son to serve for him, with the forces that were under his command: this battle went hard with the Scots, for the enemy pressing furiously upon them, forced them to lose ground, untill at last they fell to flat running away, which being perceived by Donald, he pulled his father's standard from the bearer thereof, and valiantly encountering the foe, being well followed by the earl of Lenox's men, he repulsed the enemy, and changed the fortune of the day, whereby a great victory was got. After the battle, as the manner is, every one advancing, and setting forth his own acts, the king said unto them, Ye have all done valiantly, but there is one amongst you who bath Na-peir, and calling Donald unto his presence, commanded, in regard of his worth, service, and augmentation of his honour, to change his name from Lenox to Naper, and gave him the lands of Goffurd, and lands in Fife, and made him his own servant; which discourse is confirmed by sundry of my old evidences and testimonies, wherein we are called Lenox als Naper; after this, the earldom of Lenox, for want of heirs-male, went to daughters, the elder whereof was married to Sir John Mentith, of Rosky, who was earl of Lenox, during his natural life; and the younger was married to Allen Stewart, lord Darnley, of whom is descended the king's majesty, the dukes of Lenox, and divers other nobles of Scotland; Sir John Mentith had two daughters, the first married to — Haddon, of Glengis, and the second was married to John Naper, of Rosky and Merchiston, being the son of Sir Alexander Naper, of Merchiston, descended from Donald aforesaid; amongst them there was great strifes and controversies, for the title and honour of Lenox, but the revenue was divided amongst them, and I hold some land to this day in Lenox, which came to my ancestor, by the same division; as also certain lands, which did anciently belong to the said Sir John Mentith, for Sir John Mentith, according to the laws and customs of the country, enjoyed the honour for his life, and left the same to descend to the said — Haddon, of Glengis; for Naper, of Merchiston, besides his marriage, bore his ancient arms, surname, and descent, from the house of the earls of Lenox, for the lord Darnley was in the king's special favour and inclination, which being known unto Naper, of Merchiston, being then in the king's service, he relinquished his suit, and is said, got Blairinwades for that cause; but I do find, that he did give his part of the fishing of Levin, and the Water-mouth of Inch-Tavenock, with the patronages for some churches for Blairinwades. And for further testimony for the affection of the said Napers, of Merchiston, the lord Darnly did, in recompence of their relinquishing their claim to the dignity of Lenox, tie themselves and their heirs to support and maintain the said house of the Napers and their heirs, in all just occasions and engagements, as by ancient evidences is manifested. The said Sir John Naper, of Merchiston and Rosky had issue, Archibald, father to Sir Alexander, who had issue, Sir Alexander and James, (hereafter mentioned); Sir Alexander had issue, Sir Alexander, who had issue, Sir Archibald and Alexander; Sir Archibald had issue, Sir John and Sir Alexander; Sir John was my father; Alexander, second son of Sir Alexander and brother to Sir Archibald, my grandfather, as aforesaid, having spent the greatest part of his youth in foreign parts, came into England in the time of King Henry VIII. and had issue the aforesaid Sir Robert Naper, Knt. and Bart. Richard Naper, of Linford, now living, and divers other sons and daughters. James, aforesaid, coming into England in the time of King Henry VII. and first planting himself in Swire, in the county of Dorset, who had issue, 1. Edward, of Oxford and Swire aforesaid: 2. Nicholas Naper, of Tintinhull, in the county of Somerset: 3. James, of Midlemershall, in the county of Dorset. From the elder brother are descended the Napers of Oxford; the third brother, James of Midlemershall, was father to Sir Robert Naper, of Midlemershall, some time lord chief-baron of Ireland, and father to Sir Nathaniel Naper, now living. This James had divers other issues, being grandfather to John Naper and Robert Naper *, of Punknoll, in the county of Dorset, Esqrs. and divers others of that stem, now living in that county. Nicholas Naper, of Tintinhull, in the county of Somerset, Esq; hath also divers issues. These things being found by me, as aforesaid, causeth me, out of the natural affection and love which I bear to my loving cousins, Sir Robert Naper, Knt. and Bart. Sir Nathaniel Naper, and the rest of my said kindred in England, to testify and give allowance to them, to bear my arms, supporters, and crest, with their due differences, as their lawful right and ancient inheritance, and as the same are depicted in the margin; and do hereby acknowledge them to be kinsmen of my blood, and branched from my house, according to due proof, as is above declared. In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal

In witness whereof, I, the said Garter, have set hereunto my hand and seal of office, the first day of September, in the first year of the reign of our sovereign Lord Charles, by the grace of God, king of Great-Britain, France, and Ireland, defender of the faith, &c,

WILLIAM SEGAR, Garter.

Robert Napier, Esq; (second son of Sir Nathaniel Napier, by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter and sole heir to John Gerard, of Hyde, in the Isle of Purbeck, Esq;) was seated at Punknoll in Dorsetshire. In the reigns of King Charles I. and II. he was master of the hanaper-office, and enjoyed many other employments at court after the restoration, having been a great sufferer during the Oliverian government, by plunders and sequestration of his estate. He married three wives; first, Anna, daughter to Allan Corrance, of Wykyn in Suffolk, Esq; by whom he had one son, Robert; and a daughter, Anna, married to John Fry, of Yarty in Devonshire, Esq; His second wife was Catherine, sister to the lord Hawley, of Somersetshire, by whom he had no issue. His third wife was Mary, daughter of Sir Thomas, and sister to Sir Edward Evelyn, of Long-Ditton in Surrey, Bart. and relict of Edmund Ironside, of Rickmansworth in Hertfordshire, Esq; by whom likewise he had no issue.

Robert Napier, Esq; his only son and heir, was a student at Oxford, and of the Middle-Temple; and, in his father's lifetime master of the hanaper-office. In the troublesome times, the latter end of K. Char. II's reign, (about the time of the Oxford parliament) his majesty was pleased to send for him to Windsor, where he knighted him, and appointed him high-sheriff for the county of Dorset, reposing (in those troublesome times) a great trust and confidence in him; soon after which, his majesty was pleased to command his attending him again. When, as a farther mark of his royal favour, his majesty was pleased to bestow on him a warrant, under the privy-seal, for a Baronet, which he was pleased to command him to pass into a patent, for himself and his heirs; after this he had the honour to serve in the convention parliament, and some succeeding parliaments for the borough of Weymouth and Melcomb Regis.

Created BARONET, May 12, 1682.

THIS family is supposed to descend from John Davers, of Worming-Hall in Buckinghamshire, Esq; who married the daughter and heir of — Popham, by whom he had issue, John Davers, of the same place, Esq; who married Isabel, daughter of Sir John Wriothesley, garter king at arms, (from whom descended Wriothesley, earl of Southampton.) By her he had issue; 1. Rowland, his son and heir; 2. John, slain at Bullen, temp. Hen. VIII. 3. Luke, slain at Newhaven; and 4. Mark, who was of Cleare-hall in Suffolk, and twice married; first, to Jane, daughter of Richard Beale, of Cleare-hall in Suffolk, by whom he had issue, William, his son and heir, Wriothesley, Dorothy, (wife of John Aylmer) Joan, Barbara, Bridget, and Elizabeth. His second wife was, Joan, daughter to John de la Hoo, by whom he had issue, Richard.

Robert Davers, Esq; a descendant from these, (as is presumed) was born in England, but went to Barbadoes, where he acquired a large fortune, and came into England again, and purchased Rougham in Suffolk, and other estates; and, in consideration of his father's, and his own loyalty to King Charles I. and II. having been great sufferers, both in their persons and estates, in the civil wars, was advanced to the dignity of a baronet, 34 Car. II.

He married, and had issue, Sir Robert Davers, of Rougham, Bart. who married Mary, the eldest daughter of Thomas lord Jermyn, of Rushbrook in Suffolk, by whom he had five sons; viz. Sir Robert; Sir Jermyn; Thomas, an admiral, who married Catherine, daughter, and at length sole heir of William Smythson, M. D. and Henry and Charles, who died young. Also five daughters; Mary, married to Clement Corrance, Esq; late member of parliament for Orford in Suffolk; Isabella, married to Brigadier-general Moyl; Penelope, to Dr. Pake; Henrietta, married to Roger Pratt, Esq; and Eliza, married to John King, of Norfolk, Esq.

Sir Robert Davers, the father of these sons and daughters, frequently represented the county of Suffolk in parliament, in the reigns of Queen Anne, and King George I. and died Oct. 1, 1722.

Sir Robert Davers, Bart. the eldest son, succeeded his father in title and estate, but did not long survive him, dying issueless in June 1723. Whereupon,

Sir Jermyn Davers, Bart. (next brother to Sir Robert) became heir to the title and estate, and was, in his father's lifetime, elected member of parliament for the borough of St. Edmundsbury in Suffolk, in the second parliament of King George I. which met May 10, 1722; and in the first parliament of King George II. summoned to meet, Nov. 28, 1727, he was chosen knight of the shire for Suffolk, and represented that county in parliament till his death. He married Magrilla, eldest daughter and coheir of the reverend Mr. Greene, by whom he had four sons and two daughters. The sons are all dead, except the third son, Sir Charles, the present baronet. Of the daughters; Mary is unmarried; and Elizabeth is the wife of the reverend Frederick Hervey, bishop of Derry, in the kingdom of Ireland, third brother to the present earl of Bristol. Sir Jermyn died in Feb. 1743, and was succeeded by,

Sir Charles Davers, his only surviving son, who is the present baronet. Sir Charles is representative in the present parliament for Weymouth, and unmarried.

ARMS. Argent, on a Bend, Gules, three Martlets, Or. It is very plain from the arms this family gives, that they are the same with Danvers, in the same manner as the Fanes and Vanes, the Mostyns and Mawsons, &c. Sir Charles Davers, that suffered with the earl of Essex in Queen Elizabeth's time, is called by our historians both Davers and Danvers. Besides the arms this family gives are the same with what the Danvers's of Culworth gave, (till lately that they have assumed their proper coat armour) viz. Argent, on a Bend, Gules, three Martlets, Or. These are Bracesters, the heirs of which family was married to Richard Danvers, in Edward III's time. It was very common to assume the wife's or mother's Arms, particularly, if they were more noble, or great heiresses.

CREST. A Jay, proper, with a Ring, Or, in his bill; but, since the marriage with the Jermyn's, they give a Talbot, passant, Argent.

SEAT. At Rushbrook, near St. Edmundsbury, Suffolk.

272. RICHARDS, of Bramley-House, Suffex.

Created BARONET, Feb. 22, 1683-4.

OF this family was John Richards, Esq; who came into England with the Queen-Mother of Charles II. from Thoulouse in France. He had a numerous issue.

James, his youngest son, was first knighted by his Majesty King Charles II. for saving several men of war, and by the said King advanced to the dignity of a baronet, the thirty-fifth of his reign. He married two wives; first, Mrs. Anne Popely, of Redhouse in Bristol, by whom he had two sons, Sir John, his successor, and Arthur, who died S. P. M. also one daughter, Elizabeth; his second wife was, Beatrice Herrera, by whom he left four sons, viz. 1. Sir Joseph, successor to his half-brother; 2. Sir Philip, successor to his brother; 3. James; and 4. Lewis: also, one daughter, Clara. Sir James went and settled in Spain, where he died, being succeeded by his eldest son, by the first venter,

Sir John Richards, Bart. who was colonel of a regiment of foot in the Spanish service before he was twenty-one, which he afterwards quitted, and took to merchandize, and carried on a very considerable trade at Cadiz; but dying unmarried, was succeeded by his half-brother, Sir Joseph, eldest son of Sir James, by the second venter.

Which Sir Joseph Richards, Bart. died also unmarried, June 2, 1738, and lies buried in St. Pancras's church-yard in Middlesex.

Sir Philip Richards, Bart. succeeded his brother, Sir Joseph, in dignity and estate, and married the eldest daughter of the duke de Montemar, who was general, and commander in chief of the Spanish forces sent into Italy, 1735. Whether the above Sir Philip is the present baronet, we cannot take upon us to certify. We can only say with certainty, that the last accounts from this family mention Sir Philip as a general in the Spanish army, and that he has issue by his lady.

278. CHARLTON, of Ludford, Herefordshire.

Created BARONET, May 12, 1686.

THIS family is of very ancient extraction, and hath for many ages possessed a large estate in Shropshire; of which was, Sir Alan Charlton, Knt. of Appley castle, in that county. His son, Sir John, born at the said castle, 1268, was of the bed-chamber to King Edward II. and married Hawis Gadaru, sole daughter and heir to Owen ap Gryffith, the last prince of Powis. Her four uncles, Llewellyn, John-Gryffith, Vaughan, and David, detained her inheritance from her. Whereupon, Hawis complained to King Edward, who consigned his servant, John Charlton, to marry her, creating him, in her right, baron of Powis; and being assisted with the King's forces, he took three of her uncles prisoners, about 1320, and brought the fourth to composition, and finally recovered all his wife's estate, procuring also the lands of her uncles, in default of their issue male, to be settled on her. Isabel, sister to Sir John, married John Sutton, baron Dudley, from whom the earls of Warwick and Leicester, are descended.

His son, John, the second lord Powis, married a daughter of the earl of Stafford, and was some time chief-justice of Ireland. His brother, Thomas, was deputy of Ireland, lord-treasurer, and bishop of Hereford, in the year 1327; of whom, bishop Godwin writes, ' That he was doctor of law, and canon of York; was consecrated by the Pope's commandment, Oct. 18, 1327, bishop of Hereford; the year 1329, he was for a while treasurer of England. The year 1337, he went into Ireland, together with a brother of his, a knight, called Sir John Charlton, the knight being made chief-justice of Ireland, and he, lord-chancellor. The year following, he, complaining unto the King, by letters, of his brother's misgovernment, his said brother was displaced, and himself was appointed in his room, chief-justice for Ireland; as also, custos, and guardian of that realm. The year 1340, he was called home, having sat bishop sixteen years. He died Jan. 11, 1343.'

Sir John Charlton, third lord Powis, married Maud, daughter to Roger Mortimer, the first earl of March. John Charlton, fourth lord Powis, died without issue. He was succeeded in honour and estate by his brother, Edward, who married Eleanor, daughter to Thomas Holland, earl of Kent, and widow of Roger lord Mortimer, the last earl of March; and by her had issue two daughters; the eldest married to Sir John Grey, Knt. who, in her right, was made lord Powis; the other daughter married John lord Tiptoft. This branch of the family being extinct, as to the male line, we return to Sir Alan Charlton, Knt. of Appley-castle, near Wellington, who was brother to John, first lord Powis, and married one of the coheirs of the lord Zouch. Andrew had two wives; first, Judith, daughter of Edward Cludd, Esq; secondly, Frances, only daughter of Sir Philip Eyton, of Eyton, Knt. which branch of the family is still remaining in Shropshire. By his second wife, Anne, daughter of Richard Wyche, and sister to Sir Peter Wyche, Knt. he had four sons and four daughters, who all died unmarried, except Lettice, married to John Bright, of Aiton in Salop, Esq.

Job, his only surviving son, was knighted, and made chief-justice of Chester, and afterwards one of the judges of the common-pleas, temp. Car. II. and was advanced to the dignity of a baronet, 2 Jac. II. and was speaker of the house of commons.

He married two wives; first, Dorothy, daughter and heir to William Blunden, of Bishops-castle, Esq; by whom he had four sons; Sir Francis, William, Job, and Robert; the three last died unmarried; and three daughters; Jane, married to Thomas Hanmer, of the Fenns in Flintshire, Esq; Dorothy, married to Sir Edward Leighton, of Wattleborough-castle in Salop, Bart. and Mary, married to — Burrell, of Essex, Esq. Wilfrid, of Brayton in Cumberland, who, by Sarah, daughter and coheir of — James, of Washington in Durham, Esq; was father of Gilfrid Lawson, Esq; who was knight of the shire for Cumberland, in several parliaments, in the reigns of Queen Anne, King George I. and II. and other children; 3. Edward, who married Mary, daughter of — Briscoe, of Grenhoe in Cumberland, by whom he had no issue, 1694; 4. George, who died S. P. 5. Elizabeth, the eldest daughter, lost her life by a fall from her horse, as she was riding in Castle-Howard park in Yorkshire, (the seat of the lord Carlisle) owing to an over excess of modesty; for, as her servant came to disentangle her petticoats from the saddle, she shrieked out, which so frightened the horse, that he flung out; and at one blow killed her on the spot; she, as well as her sisters, Jane and Mary, died unmarried. Sir Wilfrid died, 1704, leaving behind him an excellent character. He was one of those, who, from a niceness of conscience not often to be met with, thought himself obliged to give up the impropriate tithes of Isell, to the living for ever; which he did with so much exactness, that with the profits he had received himself to that time, he bought a piece of land, which he settled likewise on the living: he did the same for his estate to the government; which being, as he found, undertaxed, he calculated the difference, and left 600l. to be paid to make up the deficiency; which sum, Queen Anne generously gave back to the family. He was succeeded in dignity and estate by his eldest son,

Sir Wilfrid Lawson, Bart. who was one of the grooms of the bed-chamber to King George I. and served in parliament for Cockermouth in Cumberland, 2 Geo. 280. WILLIAMS, of Gray's-Inn, Middlesex.

Created BARONET, July 6, 1688.

THIS family is said to come originally from Kadrod Hard, an ancient Briton; from whom descended, William Williams, of Twayll in Anglesea, Esq; who married Margaret, daughter of John Owen, of Llanfrythly in Anglesea, by whom he had two sons; 1. John Williams, of Twayll, who married Anne, daughter of the reverend Mr. Owen Meredith, rector of Llaneftyn, by whom he had Hugh, who died S. P. and Owen Williams, living 1695; who, by Mary, daughter of — Hughes, left issue. 2. Hugh Williams, D. D. of Cantrisant, in the Isle of Anglesea; he married Emma, daughter and coheir of — Dolben, Esq; brother to Dr. David Dolben, bishop of Bangor, by whom he had two sons and two daughters; 1. Sir William, of whom hereafter; 2. David Williams, of Llanallowe in Anglesea, and Llanfylan in Denbighshire, who, by Anne, daughter and heir of William Morris, of Kenbrant, had a numerous issue. The daughters of Dr. Williams were, Margaret, married to John Owen Penrose, of —, in Anglesea, and —, married to Hugh Lloyd, of Segreid in Denbighshire, Esqrs.

Sir William Williams, eldest son and heir, became scholar of Jesus college in 1652, continued there two years or more, went to Gray's-Inn, became a barrister, and in 1667, recorder of the city of Chester, where he was then reputed a very acute young gentleman; he was chosen burges for the city of Chester, to sit in that parliament which began at Westminster, March 6, 1678, for that which began, Oct. 17, 1679, and for that also which began at Oxon, March 21, 1680; in which two last he was chosen speaker of the house of commons. In 36 Car. II. he was tried on an information, brought against him in the King's-bench, for a libel, in causing to be printed (as speaker of the house of commons) the information of Thomas Dangerfield, Gent. and though he pleaded, that, by the law and custom of parliament, the speaker of the house of commons, during the sitting of parliament, according to the duty of his office, as a servant of the house, ought, and ever was accustomed, to speak, sign, and publish, such proceedings of that house, and in such manner as he should be ordered by the commons assembled. And that such speaking, signing, or publishing, according to the law and custom of parliament, are the act and doing of the commons themselves, and hath ever been so accepted and taken, and not as the speaker's own actions or doing; and that the speaker, for such speaking, signing, or publishing, by him made or done, during the sitting of parliament, and by their order, ought not to answer in any other court, or place, but in parliament. Notwithstanding which plea, the court fined him 10,000*l.* for licensing the said information to be printed; and, we are told, he could not escape without paying the greatest part of it. He was one of the most eminent lawyers of his time, and when King James II. came to the crown, he was in great favour, and by him made solicitor-general, in the place of Sir Thomas Powis, promoted to be attorney-general, in the beginning of Dec. 1687; on the eleventh of which month, he received the honour of knighthood at Whitehall, and acted as solicitor-general at the trial of the seven bishops. He was knight of the shire for the county of Carnarvon, in 1688, 1690, 1695, and advanced to the dignity of a baronet, 4 Jac. II. (sister to Sir Arthur) by whom he left issue five sons and one daughter; 1. Hugh, who was member for the county of Anglesea, in the last parliament of King George I. and the first of King George II. who married twice; first, Ursula, daughter of Sir John Bridgman, of Castle-Bromwich in Warwickshire, Bart. secondly, a daughter of Edward Norris, Esq; M. D. formerly member of parliament for Liverpool; 2. Kyffin, unmarried in 1741; 3. John, now a Welch judge, who married a daughter of alderman Bennet, of Chester, and has one son; 4. Arthur Williams, archdeacon of St. David's, and rector of St. Mary's, Chester, who died August, 1737, unmarried; 5. Edward, who married in May, 1739, the lady viscountess Bulkeley, relict of Richard, lord viscount Bulkeley, and daughter and heir of Lewis Owen, of Peniarth in Merionethshire, Esq; (by a daughter of Sir William Williams, Bart.) Elizabeth, only daughter of John, married William Owen, Esq; eldest son of Sir Arthur Owen, Bart. Emma, the only daughter of Sir William, married Sir Arthur Owen, of Orielton, Bart.

Sir William Williams, Bart. eldest son and successor, in the dignity and estate, represented the town of Denbigh, in the parliament summoned to meet, July 1708. He married two wives; first, the daughter and heir of Edward Thelwall of Placey-ward ward in Denbighshire, Esq; (by Sydney, his wife, daughter and heir of William Wynn, Esq; prothonotary of North-Wales, sixth son of Sir John Wynn, of Gwiddier in Carnarvonshire, Bart. by Sydney, his wife, daughter of Sir William Gerard, Knt. lord chancellor of Ireland) by whom he left three sons; 1. Sir Watkyn, his successor; 2. Robert, knight of the shire for Montgomery (chose in the room of the lord viscount Hereford, the latter end of the parliament, 2 Geo. II.) who married Catherine, daughter of Roderick Floyd, of Ffelfestreet in Middlesex, Esq; (she died S. P.) and, 3. Richard, married to Charlotte, daughter and coheir of Richard, third son of Sir Roger Mostyn, of Mostyn, in Flintshire, Bart. ‘ And the house being informed, that Mr. Thomas Gilbert attended at the door, with a copy of the said grant, he was called in; and at the bar produced the same.

‘ And the copy of the said grant, dated the sixth day of April, in the third year of her said Majesty’s reign, was read ; where- by the Queen (reciting a grant of the said office, by King Charles II. to Henry Wynn, Esq; for his life; and after his decease, to his son John Wynn, Esq; for his life; and also reciting the death of the said Henry Wynn) granted the said office to Sir William Williams, Bart. deceased, for his life; to have the said office immediately after the decease of the said John Wynn; and also to his son, now Sir Watkyn Williams Wynn, for his life, for him, the said Watkyn Williams Wynn, to have, enjoy, and exercise the said office immediately after the decease of the said Sir William Williams, with an annual salary of 20l. and with all profits to the said office belonging.

BARONETS

KING WILLIAM III.

281. MOLESWORTH, of Pencarrow, Cornwall.

Created BARONET, July 19, 1689.

THIS family, as appears from the attestation of the learned Camden, and others, is lineally descended from Sir Walter de Mollesworth, Knt. who was of eminent note, in the reign of King Edward I. and accompanied that prince in his famous crusade to the holy war, (to which his coat-armour alludes.) Anno 18 Ed. I. I find him one of the bail for Bogo de Clare, of London, attached by John de Walleys, apparitor to the archbishop of Canterbury; and from the twenty-fifth to the thirty-sixth of that King's reign, he was sheriff for the counties of Bedford and Bucks; an office, in those times, of great trust and authority. In 34 Ed. I. on a grand festival at Whitsuntide, when the King, to adorn the splendor of his court, and augment the glory of his intended expedition into Scotland, knighted Edward, earl of Carnarvan, his eldest son; the young prince, immediately at the high altar in Westminster-abbey, conferred the same honour on near three hundred gentlemens sons, of earls, barons, and knights; and among them, Sir Walter Mollesworth. On King Edward II's ascending the throne, a charter of summons was directed to him, and his lady, to attend in person, at his coronation; and in that year he appointed him, with Gilbert de Holme, sheriff for the counties of Bedford and Bucks; and in the fifth year of that King, he, and Gerrard de Braybrooke, had their writs of expences issued out for their service, as knights of the shire for Bedford, in the first parliament held at Westminster; he also served again in parliament for the same county, the eighth of that reign. He died soon after, leaving issue,

Hugh

Hugh de Mollesworth, who, with Henry de Tilly, served as knights for Huntingdonshire, in a parliament held at York, in the eighth of King Edward II. He was succeeded by,

Sir Walter de Mollesworth, Knt. his son and heir; which Sir Walter was father of Richard de Mollesworth, mentioned in the pipe rolls of Northamptonshire, 13 Ed. III. in relation to a fine of 20l. for a pardon granted to Sir Simon Drayton, Knt. John, his son, William, son of Thomas Seymour Simond, squire, [esquire] of Drayton, and to the said Richard de Mollesworth, (de seſſa pacis regis, quæ ad regem pertinet) at the King's suit for the peace, belonging to the royal cognizance, on the death of John de Sutton Lungevill. The said Richard married Eleanor, daughter and heir of Sir Thomas Mortimer, of the county of Lincoln, (a branch of that illustrious family) from whom descended

Sir Roger Moulesworth, of the county of Huntington, Knt. who had issue, John Moulesworth, of the said county, and of Helpston in Northamptonshire, Esq. This John died on the fourteenth of May, 33 Hen. VIII. and was succeeded by his son and heir

John Moulesworth, Esq; aged twenty-six years at his father's death: he married Margaret, daughter and heir to William Westcot, of Hansacre, in the county of Stafford, Esq; and had issue five sons, Anthony, Robert, Bevil, John, (of whom hereafter) and Wingfield.

Anthony, the eldest son, having married Cicely, daughter and heir to Thomas Hurland, of Fotheringay in Northamptonshire, came possessed of that inheritance, which he chose for his principal residence; at which place, he profusely entertained Queen Elizabeth for several days, at several different times; which, with other acts of too great generosity, occasioned the sale of the best part of his estate. He disposed of Helpston to an ancestor of the lord Fitz-Williams. He left issue two sons, William and Nathaniel; the latter accompanied Sir Walter Raleigh in his voyage to Guiana; afterwards was shipwrecked and drowned, going for Ireland.

William, the eldest son, accompanied the duke of Buckingham in his expedition into the Isle of Rhee, and by his son-in-law, Gervase Holles, Esq; (a worthy and authentic antiquary) is stiled, Protribunus Militum sub regimine Peregrini Berty, Militis. He had issue by Mary, his wife, daughter of Sir Francis Palmes, of Ashwell in Rutlandshire, Knt. three sons, Guy, Edward, and Robert, who all engaged, and bore arms in the service of his majesty King Charles I. Guy, the eldest, went early into foreign parts, and served under Bernard, duke of Sax-Weymar, many years, and returned into his own country, by leave of the said duke, just before the breaking out of our civil wars. He arrived, anno 1639, and soon after entering himself in behalf of his sovereign, King Charles I. was captain-lieutenant to the general's company, the earl of Northumberland; was also lieutenant-colonel to prince Maurice's regiment of horse, anno 1642, and afterwards was colonel of the same. He married, but left no issue-male. Edward, his brother, was captain-lieutenant to Sir Charles Vavasor, anno 1640, as also captain of a foot-company in Ireland, anno 1642; afterwards, colonel of foot, and major-general, with Sir Richard Greenville, but died without issue-male.

Robert, the third son, was engaged in the royal cause throughout the civil war, and served under his brother, Guy. He married Judith, eldest of the two daughters and coheirs (that survived of twenty-one children) of John Byssie, Esq; chief-baron of the exchequer in Ireland, (afterwards married to Sir William Tichborne, Knt.) by whom he had issue, Robert Molesworth, of Brackens-town, in the county of Dublin, and of Edlington in Yorkshire, Esq. Which Robert, at the revolution, distinguished himself by an early and zealous appearance, in the defence of the rights and liberties of his country, and enjoyed no small share in the esteem of King William, by whom he was sent envoy-extraordinary to the court of Denmark, anno 1692, and during his residence there, made those useful remarks on tyrannical governments, which, on his return, he published in an account of that kingdom. He was afterwards elected fellow of the royal society, and sworn of the most honourable privy-council of the kingdom of Ireland, and made one of the commissioners of trade, 1 Geo. I. and by his majesty King George I. created lord viscount Molesworth, of Swords, in the county of Dublin, in Ireland. And by Lettice, his wife, third daughter of Richard Coot, baron of Coloney in Ireland, he had seven sons and three daughters; of which, the eldest was married to George Monk, Esq; Charlotte-Amelia, second daughter, married captain William Tichburn, second son to the lord Farrard; and Letitia, the youngest, married Edward Bolton, of Brazile, in the county of Dublin, Esq; the sons were; 1. John; 2. Richard, of whom hereafter; 3. William, surveyor general of the lands in Ireland, and member of parliament for Philip's-town, in that kingdom; 4. Edward; 5. Walter, both officers in the army; 6. Coote, of the Temple, and F.R.S. and 7. Bisse. John, his eldest son, the late lord viscount Molesworth, was sent by her Majesty, envoy to the great duke of Tuscany, anno 1710, and made a commissioner of the stamp-office; and 2 Geo. I. was made one of the commissioners of trade and plantations, in the room of his father ; and, by his late majesty King George, was sent to the courts of Sardinia, Florence, Venice, and Switzerland ; and married one of the daughters and coheirs of Thomas Middleton, of Stansted Mount Fitchet, in Essex, Esq; (by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter to Richard lord Onslow) by whom he had only a daughter, and died Feb. 17, 1726. Richard, second son of Robert, lord viscount Molesworth, commanded a regiment in the army, and greatly distinguished himself in Flanders. He mounted on his own horse, the duke of Marlborough, at the battle of Ramellies, by which means he rescued that great general from being taken prisoner, at the manifest hazard of his own life. In 1714, he was made a lieutenant-general of the ordnance in Ireland, and was a colonel of dragoons at the battle of Preston, being also member of parliament for Swords ; and in March, 1724-5, succeeded general Whetham in his regiment of foot, and succeeded to the title and estate, on the death of his brother.

Having thus traced the elder line, I shall now return to John, fourth son of John Molesworth, of Helpston, father of Anthony Molesworth, before treated of.

Which John, brother of Anthony, settled at Pencarrow in Cornwall, made a good addition to his fortune, by marriage with two wives ; by the last, Phillippa, daughter of Henry Rolle, of Heanton in Devonshire, Esq; he had only two daughters ; by the first, Catherine, eldest daughter and coheir of John Hender, of Botreaux-castle in Cornwall, Esq; he had issue two sons and two daughters ; Jane, married to William Ridsen, of Vileston in Devonshire, Esq; and Elizabeth, the wife of John Tredenham, of Philly, in the county of Cornwall, Esq; mother of Sir Joseph Tredenham, Knt. (who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Edward Seymour, Bart.) Of the two sons ; John, the youngest, embarking with the duke of Buckingham, in the expedition on the Isle of Rhee, was unhappily killed there ; and Hender, the eldest, (aged twenty-three years, anno 1620) taking in marriage, Mary, eldest daughter of John Spark, of the Fryery in Plimouth, Esq; had issue three sons, John, Hender, and Richard ; the last died young.

Hender was bred a merchant, and settling in Jamaica, was president of the council of that island, in the reign of King Charles II. and upon the death of Sir Thomas Lynch, was nominated and chosen to act as governor, (according to the constitution of the island) till such time as a commission should come from the court of England, appointing another to be governor. He acted in that post till King James II. conferred the government on Christopher, duke of Albemarle ; and upon his death, the said Hender succeeded in the government, by commission from the King, and favouring the revolution, was created a baronet by King William and Queen Mary, in the first year of their reign, with remainder to Sir John Molesworth, of Pencarrow, Knt. his eldest brother, and his heirs male. Sir Hender had two wives; the first, Mrs. Mangey, daughter of a goldsmith, in London, (widow of Thomas Tottle, a merchant, in Jamaica) the second was, Mary, daughter of Thomas Temple, of Frankton in Warwickshire, Esq; and widow of Sir Thomas Lynch, Knt. his predecessor; but by neither of them had any issue. Whereupon, according to the limitation in the patent, his eldest brother, Sir John Molesworth, of Pencarrow, Knt. succeeded to the title; he was member of parliament for Bossiney in Cornwall, 13 K. William, and for Lestwithiel, 1 Q. Anne. He received the honour of knighthood from King Charles II. and by that King was constituted vice-admiral of the north parts of Cornwall, and was continued therein by King James II. King William, Queen Mary, and Queen Anne. He married twice; first, Margery, eldest daughter of Thomas Wise, of Sydenham in Devonshire, Esq; son of Sir Thomas Wise, knight of the Bath, temp. Jac. I. and sister to Sir Edward Wise, of Sydenham, knight of the Bath, by whom he had issue three sons; Sir John, Hender, and Spark; as also three daughters, Mary, Margery, and Prudence. Upon his lady's decease, he afterwards married Margaret, eldest daughter to Sir Nicholas Slanings, of Moristow in Devonshire, Knt. (who was a commander of great distinction and character in our unhappy civil wars, and lost his life at the siege of Bristol, in the service of his royal master, King Charles I.) but by her he had no issue.

Sir John Molesworth, eldest son and successor to his father, married the daughter of John Arscott, of Tetcott in Devonshire, Esq; by whom he had issue three sons and four daughters; viz. Sir John, his successor in dignity and estate; Hender, who died Feb. 6, 1732-3, unmarried; Spark, who died at Naples, 9 June, O. S. 1739; and Prudence, Margaret, Mary, and Prudence; the three former died unmarried; but Prudence, the younger, married Hugh Gregor, of Essex street, London, Esq; and died of the small-pox at Bath, 2 May, 1741, ætat. twenty-three, leaving an only daughter, Jane.

Sir John Molesworth, Bart. his eldest son, was member of parliament for Newport in Cornwall, and married, 1728; Barbara, second daughter of Sir Nicholas Morice, of Werrington in Devonshire, Bart. she was taken ill at Egham in Surry, in her journey down to Pencarrow, and died of the small-pox at Staines, in Middlesex, May 17, 1735, ætat. twenty-four, leaving leaving two sons, Sir John, his successor; and William, deceased. Sir John died April 4, 1766, and was succeeded by his only surviving son, Sir John Molesworth, the present baronet, who is colonel of the militia, and representative for the county of Cornwall. Sir John married, Sept. 28, 1755, Frances, daughter, and one of the coheiressees, of James Smyth, of St. Andries, in the county of Somerset, Esq; by whom he had issue one son, William. This lady dying, Sir John married, secondly, June 22, 1762, Barbara, daughter of Sir John St. Aubyn, of Clowance, in the county of Cornwall, Bart. and has issue two sons and a daughter, John, Hender, and Barbara.

283. ROBINSON, of Newby, Yorkshire.

V.) by whom he had two sons, Metcalf and Thomas, of whom hereafter; and three daughters that were married; viz. Elizabeth, to Philip Rycot, merchant; Margaret, to William Weddall, of Erswick in Yorkshire; and Frances, to Robert Bell, of Overton, in the same county, Esqrs. besides John, Margaret, and other children, who died young. He married Margaret, daughter of Sir William D'Arcy, of Witton-Castle in Durham, Knt. by whom he left no issue, so that the title expired with him; he represented the city of York in three parliaments, temp. Car. II. and dying, Feb. 6, 1688-9, was interred at Topcliffe in Yorkshire, where, towards the east end of the north aisle of that church, is a handsome monument raised in, with Sir Metcalf Robinson's bust, encircled with a curious garland, and ornamented with the trophies of war.

284. LEIGHTON, of Watlesborough, Shropshire,

Created BARONET, March 2, 1692.

THIS family was in England long before the Norman conquest, and of noble extraction, as appears by Doomsday-book, wherein it is found, Anschitel, tenuit humum Comite de Leton, &c. (one of the old ways of spelling this name) which, without doubt, was the reason why Camden styles them, Nobilem, & Equestrem Familiam, in his Britannia.

Sir Titus de Leighton, knight of the sepulchre, son and heir of Cuthbert, and grandson and heir of Totilus de Leighton, was one of those who went to the wars in the Holy Land, and at his return was a co-founder of the abbey of Buldewas in Salop, of which mention is made in some old manuscripts, wrote by Roger and John Challingworth.

William Fitz-Allan, soon after the conquest, re-conveyed the manor of Leighton to Sir Richard de Leighton, Knt. son and heir of Sir Titus, in as full and ample manner, as the said Sir Richard's ancestors had before conveyed it to the ancestors of the said Fitz-Allan; and out of this his manor, which is situate very near the abbey of Buldewas, Sir Richard gave lands to that abbey, as appears by his grant without date, inserted in Dugdale's Monasticon Anglicanum, prior to that in which King Stephen confirmed the said abbey.

Sir Titus, Sir William, and Sir Richard de Leighton, severally succeeded; the two last of which are mentioned as witnesses to some donations of land to the abbey of Hagmond; and this Sir Richard levied a fine of lands in Cheshire, to the abbot of Cumbermere, in which he acknowledges them to be the right of the said abbot. Some of the heirs and successors of these knights, highly advanced the reputation, interest, and fortune of their family, by their civil and military employments, in the service of their Kings and country; of which John Leighton, in the reign of King Edward III. is a particular instance, who had several pensions granted to him by that King, for the good and faithful services he had done for him, and the prince his son, as they, and others did by their marriages, both with the daughters of the noble families of Le Brun, Butler, L'Éstrange, Devereux, Sutton, and Gerard, and with the daughters and heirs, or coheirs, of the antient families of Warren, Cambray, Drake, Cornwall, and Stapleton, a family descended from the earls of Chester, and Kings of France and Arragon, from whom they had divers manors and estates of great value, not only in the county of Salop, where they lived, but also in the several counties of Cornwall, Gloucester, Wilts, and Somerset; with which they flourished for some ages, being persons of very great regard, and very eminent distinction. They also intermarried with the notable families of Lacy, Pilhard, Standford, Pygot, Darrell, Devereux, of Castle-Bromwich, and Stephens, from whom much good blood runs in their veins, and much riches came among them.

The castles and manors of Watlesborough and Alberbury, now in possession of the family, came to them, among other estates, upon the marriage of John Leighton, of Stretton, (who was thrice high-sheriff of the county of Salop, in the reign of King

King Edward IV.) with Anchoret, daughter and coheir of Sir John Burgh, and Jane, his wife, daughter and heir of Sir William Clopton, of Gloucestershire; he was son and heir of Sir Hugh Burgh, treasurer of England, who was descended from Hubert de Burgh, the famous politician, in the reign of King Henry III. who married a daughter of William, King of Scotland, and the lords of Mowbray. Sir Hugh Burgh married the daughter and sole heir of John lord Mouthwy, who married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Sir Foulk Corbet, of Morton Corbet, in Salop, and was son and heir of William lord Mouthwy, who was lineally descended, in the male line, from Blethyn ap Convyn, King of Powys, and, in the female line, from Gruffith ap Conan, King of North-Wales, Owen ap Edwin, prince of Tegengle; the princes of South-Wales; the princes of Lower Powys; the lords of Arustly; and the lords of Dyffryn Cluyd. Which lord Mouthwy married a daughter and coheir of Thomas ap Llewelyn, who married the daughter and heir of Philip ap Ivor, lord of Iscoed, who married the daughter and sole heir of Llewelyn ap Gruffith, the last prince of Wales. She (the wife of William lord Mouthwy) was lineally descended, in the male line, from Rees ap Theodore, King of South-Wales, who married the daughter and heir of Riwallon ap Convyn, prince of Powys; and, in the female line, from the lords of Brecknock, the lords of Cedewen, Llewelyn ap Jorwerth, prince of Wales, Reynold, King of Man, Simon Mountford, earl of Leicester, who married a daughter of King John, and the earl of Barry, who married a daughter of King Edward I. so that this family, by the coheir of Burgh, derive their descent from a great number of British and English nobility; by two marriages from the royal family of England, by one, from the royal family of Scotland, and by several, from Roderic the Great, King of Wales, the original of whose genealogy, is from those ancient British kings and princes, who first possessed this island. And by this marriage, it is thought the heir of this family may claim a right to some baronies that lie dormant between him and the right honourable the earl of Bradford and Richard Mytton, of Hulfston, in the county of Salop, Esq; whose ancestors married the other coheirs.

This John Leighton, Esq; had two brothers, Sir Cuthbert Leighton, knight of the order of St. John, of Jerusalem, who had a particular pension allowed him by act of parliament, at the dissolution of the monasteries, temp. Hen. VIII. and Edward, who married the daughter of Thomas Hopton, from whom, the Leightons, of Coats in Salop, a very numerous family, were descended.

Sir Thomas Leighton, son and heir of John, and Anchorer, among others, was attainted, temp. Ric. III. for espousing the interests of the then earl of Richmond, to whom he was collaterally allied, by the marriage of one of the earl's ancestors with the other coheir of Thomas ap Llewelyn, above-mentioned, upon whose accession to the crown, the attainder was taken off, and a pardon granted to him: he was knight of the body to that King, and one of the chief commanders in the army sent over to France, in the beginning of that reign, along with the lord Brooke, in aid of the duke of Britain, against the French King. He was again in the wars of France with King Henry VIII. where he had the honour of being made knight-banneret, under the King's own banner, displayed in the royal army, his Majesty being present, for his conduct and bravery at the battle of Spurs, and taking of Tournay; and had estates granted him in several counties, for his life, in consideration of the services he had performed, both for King Henry VII. and King Henry VIII. in both which reigns, he served in parliament, as knight of the shire for the county of Salop, as divers of his ancestors had done in other reigns; for which, see the Parliament Rolls. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Walter lord Ferrers, of Chartley, relict of Sir Richard Corbet, Knt. and died about the tenth of Hen. VIII. His brother, Sir William Leighton, was chief-justice of North-Wales, from whom the Leightons of Plash, in the county of Salop, were descended: a family now extinct, but of great esteem in their time.

John Leighton, Esq; son and heir of Sir Thomas, being squire of the body to King Henry VIII. was towards the end of that reign, particularly when the parliament was held at Black-friars, knight of the shire for the county of Salop, at which time he raised a considerable number of men, and attended the duke of Suffolk to Calais, at his own expence; and died soon after his return; he had three brothers, who were by another venter, from one of which, the Leighton's of Rodenhurst, were descended, which family is lately become extinct, upon the decease of Richard Leighton, Esq.

Sir Edward Leighton, son and heir of John, was custos rotularum, and knight of the shire for the county of Salop, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth; was one of that Queen's privy-council, and much esteemed by her; as also was his brother, Sir Thomas Leighton, of Feckenham, in the county of Wilts, who was governor of the isles of Guernsey and Jersey, and constable of the tower of London. This is that Sir Thomas Leighton, who was appointed to attend Robert Devereux, earl of Essex, (his near relation) upon his expedition into France, to join the French King at the siege of Rouen; and being a person son of great experience, was to advise the first earl in matters of moment; where conduct and council were required; this is also that Leighton; who was given as an hostage, together with Pelham and Horsham; at the siege of Cadiz, (see Camden's Eliz.) He married a daughter of Sir Francis Knowles, who was maid of honour to Queen Elizabeth, by whom he had issue, Thomas Leighton, who married a daughter and coheir of the lord Zouch, of Harringworth, by whom he had issue two daughters, who were his coheirs, married to the noble families of Talbot, and St. John.

Sir Edward died the thirty-sixth of Elizabeth, leaving Thomas, his son and heir, who died the forty-second of the same reign; leaving by Elizabeth, daughter of Sir William Gerard, Knt. lord-chancellor of Ireland, Robert; his son and heir, then a minor, who died the first of King Charles I. and left by Anne, his wife, second daughter of Sir Edward Devereux, of Castle-Bromwich in Warwickshire, Bart. Edward, his son and heir, then under age, who had two wives; 1. Abigail; daughter and heir of William Stephens, of Shrewsbury, Esq; 2. Martha, daughter of Thomas Owen, of Shrewsbury, Esq; this last wife lies buried in the parish church of St. Chad in Shrewsbury, where a monument is erected to her memory. During the time of these minorities, this family was deprived of several branches of their estate, and had great devastations committed on other parts thereof, by the ill management and base practices of those persons, to whom they unfortunately fell in ward, who prevailed upon Edward (being still a minor) to marry a second wife out of their own family, without any portion at all, and afterwards, when he came to age, to disinherit his only son by his first wife, with whom he had a very considerable fortune, and give his estate, or the bulk thereof, to the son by the second venter, notwithstanding their contract, and his promises before the first marriage, with his wife's father and relations, to the contrary; by which means, this family had been totally ruined, had not Providence interfered, by taking off Thomas, son by the second venter, before he came of full age; upon whose death, Robert, the son of the first, came into the whole estate, as remainder in the intail; who was found, by inquisition taken, upon the death of his father, the eleventh of King Charles I. to be about the age of six years, who, notwithstanding he was a minor, yet firmly adhered, even in his minority, to the royal party, in the time of the rebellion. He was chose burghess of the corporation, of the town of Shrewsbury, at the restoration of King Charles II. and served in parliament almost eighteen years; but though he continued all his life well affected to the government, yet refused the honour of being made a baronet, both from King Charles II. and King James II.^b He married Gertrude, daughter of Edward Baldwin, of Diddlebury, in the county of Salop, Esq; descended from the Baldwins, Kings of Jerusalem, and earls of Flanders; and, leaving a numerous issue by her, died in the year 1689.

Edward Leighton, of Watlesborough, in the county of Salop, Esq; son and heir, (being the twenty-third generation of this family, from Totilus de Leighton) was created baronet the fourth of King William and Queen Mary: he was knight of the shire for the county of Salop, in the reign of King William, and burgefs for the corporation of the town of Shrewsbury, in the reign of Queen Anne: he was zealous for the support of the Protestant interest at the time of the revolution, and afterwards for the settlement of the crown in the most illustrious house of Hanover. He married Dorothy, daughter of Sir Job Charlton, of Ludford, in the county of Hereford, Knt. and Bart. to his first wife; and Jane, daughter of Daniel Nicholl, of the city of London, Esq; to his second. He had issue by his first wife, Robert, who died young; Sir Edward; Job, who died before he arrived of age; Lettice, who died unmarried, Dec. 9, 1753; Dorothy, Jane, and Dorothy, who all died young; and by his second wife, he had Daniel Leighton, Esq; (who died in Jan. 1765) lieutenant-colonel of general Evan's regiment of horse. He married Jane, daughter of Nathaniel Thorold, of the city of Lincoln, Esq. This lady died in London, being bed-chamber woman to the princess of Wales, and left issue two sons and two daughters; 1. This Sir Henry died beyond sea; he was seised of the manor of Greys, alias Coltsball, in Cavendish, and Pollingford, in Suffolk, before Feb. 3. 11 Car. I. 1635.

George Colt, of Colt-hall in Suffolk, Clay-hall, and Parendon-hall in Essex, Esq; the eldest son, married Elizabeth, eldest daughter and coheir of John Dutton, of Sherborne in Gloucestershire, Esq; by whom he had nine sons and one daughter; 1. John-Dutton Colt, Esq; of whom hereafter, being the chief line; 2. George-Dutton Colt, who died unmarried; 3. Sir William-Dutton Colt, Knt. who was resident at the elector of Hanover's court, being sent thither by King William, as envoy, in 1692. He was the first discoverer of Grandvall's design to assassinate King William, as he was riding about in his ordinary way, visiting the posts of his army in Flanders; which he discovered from some practices and discourses, of one Dumont, who had retired this winter to Zell, as one that had forsaken the French service; whereupon Grandvall was seized, tried, condemned, executed, and confessed the fact. Sir William married three wives; first, Lucy, daughter of Thomas Webb, of Kent, by whom he had a son, Harry-Dutton, who, by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter and heir of John Llewellyn, of Herefordshire, had several children, but left issue only one son, George-Dutton, an officer in the army; and two daughters, Sophia, and Anne, married to Mr. Elton, and Mr. Stopham; Elizabeth, relict of Harry-Dutton, was afterwards re-married to brigadier-general Groves. Sir William, by his first wife, had two daughters; Elizabeth, who died young; and Lucy, married to Paul Burrard, Esq; late member of parliament for Lymington in Hampshire. Sir William married, secondly, Dorothy, daughter and heir of Henry Sanderson, of Hedley-hope in Durham, Esq; by whom he had only one son, William-Dutton, who died young; his third wife was, Mary, daughter of John Garneys, of Moringthorpe in Norfolk, Esq; by whom he had, William, who died an exon in the guards, unmarried; John, who died unmarried; and a daughter, Sophia, (born at Hanover, and the princess Sophia, her god-mother) married, first, to Edmund Dummer, Esq; and had issue a daughter, married to Valentine Knightley, of Fawley in Northamptonshire, Esq; and, secondly, to Dennis Bond, Esq; late member of parliament for Corfe-castle in Dorsetshire; Sir William died at the elector of Hanover's court, in 1693; the fourth son of George and Elizabeth Dutton, was, Sir Harry-Dutton Colt, created baronet, of whom hereafter; 5. George, who all died unmarried: Elizabeth, the only daughter of George, married the reverend Mr. Sidney. This George Colt, Esq; and his family, taking the part of King Charles I. and the Duttons, that of the par-‘parliament, John Dutton, Esq; his father-in-law, would have had him left the royal cause, and come over to the parliament, and then he would have settled his estate upon him and his heirs; but he would not hear of it; upon which, Mr. Dutton cut off the entail of his estate;’ and by will left it to his nephew, William Dutton, and the heirs male of his body; and for default of such issue, to Ralph Dutton, and the heirs male of his body, (both sons of his younger brother, Sir Ralph) and for default of such issue, to his own right heirs for ever. ‘This George Colt, Esq; was almost cut to pieces at Worcester fight, and after the battle of Worcester, fled abroad, with several of his children, and lived in Holland and Flanders: King Charles II. sent for him, and sent him to Spain; (but little was done for him there) afterwards, the King ordered him to go to Ireland, to take possession of it from Corn. Jones, for the King would not trust any other person with it. The night before he went, he called his children to him, and blessed them, and charged them never to have their fortunes told, for he had his, and was told, that if he lived to pass his forty-fifth year, he should live to be an old, and a great man; the next day, he went aboard a Dutch skipper, with forty gentlemen; the skipper was drunk, and the weather very bad, by which means they were all drowned, within sight of land, Jan. 20, 1658. He was taken up the next day, and there was found in his pocket, a warrant for being an earl.’ He was buried at Girtringdunbark. The other daughter and coheir of John Dutton, Esq; was married to Thomas Pope, earl of Downe, who had only one daughter, Elizabeth, married, first, to Sir Francis-Henry Lee, of Ditchley in Oxfordshire, Bart. (father, by her, of Sir Edward-Henry Lee, earl of Litchfield) and afterwards, to Robert, earl of Lindsey.

John-Dutton Colt, Esq; eldest son and heir of George Colt, Esq; before-mentioned, ‘was, when a little boy, at Worcester, with his father, when the battle was fought there, and was carried off by a servant; he was but sixteen years old at his father’s decease; and on the news of the misfortune attending his father, the King sent for him, and cried over him, and said, he would have him, and his two brothers, go back to England, and if ever he returned, he would take care of them; but never did any thing for them after his restoration; and though his mother was left a widow, with so many children, her father, Dutton, would never see her to his dying day; and his father, George Colt, Esq; spent his fortune in the service of King Charles I. and II. He sold Colt-hall in Suffolk, and several other good estates, though his right to

to do, was afterwards disputed; the reward this John met with, for his and his family's sufferings, was, that he was thrown into prison the year before King Charles II. died; the reason was, he was then a member of parliament for Leominster in Herefordshire, and voted for the bill of exclusion, and was zealous for preserving the charter of Leominster; upon this, King Charles sent for him, and expressed a great concern that he had not done any thing for him, or the family, since the restoration; but told him, that he knew that he had the keeping of the charter of Leominster, and if he would deliver it up, he would give him a bill upon alderman Backwell, for ten thousand pounds; he told him, he could not do it; the King bid him go home, and consider of it, and come to him the next morning, which he did; when the King sent for him into his closet, and shewed him two bills of ten thousand pounds each, one on alderman Backwell, the other on Sir Charles Duncombe, (both being the King's bankers) the King told him, that if he would deliver up the charter to him, he would give him the two bills, and do more for him, and his family; Mr. John-Dutton Colt replied, it was not in his power, for that he had sworn to maintain the charter, when he was bailiff of the town, and could not break his oath; and he verily believed, that his Majesty could not have any faith in him, or any other person who did. Upon which, the King flew into a great passion, and shook Mr. Colt by the shoulder, and said, that he would ruin him, and his posterity: Mr. Colt, being moved by the usage, told the King, that it was in his Majesty's power to ruin him, and his, in this world, but not in the next; for he would never forswear himself; the King swore, God's fish, he would ruin him. Mr. Colt went home, to Leominster; and soon after, they trumped up a bill of scandalum magnatum against him, for words he spoke against the duke of York: upon which, Mr. Colt secreted himself for some time, and his friends would have had him gone abroad; but he told them, that he would not, as his country was in distress; and accordingly, he stood trial, before lord chief-justice Jeffrey's, when false witnesses were procured against him, who swore through stitch; but he owned, that at Mr. Coningsby's, at Hampton-court in Herefordshire, he did say, when they drank the duke of York's health, that he would not drink any popish duke's health in England; this trial was a little before King Charles died, and Mr. Colt was cast, in one hundred thousand pounds damage, and was committed to the King's-bench prison, Southwark, where he was confined almost three years: at last, King James released him, by the interest of lord Preston; when Mr. Colt

& kissed the King's hand, to return him thanks, the King ob& served, that he was turned grey, and said to him, that he was & surprized at it; for that he was some years older than him;
 & Mr. Colt answered, that trouble altered all men; the King & bid him go home, and live peaceably in the country; he an& swered, it was his design, and that he might do so, he had a & favour to beg of his Majesty; the King stepped back, put his & hand upon his breast, and said, what would you have, Mr.
 & Colt? he replied, I beseech your Majesty that you will never put & me into any publick employment, and then I shall never be envied,
 & but be at rest: the King smiled, and gave him his word, that & he never would; and said, it was the only favour of that kind,
 & that ever was asked him. It is here proper to observe, that one & Samuel Seward, of Leominster, who was one of the witnesses & against Mr. Colt, owned, before he died, that he had for-& sworn himself at his trial, and that he was put upon it by & major H----, who hired all the witnesses, and that they were & promised one hundred pounds a man, but never received but & five guineas, and all expences borne; this he confessed before & several gentlemen; and Mr. Colt forgave him, upon his de& claring that his conscience troubled him, and could not rest & until he had obtained his pardon. When King William was & settled on the throne, Mr. Colt produced the old charter, and & threw out the new one, and brought in all the old members:
 & King William heard of it, and sent for Mr. Colt, and asked & him, by what law he did it; he answered, by the same law that & your Majesty wears the crown. He served many years after in & parliament, for Leominster, till an ungrateful family threw & him out, by a petition, in Queen Anne's time, though he & had a considerable majority.

289. BUCKWORTH, of Sheen, near Richmond, Surry.

Created BARONET, April 1, 1697.

THIS family is descended from Richard Buckworth, of Wisbich, in the Isle of Ely, who married Rose, daughter and coheir of — Skegnes, of Skegnes in Lincolnshire, Esq; and had issue, Everard Buckworth, of Wisbich, Esq; living 1619, who married Emme, daughter of Thomas Oxburgh, of Lenne in Norfolk, and died 1641, aged seventy, having issue by her, Everard Buckworth, of Wisbich, Esq; and other children.

Sir John Buckworth, Knt. and alderman of London, was a younger brother of Everard, before-mentioned; he married —, and had only one son, Sir John, and three daughters; Margaret, married to Sir Peter Vandeput, Knt. sheriff of London, 1684; Elizabeth, to Thomas Hartopp, Esq; alderman of London; and Mary, the wife of Sir William Hussey, Knt. who went ambassador from King William, to the Ottoman Porte. Sir John died Dec. 1687, and Dr. Scott, who knew him well, gives the following amiable, affecting, and extraordinary character of him. 'This excellent person, Sir John Buckworth,

' was as eminently known as ever any merchant that trod the ' exchange of London. And indeed, considering the great ' share he had of intellectual endowments, he was a gentleman
 ' that seemed to have been marked out by Providence, to make ' a considerable figure among men. For, first, nature had en' riched him with a clear bright mind, with a quick apprehen' sion, a prompt memory, a steady and piercing judgment, to' gether with a natural presence of mind, and fluency and rea' diness of speech, which enabled him upon all occasions, easily
 ' to express his own conceptions of things, in very clear and ' apt language. All which natural endowments, he had vastly ' improved and cultivated, by a long and curious observation
 ' and experience. For as nature had fitted him for an active ' life, so Providence soon introduced him upon the stage of ac' tion. For as he was born a gentleman, so he was educated
 ' a merchant; which, perhaps, is one of the most advantageous ' academies in the world, to instruct the mind in the know' ledge of men, and the management of human affairs. His ' education furnished him with a fair opportunity of seeing the ' world, as well abroad as at home; and of prying into the ' intrigues of commerce, and into the manners and interests of ' men; whence he drew so many wise and useful observations,
 ' as rendered him a prince among merchants, and an oracle of ' trade; insomuch, that he was thought worthy to be chosen
 ' deputy-governor of that wise and great company of the Tur' key-merchants; and was, perhaps, as much consulted by his ' superiors, about the interest of the English trade, and the ' mysteries of commerce, as any one merchant of this city, or ' nation. Thus for his intellectuals.

' As for his morals, I believe that all that knew him, will ' allow him this character; that he was a gentleman of great ' integrity and fidelity to his trust; of exact justice and righ' teousness in his commerce and dealings: that he was a studious
 ' and successful peace-maker, great part of his time, before ' he was called up by his prince, into a more busy and active
 ' station, being spent in arbitrating differences between man
 ' and man; in which he was so expert, so impartial and pro' sperous, that I am apt to think, he cemented as many broken
 ' friendships, reconciled as many quarrels, and adjusted as many ' differences, (which otherwise might have flamed out into ' destructive breaches) as most of those blessed peace-makers
 ' that are gone before him.

' Consider him in his respective relations, and there all that ' knew him, I am sure, will allow him to have been a faithful,
 ' a loyal, and useful subject to his prince, a kind and obliging ' husband to his lady, a tender, and a wise father to his chil' dren,

dren, a prudent, careful, and benevolent master to his servants; and, in a word, a wise counsellor, a faithful friend, and a just and diligent correspondent.

As for his religion, he was a hearty protestant of the church of England, which upon mature judgment, and upon thorow information, he preferred for the loyalty of its principles, the simplicity of its doctrines, and the primitive purity of its worship and discipline, before all the churches in the world; and what his judgment was of our church, he visibly expressed by his constant attendance upon the publick offices of our religion, upon the Lord's day, from which he never absented, but when he was either detained by sickness, or some very urgent and unavoidable occasion; and in which he always demeaned himself with all the profound reverence and devotion, that outwardly expresses a mind inspired with a pious sense of its duty, and of the awful presence of the great Majesty of heaven.

Thus he lived; and as for his death, though it was accompanied with all the circumstances that could render a man fond of life; though he had a plentiful estate, a loving and beloved wife, dutiful and hopeful children, and these all of them happily disposed of, and settled in the world, to his own heart's content; to leave all which at once, seems a very hard chapter to a mind not well resolved; yet all these together, had no such effect upon him. Indeed, not long before his death, though then in perfect health, he seemed to have an aboding of his approaching fate; for having, to his heart's desire, disposed of his only son in marriage, (who was the last of his children undisposed) he hath been often heard to say, That now he thanked God, his business in this world was finished, and that it was high time for him to think of his departure into the other: and when soon after, he was seized with his last sickness, he bore it with an invincible courage and constancy; and though the last part of it was extremely painful to him, he underwent it without complaint or murmuring, with a mind that seemed entirely resigned to the sovereign disposer of all events. And when he perceived the approaches of death, and found that he was going off this stage of mortals, he never shewed the least sign of regret or reluctancy, but took a solemn leave of his friends; and, which was much harder, of his dearest relatives, who stood lamenting and weeping about him; and this with a mind very serious indeed, but in all appearance very calm and composed. And finally, he gave up the ghost, like a brave man and a good christian, with a firm and undaunted mind, and as one that had placed his main hope on the other side the grave, and did

 ‘ one of pleasure. And therefore, though I make no doubt ‘ after all, but that as a man, he had his faults, (and he, that ‘ hath none, let him cast the first stone) yet I am sure he had ‘ his virtues, and those very eminent ones too; and therefore ‘ it will highly become us who survive, in charity to cast a ‘ veil over the one, and in piety, imitate and transcribe the

Sir John Buckworth, of Sheen, Knt. his only son and heir, the first baronet of this family, was a person of extraordinary parts, and spoke Latin as fluent as he did English, (though few spoke English better) and having been well grounded in classical learning, travelled into Turkey, and other places, where he improved his natural and acquired abilities; and, returning from abroad a compleat gentleman, was universally esteemed by all that knew him.
